SECOND BOMB AIMED AT POPE

Today

Two Financial Items.
Cardozo, Excellent Choice.
John D's Philosophy.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 16.

IN A FIGHT for control of Transamerica Corporation, lineal descendant of the Bank of Italy, A. P. Giannini, who created the bank, won an overwhelming victory with more than 15,000,000 votes out of 24,000,000 cast. That interests East and West.

ANOTHER FINANCIAL item. Thomas Fortune Ryan's property, left behind when he died in 1928, amounts to "only" one hundred and thirty-five millions. He used to say when alive:

"The income tax has cut my fortune in two."

It is probable that 1929 cut it still more, since few escaped that slash.

A MAN OF GREAT energy was Thomas Fortune Ryan, knowing how to get control of properties and make them profitable for himself. The late J. P. Morgan said:

Mr. Ryan bought diamond mines in South Africa, brought the diamonds out by airplane, which disappointed would-be robbers, and knew how to pick good men for his work.

THE POSSIBILITY, suggested here, when Justice Holmes resigned, that Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo might be chosen to succeed Justice Holmes, became reality yesterday when Judge Cardozo was appointed by the President.

He is a man of highest character, profound knowledge of law. His appointment will be approved universally, and the fact that he is of Jewish birth, the second of his race to be appointed to the Supreme bench, interests many energetic Americans.

JAPAN CONTINUES sending more guns, men, airplanes, fighting ships, while an Associated Press dispatch from Shanghai tells how the Chinese pathetically "dig in to die."

That sounds like the resignation of a race growing old. A younger race would "dig in" to make the Japanese sorry they ever came.

YOU DON'T KNOW much about individuals or nations until you have seen them losing.

It is possible to be an excellent winner, following up advantages vigorously, and a poor loser, discouraged by defeat.

The Japanese since they became westernized or what we call "civilized" have not known defeat. They beat China with ridiculous ease, beat Russia and are still bitter because Theodore Roosevelt as umpire did not give them all they had hoped for from Russia.

How will the Japanese take defeat? That remains to be seen, but there is every reason to suppose that they will take it calmly, as they have taken victory hitherto. Much depth to the Japanese character, and, as time goes in Asia, that race is young.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, in good health again, tells reporters that follow him to church:

"You can say again—I am happy to be alive."

That is the statement of a philosopher. All that we get from this existence is "being alive." A place to sleep, air to breathe, water, food and opportunity to look at the sky and wonder who made it, and what is going to happen to us later.

Mr. Rockefeller is happier now than when giving hundreds of millions to education and science before he transferred the heavy load of his enterprises to the shoulders of his son.

PROF. EINSTEIN, in Rice Hall, at the University of California at Los Angeles, is lecturing on "The Geometric Interpretation of the Gravitational and Electric Field." The university hall will hold his audience easily.

THERE IS IN Los Angeles a bantamweight prizefighter from Mexico, very young, called Baby Arizmendi, who recently delighted experts by defeating a champion from the Philippines.

If he, this afternoon, were demonstrating the science which he professes, Rice Hall at the university would not hold his crowd or a tenth of it.

THAT WILL TELL future historians more about our civilization than they could learn by watching a prizefight or hearing Prof. Einstein talk on "The Gravitational and Electric Field."

UNCLE SAM EXPECTS this week to "release" seven hundred and fifty million dollars "to help restore prosperity." If that money were distributed among families of six million idle, the distribution would be called "socialism, paternalism," and that terrible thing a DOLE.

But, the money is going to banks and corporations, so it is not a dole, it is "intelligent financing."

YOU CANNOT, in the opinion of the best judges, distribute money with safety to individuals idle. They might get the habit of idleness and like it. And distributing money to corporations that employ labor, means giving work to those that need it, if the money is well used.

In any case, that is the kind of government we have, a government BY organized money and largely FOR organized money.

Russia is trying to do the other thing, and this country is wishing her all possible bad luck.

If Russia should succeed and we, temporarily, should fail, that would be another story.

GIRL ON WAY TO SCHOOL CLUBBED

Joins Police Radio Car in Search of 'Shantytown;' Screams Rout Assailant

Felled by a heavy wooden club, Dorothy Dodson, 14, of 717 Ridge avenue, after having her injuries dressed, rode around in a police radio car in search of her assailant today.

Dorothy, who divides her time between school and mothering three younger children, was beaten by an unidentified man at Ridge avenue and Bank street. She was en route to St. Peter's parochial school when the attack was made.

She told police:

"When I got to Bank street a man came up behind me. He had a big club, like a baseball bat. He didn't say anything or grab me. He just hit me. When I fell I screamed, and some people ran toward us. Then he ran up Bank street, toward Monument Hill."

After the attack the girl went home, washed the blood from her head and continued to school. There the Sisters noticed her condition and sent her to Presbyterian Hospital, where several stitches were taken in the wound. The Sisters notified police. The latter took the girl to Monument Hill, where a thorough canvass of Shantytown was made, but the girl failed to find her assailant.

The girl told police her mother is dead and she keeps house for her father and three younger children.

Laval Quits After Vote Defeat

PARIS, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—The cabinet of Premier Pierre Laval went out of office at 5:50 p. m. today (12:50 p. m. eastern standard time) when President Paul Doumer accepted the ministry's resignation following Laval's defeat on a confidence vote in the Senate.

Senator Albert Sarraut was most prominently mentioned as the next premier. It was rumored Left Wing leaders were doing their utmost to induce Andre Tardieu to accept a post in the new government, but that Tardieu steadfastly refused.

Laval's enforced resignation threw the political situation of all Europe into uncertainty and fears were felt it might have an effect upon the world disarmament conference at Geneva as well as the reparations conference scheduled to assemble at Lausanne in June.

Picture of Walsh Wrongly Identified

In a story yesterday regarding alleged vote frauds in the First Ward, the Sun-Telegraph printed a picture of William A. Walsh and identified it as Lawrence Walsh, who was held for court.

Blizzard Hampers Posse Closing in on Trapper

AKLAVIK, Northwest Territory, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—An Arctic blizzard has laid a screen of white over the bleak hills southwest of Aklavik, hampering police in their search for Albert Johnson, the elusive mad trapper of Rat River, wanted as the slayer of Constable E. Millen.

Reports from the "front" indicated Johnson's trail had been picked up near Pierre House, in Yukon territory, and his early arrest was expected.

Although the order "to bring him in alive" is still in effect, "mounties" and trappers, with past experiences of the wily trapper's deadly aim, will take no chances and expect a gun battle when they finally close in.

Capt. W. R. "Wop" May, noted Northland flier who has been the "eyes" of the posse, is reported forced down in the vicinity of Pierre House, but no anxiety is felt for him and his plane. There are many places in that area which would afford safe landing.

POWERS DENIED NEW TRIAL

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 16.—Harry F. Powers, convicted Bluebeard slayer, lost the first round of his court battle to escape the noose on March 18, when Judge Birk S. Stathers, in Harrison County Circuit Court, today denied Powers' petition for a new trial.

J. E. Law, Powers' attorney, immediately announced he would appeal for a new ruling to the State Court of Appeals. Powers was convicted of the murder of Mrs. Dorothy P. Lemke, of Northboro, Mass., one of five alleged victims whose bodies were found in Powers' garage near here last August.

LESS HOARDING, SAYS HOOVER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—A turn in the tide of hoarding that has brought $34,000,000 back into circulation since February 4 was announced today by President Hoover.

While the President spoke today of an "entire turn" in the movement toward withdrawal of funds from banks and investments, financial leaders of the government considered the issuance by the Treasury of a new issue of short-term bonds of small denominations.

At his regular conference with the press, the President said:

"I am glad to report that since February 4, when I took action on hoarding, there has been an entire turn in the tide. Up to a few days previous to that time hoarding was greatly on the increase. Since that time it has not only stopped, but it is estimated that $34,000,000 has been returned to circulation from hoarding."

JAPAN DEFIES AMERICA AND BRITAIN

Tokio May Rush 45,000 More Troops to Shanghai; Decisive 'Push' Awaited

Japan today rejected protests of the United States and Great Britain against landing troops in the International Settlement at Shanghai, pointing out that both protesting nations had done likewise.

At the same time Tokio revealed that 45,000 additional troops may be rushed to Shanghai.

Twenty thousand Japanese marines and infantrymen were placed in strategic positions in preparation for a "pincers" movement to drive Chinese into the International Settlement.

Admiral Taylor, commanding the American fleet at Shanghai, again protested as a result of Japanese shells falling in the United States Marine sector.

In London, King George conferred with Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, on the Far Eastern crisis and a high British spokesman expressed fears of complications which would involve the United States and Great Britain on one side and Japan and France on the other.

TOKIO, Feb. 16.—Rejecting the latest protests of the United States and Great Britain against her landing of troops in the International Settlement, Japan today announced her intention of sending still more troops to Shanghai.

The Japanese consul general at Shanghai was instructed to reply to American and British officials that her landing of troops was no different than that of England or the United States, pointing out that it was for the protection of the Settlement.

MORE TROOPS

Simultaneously, an intimation that Japan may send reinforcements to Shanghai totaling 45,000 men was given by Minister of War Sadao Araki. Araki outlined the government's plans, insisting that

Sportsman Tells How He Slugged Captor, Fled Truck After Reaching Cleveland

International News Service.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 16.—Fearing that their lives were in danger, the father and two brothers of Harry A. Blagden, who escaped in Cleveland from a kidnaping gang, today asked police protection.

Lieut. H. C. Herrick, in charge of Troop B, state police, immediately threw a cordon of troopers around the Blagden camp at Upper Saranac Lake where Thomas B. Blagden, Sr., 77-year-old father of Harry, Thomas, Jr., his wife, and Augustus Blagden, are staying.

The police protection was requested following a telephone call to his family from Harry Blagden in Cleveland in which he told how the kidnapers threatened the life of his father and two brothers "if anything went wrong."

Barr Keeps Press Away From 'Huddles'

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern and his independent partner, Commissioner C. M. Barr, today appeared to be in disagreement over nothing more important than a table—the press table occupied by newspapermen who report the Commissioners' meetings.

When he became chairman last month, McGovern ordered the press table placed immediately alongside the Commissioners' table.

But today the table was back an impressive 10 feet and reporters complained they couldn't hear what was said in the huddles. The table was moved on order of Commissioner Barr, it was said.

Mrs. Fiske, Stage Star, Dies in East

MINNIE MADDERN FISKE

DEATH SECRET 24 HOURS

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Her death unknown to the world for almost a day, the body of Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, one of America's most famous actresses, today reposed in an undertaker's parlor.

The woman who had charmed millions by her acting for more than 50 years died suddenly at the Long Island home of a friend. News of her passing was kept quiet for 24 hours.

She had been ill for many months, but her friends thought that her health had become improved. Heart disease struck her down.

The great comedienne was 67 years of age.

Mrs. Fiske was born in New Orleans. At 12, she was a theatrical prodigy, playing alternately the leading roles and old woman parts. At 15, she blossomed forth as a star under the name of Minnie Maddern. Among the plays for which she perhaps is best remembered were "Tess of the d'Ubervilles," "Becky Sharp," "The Rivals," "Salvation Nell," "Miss Nelly of New Orleans" and many Ibsen dramas.

Mrs. Fiske was seen in Pittsburgh last season in "Ladies of the Jury," and at that time professed to be in better health than for several years.

EXPLOSIVES FOUND IN VATICAN CASTLE

'Reds' Among Workmen on Estate About to Be Visited By Pontiff Held Schemers

International News Service.

ROME, Feb. 16. — Italian police today discovered a bomb in the Castel Gandolfo, the papal villa, 18 miles from Rome, which Pope Pius XI plans to visit in the near future when he makes his long-awaited exit from the Vatican.

Twenty workmen, engaged in rebuilding the villa in preparation for the Pope's visit, were arrested. Their homes were searched, and in one of them were found several infernal machines.

The arrests were made as a result of information received by Italian police that several suspected Communist agitators were among the workmen.

Only yesterday it was revealed that a bomb, now identified as of a hand grenade type, had been discovered in front of the central altar of the basilica of St. Peter's Church in Vatican City, where Pope Pius recently said mass in commemoration of his tenth anniversary as Pontiff. The day before, Premier Mussolini had knelt in prayer before the altar.

VATICAN PROPERTY

The Castel Gandolfo, a historic structure, has long been Vatican property. It has not been used in almost 70 years by any Pontiff, as up until three years ago, when the Lateran treaties between church and state were signed, the Popes remained in the Vatican as voluntary prisoners.

Pope Pius has long been expected to celebrate his "liberation" from the Vatican by journeying to Gandolfo for a brief vacation. He has made one or two brief trips outside the confines of the Vatican since the signing of the treaties, but they have always been carried out with utmost secrecy.

Vatican officials pressed their investigation today into the planting of the bomb in St. Peter's. They officially denied a report that the infernal machine had been discovered on a cabled "tip" from the United States.

SEARCH MADE

The Basilica was thoroughly searched on Wednesday, the day before Premier Mussolini made his historic visit to the Vatican. The bomb was not in place at that time, it was said, indicating it was planted on the following day, when Mussolini prayed at the central altar, or on the day following, when Pope Pius said mass in the Basilica in celebration of his tenth anniversary an Pontiff.

The watchmen who found the bomb immediately summoned Vatican officials, who placed the machine in the waters of a fountain near the Vatican City railway station. It remained soaking for two days and nights, when it was exploded in an artillery field. The blast was sufficient to have caused great damage had the bomb exploded in the church, it was said.

The bomb was the second discovered in St. Peter's in less than a year. Last summer a similar infernal machine was found and was exploded in a remote section of the Vatican gardens.

'Green Pastures' Role Jinx; Second 'Gabriel' Dies

Six times a week and Wednesday-Saturday matinees this 52-year-old "Gabriel" of the all-Negro Pulitzer prize play "The Green Pastures," bellowed a classic line:

"Gangway! Gangway for de Lawd Gawd Jehovah!"

And then in would walk "De Lawd."

The role of Gabriel in "Green Pastures" has been twice marked with tragedy. The original Gabriel was Charles Wesley Hill. He was killed by a motorcar during the New York run of the piece. His funeral was a Harlem event.

Davis, who took the Gabriel role in December, 1930, following Hill's death, had been ailing since November when "The Green Pastures" was playing in Chicago. When the Indianapolis engagement ended he went to a hospital as the troupe of Negro actors and choristers moved on to Cincinnati. His death yesterday was attribute to heart disease.

BANK AID BILL HELD DEMOCRATIC MEASURE BY GARNER

G. O. P. OPPOSED IT 30 YEARS, SAYS SPEAKER

Glass Calls for Prompt Vote in Senate; Limit To Smaller Banks Opposed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP.)—The Democrats laid claim to originating the Glass-Steagall credit expansion measure today as the bill moved toward a vote in the Senate.

Speaker Garner said the legislation had been advocated by "Democrats for 30 years and has been opposed by the Republicans and present administration until they finally saw it was sound and that it was needed."

He congratulated the administration for seeing the need for it.

CALLED IN SENATE

The bill passed yesterday by the House will be called up in the Senate late today by Senator Glass (Dem.) of Virginia, one of the co-authors.

Agreement was reached today among Senate leaders that the liberalized rediscounting provisions of the bill should be restricted to banks with a capital stock of $2,000,000 or less.

The original limitation put in by the Senate Banking Committee would restrict the privilege to banks of a capitalization of $500,000 or less. Senator Glass said that all but 136 of the 7,600 member banks of the Federal Reserve System had a capitalization of $2,000,000 or less.

Garner said former Senator Owen of Oklahoma and Jones of Arkansas sponsored the measure many years ago and the legislative principle had been a party policy for some time.

OPPOSE HOME LOANS

Meanwhile the American Bankers Association asked that the administration home loan bank bill be held up until it is seen how successful the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is in handling problems involving accumulated mortgages.

In a statement filed with the Senate banking subcommittee considering the home loan measure the association took the position that the Reconstruction Corporation could provide relief to present home owners.

The statement contended it was inadvisable to encourage home building "at this time."

Garner Scores Hoover 'Oral Economy'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(INS.)—The President and his administration were sharply criticized today by Speaker John N. Garner for their "oral economy gestures" which, he said, were not followed by constructive action to reduce expenditures.

A resolution, authorizing five House members to make a thorough and intensive survey to determine what governmental agencies can be abolished, will be introduced in the House for passage today, the Speaker declared.

Garner urged the unification of the Army and Navy and declared the House would approve such a proposal when it learned that a $50,000,000 annual saving could be effected without impairing the national defense. Garner said:

"Mr. Hoover and his administration have been here for three years and have done nothing but talk about economy. We are trying to give the country a practical demonstration of how savings may be effected.

"We have cut every appropriation bill and are going to continue that policy."

Dr. W. L. Henderson Slightly Improved

Dr. Daniel E. Sable, chief city physician, was said to be improving slowly in Mercy Hospital following an operation yesterday.

BLAGDEN FLEES KIDNAPERS

It was raining hard and I went to the cottage and prepared to retire early instead of going to the hockey game. I had just dumped out everything in my pockets on the bureau dresser when a knock sounded at the door. I opened it.

RINGLEADER APPEARS

A man I later learned was the leader of the kidnapers, walked in. He was a tall, thick-set, dark-haired man and really striking in appearance. He was wearing a popular sporting costume. He said:

"My phone is out of order. Can I use yours?"

I replied:

"Of course."

I let him in and showed him where the phone was and started to walk away. He called ou to me:

"Wait a minute."

When I turned around I faced a revolver which sent cold shivers up and down my spine. The man ordered me to keep absolutely quiet and said if I followed instructions everything would be okay.

We walked down to the road to a large sedan. Two other kidnapers, "Curly," who became my guard, and "Zeke" joined us. We drove through Lake Placid and past my camp where I saw several friends. Then we stopped for food and I was forced to drink some beer—good beer—and eat sandwiches.

DISCUSS RANSOM

Shortly afterward, I became drowsy and fell asleep. When I had come to, "Jimmy," the immaculate leader of the gang, and I discussed how much money I could raise for ransom and agreed on $1,000 after I convinced them that I was not the multi-millionaire they though I was. I believe they made a mistake in kidnaping me and that they thought they were getting Harriman or someone else.

Jimmy dictated a letter which I wrote to my brother at the camp instructing him to have $1,000 in $50 bills in a brown envelope at Tupper Lake Junction Sunday noon.

Then Jimmy told me we were going away and made me shave off my mustache so I would not be recognized. With my three original kidnapers we got on a public bus with several other people.

I saw a sign which read, "Albany Electric Sign Company," so I guessed we were in Albany. We traveled through Syracuse and stopped again at a suburban house. It was at this house that my captors first began to mistreat me.

'DOUBLE-CROSSER'

Jimmy accused me:

"You're the biggest two-faced double-rosser ever."

I asked him what he meant and he replied:

We started again, this time in a light delivery truck with myself and Curly in the rear end.

I was getting awfully sleepy and half dozed off on this trip. We were making fast time, but I had no idea in what direction. Then we stopped and Jimmy and Zeke gout ou to eat. During the entire time of my captivity I had been waiting a chance to get away and this seemed my opportunity.

ATTACKS GUARD

Curly kept his gun in his right pocket—next to me. Without warning I plunged my fist into his stomach with al lthe force I could muster and grabbed for the gun. He couldn't shoot because I had his throat with my other hand.

I got the gun and beat him over the head until I was exhausted. Then I got afraid—afraid that I had killed the man and would find myself in a strange town without corroboration for my wild tale. I broke out of the truck and ran madly as long as I could.

Then, after getting my breath, I asked a man where I was. When he said Cleveland, I thought of Mr. Peck and I inquired the direction to his house. I didn't have any money, so I had to walk. It took about two hours, but here I am, glad I got off so easily.

Costello Suffers Apoplectic Stroke

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16—(INS.)—Stricken with apoplexy, Maurice Costello, film actor, and one-time matinee idol, was critically ill today in a hospital.

Costello, a former resident of Pittsburgh, is the father of Helene and Dolores (Mrs. John Barrymore) Costello, film actresses. Costello had been in apparently good health for years.

Nine Aboard Plane Rescued From Sea

ROME, Feb. 16—(AP.)—Seven passengers and two pilots were rescued from a twin-motored Italian seaplane 50 miles off Malta today by the British destroyer Brilliant.

It was explained that the seaplane had come down in the ocean to repair a motor, and the ship was unable to take off because of a heavy sea.

School's Stolen Grid Togs Found in Mine

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Feb. 16—(AP.)—Athletic equipment of the Waynesburg High School football team, stolen from the school building last December, was found today in an abandoned coal mine. The equipment consisted of 14 sweaters, two footballs, boxing gloves, stockings and shoes. Everything was in good condition.

REJECT HOOVER AS RELIEF HEAD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(INS.)—A proposal to give President Hoover broad powers to distribute a $375,000,000 unemployment relief fund among the states was rejected by the overwhelming vote of 7 to 76 in the Senate this afternoon after it served to shatter the non-partisan harmony existing since the start of the session.

The plan was proposed by Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, as a substitute to the pending insurgent bill providing direct relief for the jobless. It was assailed as a political maneuver by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, who objected to giving the President a relief fund for distribution just on the eve of a presidential campaign.

The plan was beaten when even administration Senators joined with the solid Democratic and Insurgent ranks to oppose it. Those favoring it were Senators Capper, Couzens, Davis, Hatfield, McNary, Robinson (Indiana) and Vandenberg, all Republicans. Even Senator Watson, the Republican floor leader and Senator Fess, the Republican national chairman voted against it.

U. S. GAS TAX PROPOSED BY MILLS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Secretary of the Treasury Mills today recommended to the House Ways and Means Committee additional taxes designed to raise $337,000,000 to carry out the budget balancing program. These recommendations were to supplement the original Treasury estimates submitted in Decembr.

The estimates were made necessary because of a shrinkage in the anticipated returns of taxes recommended in December.

1 CENT ON GAS

The Treasury's proposals were:

Seven per cent tax on domestic consumption of electricity and manufactured and natural gas to produce $94,000,000.

One-half per cent increase on corporation income tax, in addition to one-half per cent previously recommended, to raise $17,000,000.

An increase of income surtaxes to raise $50,000,000.

BILLION NEEDED

On the basis of figures recently submitted by the Treasury, Congress must levy $1,241,000,000 in new taxes to carry on the budget balancing program. Mills said that an additional $118,000,000 should be shaved off federal expenditures, reducing the total new tax burden to $1,123,000,000.

The Treasury adhered to its original position of selecting various industries for a sales tax rather than recommending a general manufacturers' sales tax.

Mills also supported the original tax increase proposal made to Congress which included a tax on automobile sales, radios, theater and other amusement admissions, bank checks, telephone and telegraph messages and additional tobacco taxes.

HOME RULE DRY PLAN BEATEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP.)—A proposed constitutional amendment for a "home rule" plan of dealing with prohibition was voted down 14 to 9 today by a House committee.

Its proponents immediately gave notice they would press for a House roll call.

This action was taken by the Judiciary Committee on a resolution sponsored by the House anti-dry bloc. They planned to demand a vote on the floor through the new House rule permitting such action on a petition bearing 145 signatures.

Meanwhile a Senate Judiciary sub-committee was receiving testimony on resolutions by Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, which would give the people greater voice in the ratificatian of constitutional amendments.

Four Finish Dance Begun Thansgiving

Ex-Treasury Head Picture of Health On Arrival

Andrew W. Mellon, Ambassador to Great Britain, enjoying the best of health and looking it, arrived in Pittsburgh today to attend to private business before sailing the middle of March for his new post in London.

He will rest here for the remainder of the week at his home in Woodland road, and visit with his son, Paul Mellon. He will then return to the East. While Mr. Mellon has not fully decided on his future plans, it was learned that he expects to go to Great Britain alone.

The former Secretary of the Treasury will observe the seventy-eighth anniversary of his birth on March 24, and the indications are that he will be in England at that time.

Upon his arrival in Pittsburgh this morning Mr. Mellon motored direct to his home, where he had breakfast.

Later in the morning he went to his private office in the Mellon Bank Building to attend to private affairs and complete arrangements for his trip abroad. The actual date of his sailing has not as yet been made known.

Einstein Turns Mind To Atom Mystery

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—Albert Einstein today turned the power of his genius from the biggest problem in the universe—the relativity of space—to the smallest problem—that of solving the mystery of the structure of the atom.

He announced his new task and indicated the completion of his present work in one breath during a brief speech at the University of California at Los Angeles before the biggest audience he has had in his two visits to America.

American Actress Hostess to Royalty

LONDON, Feb. 16—(INS.)—Mrs. Cosmo Kyrle Bellew, an American motion picture actress, today was the unexpected hostess of King George and Queen Mary when they visited a fashionable West End nursing home where she is a patient.

The King and Queen chatted affably with Mrs. Bellew for several minutes, inquiring if she were recuperating satisfactorily from an operation. Mrs. Bellew is the wife of a British-born actor.

its only object is to protect the lives and property of Japanese nationals in Shanghai. He said:

"The next 24 hours will determine our action. Our policy will be to send adequate strength quickly when needed, and withdraw when that necessity is removed. Our militarists are well prepared for any eventuality."

U. S. Admiral Protests Marine Shelling

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(AP.)—Admiral Taylor, commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, has filed another protest with Vice Admiral Nomura as a result of Japanese shells falling in the United States Marine sector of the International Settlement today.

No casualties were reported by Taylor.

He added in his radio message that Japanese army troops were relieving Japanese sailors in the Chapei sector and that the Japanese were extending their lines in the Woosung area.

Japan Resumes Heavy Shelling at Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Feb. 17 (Wednesday, 1 a. m.)—(INS.)—Heavy shelling was heard along the Chapei front early today, leading to reports the Japanese were commencing their long-expected offensive.

The shelling ceased after 15 minutes, but began again shortly afterward.

The detonations were so str that windows in the Internatic Settlement rattled and shook, awakening foreign residents from their sleep.

It was estimated that 20,000 Japanese Marines and infantrymen had been placed in strategic positions along the Hongkew boundary and west of Chapei in preparation for the "pincers" movement expected to drive the Chinese into the International Settlement.

Hopes that Chinese military leaders would bow to the ultimatum of Gen. Uyeda, Japanese military commander, and withdraw the required distance from Shanghai, gradually diminished as the hours passed with the Chinese remaining firmly entrenched.

The situation at Woosung remained unchanged, with Japanese artillery and naval guns continuing to batter the remains of the forts and reduce the nearby village to shambles. Despite the ceaseless bombardment, however, the Chinese guardians of the forts remained at their posts, replying occasionally to the Japanese fire.

King George Confers On Chinese Crisis

LONDON, Feb. 16—(INS.)—Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, spent half an hour with King George at Buckingham palace today, discussing the Sino-Japanese situation and disarmament.

An indication of the extreme gravity with which the British government views the Shanghai situation was given today by the Daily Herald. The newspaper said:

"Utmost anxiety prevails in official circles."

"Japan is threatening, if an economic boycott is placed against her by the League Powers, to send a fleet along the Chinese coast and occupy the main towns.

"A lightning attack upon Singapore is also being talked of as Japan's retaliatory measure against Britain as well as a strategic blow to operations of the British navy in the Far East.

"Once the crisis developes, the dragging into a quarrel of Great Britain and the United States on one side and France on the other may only be a question of hours."

Americans Quitting Cities in War Zone

NANKING, Feb. 16—(INS.)—Acting on instructions from United States Consul-General Cunningham in Shanghai, American women and children today began evacuating cities along the Shanghai-Nanking railway.

Eighteen Americans arrived here late this afternoon from Wusih to board the U. S. S. Butterfield, which will take them to Shanghai.

2 Schoolmasters for Every Soldier Urged for Peace

GENEVA, Feb. 16—(AP.)—Two schoolmasters for every soldier was the suggestion for disarmament made to the world conference today by Dr. Ernesto Bosch, Argentine representative. This, he added, is the proportion for which Argentine budget provides. He said:

"Argentina's expenditure for her army amounts only to one-sixth of her entire national budget, and this expense is decreasing, while the expenditure for education has increased to a great extent."

Argentina's program, he said, would be acceptance of the draft convention as the basis of discussions in the conference, permanent international supervision of armaments, no ships above 10,000 for countries not a party to the Washington and London agreements, and a provision that foodstuffs be not considered contraband of war.

He said Argentina wishes to co-operate in any great enterp[illegible] for reducing or limiting armaments, and cited agreements which have been made among the republics of South America.

Dr. Bosch said the Kellogg-[illegible] pact "hasn't succeeded in [illegible]pelling the anxieties of these [illegible]ter times."

Mate Killed by Auto, Wife Dies of Shock

The shock of her husband's death from being struck by an automobile was partly blamed today for the death of Mrs. Sarah Cunningham, 63, of Penrod street.

The husband, James, 63, died February 9 in Allegheny General Hospital two days after he was hit by an automobile at Ridge and Allegheny avenues, driven by H. M. Hallett, of 324 Forest avenue, Ben Avon.

The day of his death Mrs. Cunningham was stricken with pneumonia and she died Sunday in the Presbyterian Hospital, five days after her husband.

BANDITS ELUDE POLICE IN TWO BOROUGHS

Beat and Rob Their Victim In Turtle Creek, Stage Holdup in Edgewood

An armed band of five men, wanted by police for a half dozen holdups in the last week, added two more attacks to their string and outdistanced the police cars of two boroughs in wild pursuits early today.

The bandits have been operating for nearly a week in an automobile, police say, was stolen from Edward J. Herron, 615 Second street, Wilkinsburg. They have been perpetrating holdups nightly.

ATTENDANT ATTACKED

In the Gravity Filling Station, Seventh street and Airbrake avenue, Turtle Creek, two of the highwaymen drew guns on Albert Clendenen, 21, of 1526 Mobile avenue, Turtle Creek, the attendant, after they had purchased gasoline.

Forcing him into the station, one struck the youth in the face with the barrel of a revolver and left him bleeding after emptying the cash drawer. It was the third time Clendenen has been held up.

Two of the gang leveled guns at Carl Lewis, 1030 Savannah street, Edgewood, near his home, early today, robbed him of $13 and escaped in an automobile with three accomplices.

POLICE CAR ELUDED

The Edgewood Borough police car sighted the bandit car while cruising near Frick Park. Observing the pursuit, the bandits picked up speed, and the police cruiser was lost after a wild ride.

A half hour later the Wilkinsburg police scout car sighted the stolen sedan at Hay and Whitney streets. Again the bandits discerned the pursuit, and outdistanced the police in a chase through Edgewood, Swissvale and North Braddock.

2 in Auto Robbed In Riverview Park

Police today are searching for the bandits who held up Miss Emma Johnson, of 1503 Arch street, and her escort, James O'Donnell, of 841 Holcomb street, while the couple were in their automobile parked in Riverview Park, near the Davis Avenue Bridge. The bandits fled after taking O'Donnell's wallet, containing $43, according to a police report.

Motoring Robber Gets Woman's Purse

The purse of Mrs. Harriet B. Young, of 141 Clairhaven street, containing $14, was snatched last night by a robber-motorist who stopped the woman while she was walking near her home to inquire direction of her. The thief did not get out of his car, police reported.

1932 Auto Drivers' Licenses Now Legal

HARRISBURG, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The use of 1932 motor vehicle operator's licenses became legal yesterday for 675,000 persons, the Bureau of Motor Vehicles announced. Motorists who have not obtained licenses for 1932 have until February 29 to obtain them before the 1931 licenses become invalid.

COLLEEN MOORE

Miss Moore's marriage at Fort Pierce, Fla., to Broker Alfred P. Scott, New York, means, her mother today at Hollywood explains, that she's retiring from the movies definitely unless a "flattering offer" is made her.

LAUGHLIN WEDS CYNTHIA PRATT

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—The wedding of Cynthia Anne Pratt to William McKennan Laughlin, of the Pittsburgh steel family, at Grace Church here this afternoon, was one of the biggest events of the New York society season.

Miss Pratt, daughter of Mrs. Charles A. Cartwright, of London, and granddaughter of the late Henry H. Rogers, one of the organizers of the Standard Oil Company, had Doris Duke, one of the world's richest heiresses, as one of her bridesmaids.

Mrs. Geoffrey McNair Gates, the former Jane Shonnard, was matron of honor, and Virginia Thaw maid of honor.

In addition to the Duke heiress, the attendants included Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker II, the former Alexandra Van R. Devereaux, of Philadelphia; Conway Clark, also from Philadelphia, and Lilias Kent, of New York.

Dix Under Knife At Johns Hopkins

BALTIMORE, Feb. 16.—(Universal.)—Richard Dix, movie star, yesterday underwent a minor operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he has been a patient for several days. He may be obliged to undergo treatment for a week or more.

Dix came here a week ago from the West Coast and took an apartment near the hospital. He was known as Bert Johnson, but was able to keep his identity secret only a few days.

Bystander Prevents Leap From Bridge

Alertness of William H. Robbins, of 1302 Howard street, today saved the life of a man who, police reported, tried to jump off the Seventh Street Bridge. Robbins grabbed the man and pulled him back from the railing. The man is listed as John Fucich, 38, of Madison avenue.

Helping Hand Given $15,000 by County

The County Commissioners today gave the Helping Hand $15,000 after a plea by Dr. C. B. Schildecker. During discussion of the motion Commissioner W. D. Mansfield announced he would give $500 of his salary as state Senator to the Helping Hand.

Thief Returns Workman's $4,000, Plus $20 Bonus

George Spudich, 60-year-old mechanic, of 11 Freeport street, Etna, today got back the $4,000 stolen from the lining of his coat as it hung in the Spang-Chalfant mill three weeks ago, plus $20 which a conscience-stricken thief evidently threw in for good measure.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park handed back the savings of 37 years to the overjoyed worker, after having received the money from Attorney Frank A. Bogadek, 434 Diamond street, who in turn had been given the sum by the man who stole it.

Accompanied by two county detectives, Spudich left the prosecutor's office to deposit the money in the First National Bank of Etna. He said:

"No longer will I sew money in my coat."

Park said that while professional courtesy forbade Attorney Bogadek disclosing the name of his client he had ordered detectives to continue their hunt for the thief. He said:

"Mr. Spudich is to be congratulated that the thief returned the money to as honest an attorney as Mr. Bogadek, and also the thief is to be congratulated because of the integrity of his counsel."

BOMBAY OUSTS GANDHI'S GIRL DISCIPLE

English Miss Madeline Slade Given Day to Leave City, Warned as 5 Die in Riots

International News Service.

BOMBAY, Feb. 16.—Miss Madeline Slade, English girl disciple of Mahatma Gandhi, today was ordered to leave Bombay before tomorrow night and not to return without obtaining official permission.

Miss Slade, who renounced the western world for the doctrines of the East and who has been the aged Nationalist leader's personal attendant during the past few years, had remained, until today, the one person of the Gandhi household to escape punishment for unlawful demonstrations.

Today, however, the Bombay chief of police ordered Miss Slade from the city, warning her to abstain from further activities against the government in behalf of the Nationalist cause.

At the same time the Congress situation suddenly burst into flame again in several different parts of the country.

Five persons were killed and several hurt seriously when police were compelled to fire upon a crowd of Nationalists in Patna.

Police reinforcements were called out in Bombay, Thana and Tarapur after demonstrators made determined attacks upon government forces in each of these cities.

Poisoner of 15 Dogs Sought by Society

With reward notices posted in the neighborhood, agents of the Humane Society are seeking the poisoner of 15 dogs in the vicinity of Termon avenue and Morrell street today.

The pets remaining in the district are being guarded carefully to prevent further activity of the culprit. Edwin Smith, the society's agent, said the full penalty of the law will be exacted if the person is caught.

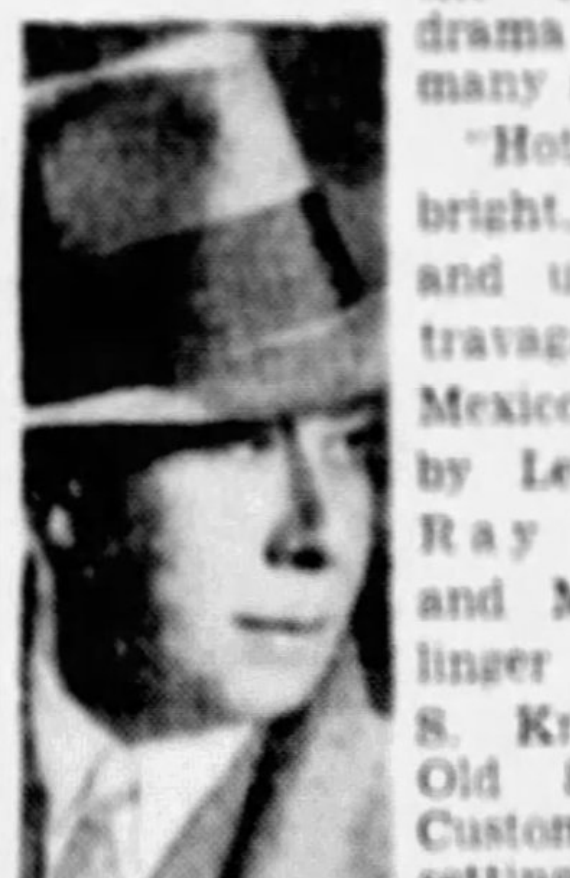
ZIEGFELD SHOW BIG 'HIT'

'Hot-Cha' Brightens Capital With Its Lavish Settings

By MABELLE JENNINGS

Dramatic Editor, Washington Herald.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Last evening at the National with the premiere of Prof. Florenz Ziegfeld's "Hot-Cha" we walked, as unsuspecting as so many plain-clothes men, straight into the teeth of one of the loveliest and most lavish affairs to brighten the melancholy drama days in many a moon.



Mr. Lahr

"Hot-Cha" is a bright, knowing and urbane extravaganza of Mexico, the book by Lew Brown, Ray Henderson and Mark Hellinger from H. S. Kraft's "An Old Spanish Custom," and settings by Joseph Urban.

'ALKY' BATTLES BULLS

It's all about a night club comedian who goes to Mexico and finds himself an involuntary matador. One of his ancestors, it appears, had been quite a man-about-arenas, and if tossing the bull doesn't come naturally to "Alky," it at least comes comically.

Bert Lahr is the drafted matador, with a part tailored to his eccentric drolleries — good lines and really bright songs—he is simply elegant. He mangles the English language, and his elastic pan has never known fresher frenzy.

When he is brought face to face with a flesh-and-blood bull; when he is taken to task by the Governor for his temerity on the eve of the fight; in fact, most of the time when he holds the stage it becomes such violent, unceasing ludicrousness as to leave the spectator weak from laughing.

Majorie White, the tow-headed split-pint comedienne, was, I suppose, as gifted in the days of her cinema cavortings as she is today. The trouble is that it took me a go at her in three dimensions to properly appreciate her.

SWELL BUFFOON

About two minutes after her first entrance last evening there came over me the realization that I was watching a pretty doggone swell buffoon, and it took no more than her grand "I Want Another Portion of That" turn with Bert Lahr to bring on a bad attack of what is known in professional playgoing circles as critics' capitulation. Her "Jose, Can't You See" but made a bad matter worse.

In June MacCloy, the hot shots of "Hot-Cha" have another blonde (whom the gentleman at my right kept insisting resembled Jean Harlowe) about whom it is no chore at all to work up enthusiasm, even before she unlooses her elegant Lee Morse-like voice or that Little Old New York tune.

At least a couple of the spasms of excitement that set the well-dressed, high-spirited first night audience to cheering were occasioned by the verve and voice of Tito Coral, the South American baritone, who, like the Hernandez brothers (Gonzalo, Hector and Francisco) likewise featured, has been featured on more than one of the Pan-American Union concerts. His "For You" is something enchanting in itself, and Coral rises to it nobly.

EXQUISITE MOMENTS

There are many thoroughly exquisite moments in "Hot-Cha." Brilliant interludes that flash color, keen dialogue—if broad, lovely songs, deep-fringed shawls, sombreros, bright silks and youth and beauty. Individually and collectively they are worthy of more than a passing word, but the hour grows late and a mention must suffice. These then, without regard to the order of their listing, are some of the highlights of the new Ziegfeld opera:

The teasing, tantalizing "You Can Make My Life a Bed of Roses," which comes early in the first act.

musical show requires also, is Buddy Rogers, another well-known performer come out of the West. Rogers, a handsome lad with a disarming pleasantness, carries off his first legitimate part with eclat, not to say elan. He can also sing, play any number of musical instruments and wave a mean baton and give the tired business women of the audience something to remember "Hot-Cha" by.

Mr. Rogers

A heralded young foreign actress in the person of Revva Reyes makes her first appearance in an American production in Dr. Ziegfeld's newest offering glorifying the American musical show, and disports herself with variety and charm. Her "Conchita" was one of the most colorful turns of the show.

OVERMAN LAUDED

I was much enthused by Ziegfeld's signing of Lynne Overman, one of our theater's brighter comedians and a performer whose voice has always intrigued me tremendously. My professional acquaintance with Mr. Overman dates back to the days of the Garrick Stock Company under the direction of George Marshall and Monta Bell, in one of the productions of which I created an atmospheric role (the subsequent offerings of the players, of whom Mr. Overman was a particular bright star, did not, by an odd coincidence, require my talents). The point is that even in those days Lynne Overman had a large personal following. His deft playing in "Hot-Cha" is calculated to make it even greater.

June Knight gives a sincere and appealing performance in the ingenue role. She is blonde and slender and sweet of voice, and while a recent illness prevents her from taking a more active part in the proceedings at this time, I am given to understand that she is a dancer of considerable promise and not a little fulfillment.

MORE HIGHLIGHTS

Marjorie White's "Jose, Can't You See"— a swell tune and made to order for the half-pint comedienne.

The lovely shawl dance by the entire ensemble, which, late in the first act, serves to introduce Veloz and Yolanda, the DeMarcos and Yakoloff—all artists of distinction and smart delivery.

Bert Lahr's "I Make Up For That in Other Ways"— a goofy comedy song made practically classic.

June Knight's exquisite rendition of "There I Go Dreaming Again," which is something to set anyone to romancing.

Loud and lusty cheers, then, for "Hot-Cha" plot, principals and performances. And we must not forget the dancing girls. To see them step and stomp and whirl, to watch the high fettle with which they go through their intricate and infinitely nice routines, and at the next moment to hear them warbling, and intelligibly, is something pretty darned swell.

2 FIRES BLOCK DOWNTOWN TRAFFIC

Blaze Following Explosion Destroys 4 Wall Homes; Four Firemen Injured

Fire threatened a downtown building today and an explosion caused flames which destroyed four homes in Wall and injured four firemen during the night.

Early downtown traffic was jammed when flames broke out in the penthouse of a four-story building at 641 Liberty avenue and threatened the elevator shaft. Five companies confined flames to the penthouse, saving the offices of John Hughes Optical Company, Fedeles beauty salon and Schume's Health Institute. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

County authorities today were investigating the Wall explosion.

Following the blast the three-story frame residence of John Rule burst into flames. Eight other members of the Rule family, aroused from their beds, fled to the street uninjured.

Besides the Rule home, the residences of John Turbak, Dempsey Bryant and O. Kuran, the latter two Negroes, were destroyed by the blaze.

SODA DRINKERS HOLD UP STORE

Three "soda water bandits" held up the May Drug Company store at Murray avenue and Darlington road, one of Squirrel Hill's busiest corners, at midnight, and escaped with the contents of the cash drawer after driving three women and two men into the cellar.

The five were N. J. Hercovitz, the manager; Stella Presky, of 6335 Phillips avenue, and William Bell, of 1633 Chislett street, clerks, and Mrs. Minnie Hercovitz and Miss H. Diamond, of 6378 Morrowfield avenue, patrons.

The clerks were preparing to close the store when one of three youths, who were sipping soda water at the fountain, drew a gun, arose, and announced:

"This a holdup. But don't anybody get excited. We only want the store's money, and we don't want to be forced to hurt anybody."

Thiel Athletics To Be 'Simon Pure'

GREENVILLE, Pa., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Thiel College today announced adoption of a "Simon pure" athletic policy and abolition of athletic scholarships.

Thiel is the second Western Pennsylvania college to go "amateur" in its athletics recently. Allegheny College inaugurated a program designed to remove over-emphasis on athletics more than a year ago.

MISS TALMADGE SEEKS DIVORCE

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—Norma Talmadge, beautiful film star, within 10 days will sail for Paris to divorce Joseph Schenck, screen producer, she announced today in a telephone call from New York to a Hollywood friend. Miss Talmadge declared:

"There is no other man. I have no intention of remarrying. I shall always consider Mr. Schenck my best friend. If I needed a friend tomorrow he would be the first one to whom I would appeal. We have many business interests in common in New York and California."

Her statement that she does not plan to rewed was interpreted to indicate she would not marry Gilbert Roland, film star, whose name has been linked with that of the actress.

MOTIVE HIDDEN IN HASTY TRIP ON LINER

Fiance Reveals Deb Was 'Broke,' Unable to Trace Source of 'Death' Cable

International News Service.

BOSTON, Feb. 16.—Startling new developments came today in the baffling enigma of the strange death of Miss Elizabeth Barrett Cook at sea off Gibraltar. These were:

1—Presence of a powerful, mysterious German drug found in the organs of the girl at Gibraltar by medical experts, who have communicated with officials at Berlin for further information concerning the narcotic, according to word reaching relatives here.

3—The 20-year-old girl of wealth was penniless except for her fare, yet she did not ask the local administrators of her estate for money.

4—All efforts have been balked in an attempt to identify the mysterious signature "Helen James" on the fake message.

5—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson advised Arnold to communicate with Capt. Horace Uncles, of the Chinese Prince, upon arrival of the steamship here late tomorrow.

6—Mrs. Mable E. Cook, wealthy mother of the girl, and her other daughter, Louise, sailed from Gibraltar aboard the S. S. Biancamano and are due in New York on Monday, but at Gibraltar they made no mention of the hoax cablegram.

When news of Miss Cook's death came to Arnold, he immediately cabled condolences to her mother in Naples. It was reported there that Mrs. Cook was surprised, as she had understood he had died, as reported in the fake cablegram. However, when she reached Gibraltar yesterday she gave no indication of knowledge of the cablegram.

Girl Ill in Cabin, Inquest Reveals

GIBRALTAR, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Private advices today said a post mortem examination of the body of Miss Elizabeth Cook, of Boston, Mass., who died aboard the steamer Chinese Prince after receiving a mysterious cablegram from Boston at Naples, Italy, saying her fiance was dead, disclosed traces of a narcotic.

At the inquest into Miss Cook's death the master of the Chinese Prince testified that Miss Cook had appeared to be in good health, but that on one day when she failed to appear for breakfast or luncheon he accompanied several women passengers to her cabin and found her sleeping restlessly with a high temperature.

The temperature increased and he thought Miss Cook had double pneumonia. He did what he could, but the young woman died before medical advice came by radio. He told of having found the tablets of narcotic in the cabin, but said he had found no letter except the cablegram telling of the death of her fiance.

Stalled Three Days, Trains Escape Snow

DENVER, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The dispatcher for the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad said today he had been informed a combination passenger and freight train, stalled for three days near the top of Cumbres Pass, backed into Alamosa late yesterday. Another passenger train from Durango reached the top of the Continental Divide and was reported making slow progress down the blizzard swept mountainside toward Alamosa tday.

Five Suspects Held In Braddock Holdups

GREENSBURG, Feb. 16.—Five Pittsburgh district Negroes were being held by state police here today, having confessed, according to the officers, three Braddock holdups.

The prisoners gave their names as Clarence Smith, 34, of Trafford; William Pearson, 30, Braddock; George McKinney, 28, of Braddock; Newtie Elston, 29, of Rankin, and Edward Davis, 34, of Rankin.

City Supply Bids Scanned by Dunlap

Scores of bids for automobile tires, supplies, medical equipment and other sundries for city activities were being tabulated today by Supplies Director W. R. Dunlap. Dunlap said the awards would be announced within the next few days. The bids were opened yesterday in Council Chamber with nearly 125 bidders present.

Highway Patrol Sleuths Scan Inspection Frauds

HARRISBURG, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The Department of Revenue has stationed state highway patrolmen in civilian clothes in the Pittsburgh area to investigate reports that some official inspection stations are giving approved inspection stickers with sales of gasoline and for a fee of 50 cents, without any inspection.

Capt. Phil J. Dorr, assistant superintendent of the patrol, said today he had been promised the full co-operation of the Pittsburgh Police Department.

The department also announced that its examining station in Washington boulevard, Pittsburgh, is to be closed against night parking because motorists are using it for petting parties. Plans are being made for beautification of this examining area, which the state leases from the city for $1.

KUHN FUNERAL THURSDAY

Mr. Kuhn

BOARD OPPOSES ACCOUNTING

Walter W. Riehl, taxpayer, who filed a bill in equity against the Board of Poor Directors asking for an accounting, is not entitled to one, the Poor Directors, through counsel, contended today. The argument was before Judges F. P. Patterson, S. J. Snee and W. H. McNaugher. Counsel was given three days to file briefs.

Thomas F. Garrahan today challenged the jurisdiction of the Court of Common Pleas to order an accounting, claiming the board had complied with the law, filed its report with the Controller and that as no objection was raised the report stands.

Kashmir Maharajah Facing Abdication

JUMMU, Kashmir, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—There is a belief here that the unrest and rebellion seething in Kashmir may force the abdication of the Maharajah in favor of his infant son who would rule under a regency dominated by Great Britain.

Hindu organizations throughout India are appealing to the viceroy to prevent the Moslems from establishing this province as a part of the Moslem empire in Northern India.

Eckener Announces Ten Trips for Graf

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Dr. Hugo Eckener announced today that the dirigible Graf Zeppelin would make four trips to South America during March, April and May of this year. He said six other trips, as yet undesignated as to termini, were planned between August and November.

SLOGAN SPURS LEGION JOB AID

Meetings were held last night by 14 Allegheny County American Legion posts as they prepared to enter the nation-wide drive of the legion to provide 1,000,000 jobs for unemployed within 30 days. Nine of the posts adopted the "job in every city block" resolution.

County Commander John J. Deller said last night many of the posts already have placed unemployed men in positions. The legionnaires will be supported by a score of business men.

SURPLUS SEEN IN GRADUATES

A surplus in college graduates over positions available if graduations increase was forecast today by Col. R. I. Rees, assistant vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, before the personnel conference of the American Management Association in its second day at the William Penn Hotel.

Austria Makes Plea For Economic Relief

VIENNA, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Austria appealed to all its neighbors and other nations today to join in negotiations for an economic rapprochement.

The appeal was voiced by Chancellor Karl Buresch, who told the German, British, French and Italian ministers that his country no longer could endure the "tangled paralysis of trade in Central Europe."

JOBLESS PARTY NEAR, SAYS COX

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Feb. 16.—The political organization of the unemployed is already in the making and the handwriting is on the wall for the old organizations which forced this new party into the field, the Rev. James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church, declared in an address at Unionville, New Sewickley Township, last night. Father Cox spoke in the Unionville Methodist Episcopal Church at the invitation of the official board of the church.

The Pittsburgh priest, who several weeks ago led the jobless army to Washington, charged that the two old parties have their backs to the wall. He said:

"President Hoover admits that the country has not been compelled to face an issue as serious since the Civil War. He at last admits there is danger and that a great effort must be made to readjust things. But there still is nothing but words, words, words."

SEES RAIL LOAN AS AID HERE

A large part of any loan which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may make to the Pennsylvania Railroad will be spent in Pittsburgh mills and factories for materials, Elisha Lee, vice president of the road, said here today.

He said he did not know how soon work would be started on the new Pennsylvania passenger station here, but that the project would be "mere window dressing" compared to that which a reconstruction loan would bring.

Taking the Pittsburgh division as an example, he said, even in these times more than 100,000 tons of freight a day is moving. If transferred to five-ton trucks more than 20,000 would be required, 14,000 running east and 6,000 west, he said.

Making a plea against unfair competition, he said:

Policeman Shoots Gunman in Duel

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—A gun duel between Policeman William Snow and an unidentified gunman occured early today in front of the home of William F. Bliss, general manager of Century Air Lines. Pilots of the Century lines have been locked out for 10 days, and Snow was detailed to Bliss' home as a result.

In an exchange of several shots, the gunman was injured slightly, but escaped.

Cleveland Returns To Elected Mayor

CLEVELAND, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—This city's most exciting election in years was held today, as thousands of voters turned out to choose a Mayor. The winner will be Cleveland's first elected-Mayor in eight years. During that period this was the largest city ever to use the manager plan of government. The city voted to abandon the manager system last November.

COUNCIL ACTING ON PENNSY JOB PLANS HERE

English Heads Movement to Urge Railway Seeking U.S. Loan, to Begin Local Work

Discussion of a resolution to determine whether the Pennsylvania Railroad contemplates inclusion of improvements here in its loan request from the federal government, was to be held by City Council today.

Request has been made by Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania [illegible] loan from [illegible] Finance Corporation [illegible] electrification of [illegible] between New York and Washington.

A resolution introduced in Council by W. [illegible] English pointed out that because manufacturers and others here pay thousands of dollars in taxes and freight tonnage yearly some provision should be made for improvements by the railroad here.

The city entered into an agreement with the railroad in [illegible] for numerous projects in connection with the proposed new station, but up to the present time nothing has been done.

If English's resolution passes, President John S. Herron will be instructed to confer with Atterbury to learn whether any action on the local situation will be taken.

Pennsy Installing Big New Turntable

With 65 men on the job and the use of two [illegible] a new 110-foot turntable weighing about 95 tons, was to be installed at the Pitcairn terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad today, replacing the old turntable within eight hours of the start of operations. The new turntable, capable of turning the largest engine used by the railroad, was to be installed under the supervision of C. W. Van Nort, division engineer, and W. C. Corman, master carpenter, of the Pittsburgh division.

HOW FLOYD GIBBONS LOST HIS EYE IN FRANCE

Three Bullets Fell Headline Hunter In Wheatfield

By HENRY WALES
International News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.— After Gen. Pershing's arrival in France there was a lull in American activities while the First and Second Divisions were being taken over and established in their training quarters in the Gondrecourt area prior to going into the line.

The general established his headquarters at Chaumont, not far away. As the time approached when the nucleus of the A. E. F. would be formed, American press headquarters were opened at Neufchateau nearby.

At Neufchateau Floyd lived in an abandoned brewery with another correspondent. The Army provided automobiles for the accredited correspondents with sergeants as chauffeurs. Unlike the British, Belgian, French, Italian and German armies, the A. E. F. permitted these newspapermen to go anywhere they chose along the front unaccompanied by officers.

Goes to Front

Floyd stuck with the first outfits in line near Luneville and over in the Woevre in front of Toul. After the mighty German drive in March, 1918, he went to Beauvais for the American counter-attack at Cantigny.

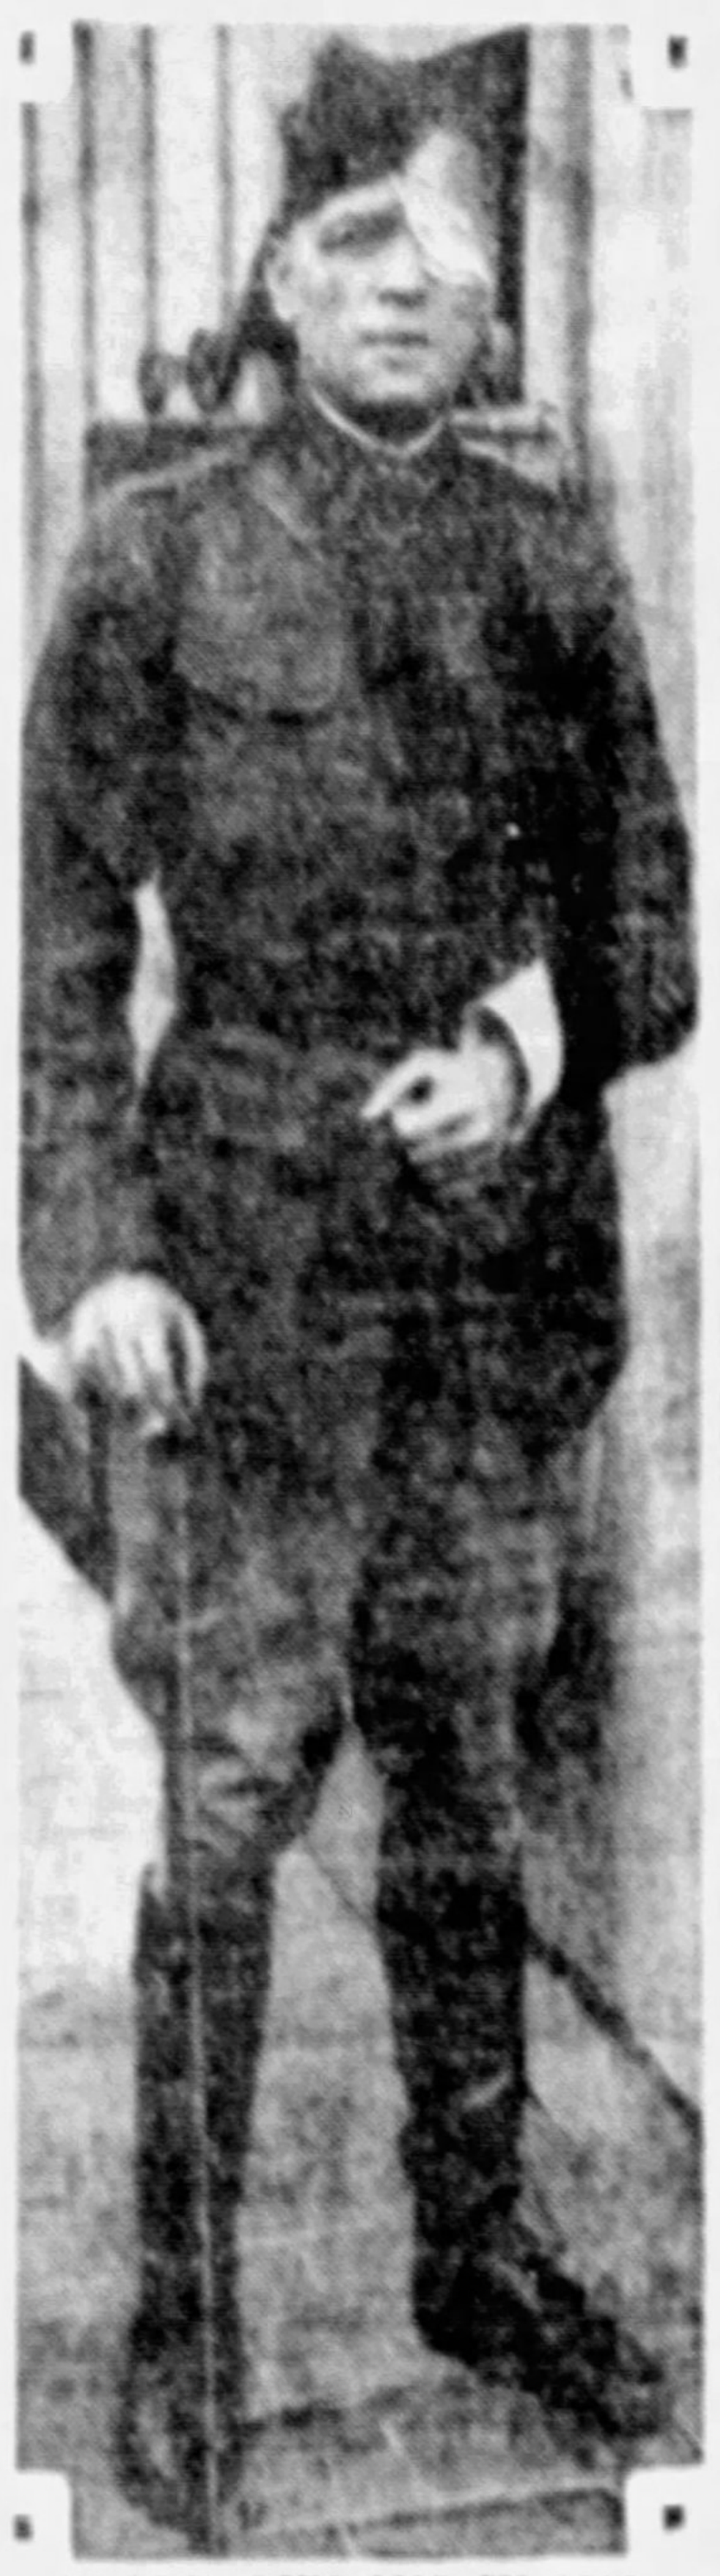
He swept north to the British front afterward to cover the hammer-blows of Hindenburg against Mont Kemmel and the drive against Ypres for the channel ports. Then the terrific enemy attacks against the Chemin des Dames, on March 27, called him to that sector.

Sweeping through in a massed surprise attack, the Germans crushed everything before them, killing, wounding, capturing, routing the two British divisions and the French holding the line. Storming southward, they crossed the Aisne, captured Soissons, swept further and crossed the Vesle, then the Ourcq, and finally debouched on the Marne, taking Chateau Thierry.

Pershing Sends Help

On the Marne the German attack wheeled westward. Right astride the main highway to Paris, it started for the capital. There was no opposition before the Germans.

Marshall Foch called on Pershing for aid. He sent the nearest troops he had, the Second Division, out of the line "resting" after a long period in the trenches south of Verdun. The Second Division was rushed to the Marne in motor trucks and hurled in to plug the line.



FLOYD GIBBONS IN 1918

Correspondent Gibbons pictured after he had lost an eye, suffered an arm wound while "covering" the U. S. World War battle at Belleau Wood.

The Marine brigade, 1st and 2d regiments, were deployed north of the Paris highroad, the Syracuse brigade, 9th and 23d infantry, were south of it, their flank on the Marne.

The main German attack kept to the higher ground away from the river, which is why the brunt of its force fell on the Marines. They clinched in Belleau Wood, five or six miles from Chateau Thierry. There the Marines stopped them.

It was a dog fight. No trenches, no barbed wire: virgin soil only galloped over by the Uhlans in August, 1914, before the first battle of the Marne.

Gibbons and several other war correspondents arrived on the first day of fighting. He went forward seeking battalion headquarters. Lieut. Arthur Hartzell, of the censor's staff, accompanied him.

Three Bullets Hit

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon they were working their way across a wheatfield. They knew Fritz was near by the absence of movement. But they failed to notice the periodic swaying of the tall wheat stalks, as though mysteriously riffled by a breeze despite the still air of the sweltering day.

Another soughing zephyr flashed by them and Floyd and Hartzell dropped in their tracks. But not quickly enough. Three bullets in the leaden hail of the machine gun burst had found Gibbons. One drove across his face, nicking his nose, searing his upper cheek, and ripping out his left eye as cleanly as the scalpel of a surgeon could have done, two more drilled through his left arm.

With his eye ball hanging down on his cheek, held by the uncut tendons, Gibbons lay for more than six hours in that wheatfield. Every time he or Hartzell attempted to move the telltale waving of the wheat stalks signaled the German machine gunners to give another burst in their direction. The bullets spat a couple of inches over them as they flattened out on the ground to escape the deadly stream.

By 9 o'clock at night it was dark enough to begin to move without being betrayed by the wheat. They crawled for half a mile, and then Hartzell helped Gibbons to a first aid dressing station. A surgeon snipped away the tiny muscles still holding the empty sack of the eye, slapped on a temporary dressing, and a couple of hours later, Floyd was lying in the bottom of an ammunition truck, bumping over the road to the American hospital in Neuilly, a suburb of Paris.

Writes First Book

During his convalescence, he wrote his first book, "They Thought We Wouldn't Fight." Later he made a lecture tour over the United States.

Just before Christmas, 1918, a few weeks after the armistice, and as the peace conference was about to be opened, Gibbons returned to Paris to organize a foreign staff for his newspaper.

The American Army of Occupation, the "Amarocs," were still on the Rhine with headquarters at Coblentz. Hundreds of thousands of doughboys were waiting repatriation in French ports. Transports were jammed, shipping was not available to carry them.

Floyd started a campaign to "get the boys home toot sweet," and eventually Uncle Sam concentrated all available boats and speeded up the return of the heroes, tired of the mud and cold and sickness in French billets.

Tomorrow the Sun-Telegraph will publish a fifth article about Floyd Gibbons.

Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

HILL'S Cascara Quinine is GUARANTEED to knock a cold in a jiffy. To relieve the pain, to break up tightness. If it fails, you pay nothing.

This guarantee is made to prove to those who have tried fifty ways to lose a cold, that the surest way is to go back to the first principles and use something that you KNOW does the work. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. You'll feel like a new person almost before you know it. Pain eased, congestion broken, your mind cleared and yourself ready to go back on the job with a wallop.

That's because Hill's is a scientific formula made to DO ONE THING WELL: to knock colds in a hurry—not to cure a score of different troubles.

Costs only a few cents at any drug store. Get package now. Your money back if it fails. Try it—you'll be glad that you did.

Fred Stone and Paula Make Their 'Smiling Faces' Very Contagious

By GEORGE SEIBEL

George Seibel

They will surely erect a monument to Fred Stone on Calton Hill in Edinburgh for one invention which he demonstrates in "Smiling Faces," the new musical comedy he has brought to the Alvin. That Scotch banana with a zipper skin, from which you can take a bite and put it aside for the next meal, ought to make his fortune in the land of the haggis and the heather. But it is only one of the minor joys of the show, which displays the versatility of Fred Stone in a variety of ways as he works his way up from an aviator to a bootblack, like the chiropodist he tells about, who also worked his way up till he became a nose and throat specialist.

This is the same old Fred Stone who has been the Mikado of Mirth for a generation. He is still an adept at all his surprises and changes. You never know when he will make his entrance or where. I have seen him blown up through the floor of the stage. In "Smiling Faces" he is not so volcanic and impulsive, but he's there before you know it and comes from the place you least suspect is an entrance. And after he is on, he is a joy—tickling our local pride at once with the information that "Hollywood is just Homestead with a few palms."

Being a movie director in "Smiling Faces" he ought to know. He has his troubles screening "Midsummer Night's Dream," for when he sends for some nymphs, "they send him some blimps," and when he needs a Pan they capture a fat banker and put him into autumn leaves. but such things always happen in whatever country Fred Stone invades.

DAUGHTER PAULA SCORES

Besides being a fellow of infinite zest he has brought another chip of the old block in daughter Paula, the little sunbeam that may put daughter Dorothy into the shade. Such vivacity and sparkle as this damsel exhibits—for she dances and sings adorably—sets the pace for the show and it's a swift and snappy pace. Paula made a genuine hit; she has personality, effervescence and all the perquisites.

And a hit that was almost a home run was also registered by Roy Royston with his song "Quick Henry the Flit," which has not only real humor but dizzy rhythm. The audience would have kept him singing it for 15 minutes but St. Vitus couldn't live through 15 minutes of that dancing.

Then there were two ladies—one diminutive, the other monumental—who let loose other gales of laughter. Lotti Loder is a German lady's maid who is ambitious to get into the pictures, and Hope Emerson is the secretary of the director. Lotti's pretzel vocabulary and Hope's Goddess of Liberty figure were the cause of the aforesaid laughter—for both have comedy spirit that can turn giggles into gales.

IT'S A GORGEOUS SHOW

Like the usual Fred Stone show, this one is gorgeous. The settings are by Watson Barratt—full of glowing color—Long Island and Havana in the light that never was on land or sea. The costumes, designed by Ernest Schrapps, used up all the colors left over from the scenery and ranged from bootblack uniforms to Castilian bridal finery. Those bootblack uniforms, by the way, belong to the other rhythmic gem of the production, the "Bootblack Blues," in which Fred Stone shines 'em up with a technique that could not be surpassed by any Alcibiades Simonides.

Long-Winded Symphony for Fannie Hurst's New Screen Story

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16.

What R K O claims to be the longest sustained symphony ever composed will supply a thematic background for the talking picture version of Fannie Hurst's "Symphony of Six Million."

The music runs subdued throughout the entire length of the picture and contains recurring themes descriptive of the various characters in the story.

For instance, there is an idealistic theme for Ricardo Cortez, which overlays all of his speeches and which occurs coincident with his appearance in any scene. Irene Dunne has a romantic theme while other characters are appropriately suggested.

Irene Dunne

The idea for a continuous background of music originated with Miss Hurst and was developed by Max Steiner, who composed the symphony and who recorded it with a 36-piece orchestra.

HUSTON'S NEXT

The crooked judge in "Night Court" will be played by Walter Huston, who is now a contract player at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. This is the picture that W. S. Van Dyke will direct. Karen Morley's in it and the adapters are Bayard Veiller and—I forgot to mention her the other day—Lenore Coffee. Ten days will see the cameras turning.

HOLLYWOOD CHATTER

Bill Haines is drawing two checks from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer—one for acting and another for renting props. Many pieces from Bill's antique shop are being used in "Strange Interlude" . . . Spencer Tracy is the latest polo candidate in the film ranks . . . Helen Twelvetrees and Frank Woody are threatening to pull a house-warming any day now . . . Ralph Bellamy is on a diet and carries his lunch to the studio every day . . . Wally Smith, the wag, is going around inquiring of all his friends if they've see Dr. Jekyll and Harpo Marx . . . The play which Ruth Chatterton and Ralph Forbes will produce jointly on the coast is to be called "Let Us Divorce." The English title, "Counsel's Opinion," was adjudged too dry for our consumption.

Ruth Chatterton.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Ethel Barrymore's tour in "The School for Scandal," which will bring her to the Alvin next week, has covered 40 states, District of Columbia and several Canadian provinces. Her playing of the Sheridan comedy began in California last summer. The Pittsburgh presentation will be under the shield of the Professional Players. Box officing will be in season Thursday.

* * *

Bert Lahr, featured comedian in "Hot-Cha," the new Ziegfeld musical show that opened in Washington last night, and comes to the Nixon next week, registered first with vaudeville public and cemented his hold by his work in "Flying High," which he funnied for both stage and screen. Lynn Overman is another member of the comedy crew, and Buddy Rogers, late of the fillums, who personal-appearanced here this season, also is featured. Seat-hunters now are hearing the news at the box office.

Small Timer says the Scotch are tight-lipped, too, and never give themselves away.

Among En Wye openings tonight will be "When the Bough Breaks," with Pauline Frederick, again playing hook from the movies in the lead role. Another will be "Collision," which has June Walker and Geoffrey Kerry (mister and missus) as the top folks . . . Another "farewell" tour of America will be made by Sir Harry Lauder in the fall . . . Maj Bowes, of the Capitol airwaves, has been ill for 10 weeks, but is so much on the mend that he will leave Broadway tomorrow to complete the process in Palm Beach . . . Barbara Stanwyck, of the fillums, and her hub, Frank Fay, have shaken Hollywood for New York and a vaude engagement . . . Mark Hellinger has been co-authoring with Charles Beahan a tale for the fillums, "Night Court," which will be Walter Hustoned . . . Marlene Dietrich has shelved plans for a trip to Berlin until after she makes three more fillums. Doris Kenyon will make three concert appearances in N. Y. next month. She has been selected to play the lead femme in the movie, "Young America." Spencer Tracy and Beryl Mercer will have featured parts in it.

Film Play Shows Fun In German School

By MILDRED FILLMORE.

The chief charm of the new German picture in the Avenue Cinema, "Skandal um Eva" (The Scandal About Eve), lies in the Glimpses of child life in Germany. How school teachers take their classes to parks and woods, singing on the way, is an idyl of education, and when Henny Porten is the schoolmarm it becomes double enchanting. Henny is the Mary Pickford of the Fatherland.

The story of this picture concerns a child really the child of Henny's fiance, but reported by gossips to be hers. So there is a movement to oust her as teacher, and even the minister of education, who was going to marry her, has his doubts until he finds out the child is a souvenir of his own past. So all ends happily and the children in Henny's school do not need to go out on strike.

The short features are specially good, including gila monsters and other fauna of the American desert and Turkish travel scenes along the Bosporus, with mosques and palaces of rare beauty.

Academy Has 'Korkers'

"The Korkers," in two acts and 32 scenes, is the current show in the Academy. It is headed by Eddie (Nuts) Kaplan, comedian, and Georgia (Peach) Sothorn, dancer and singer. A sketch, "The Specialist," in which Eddie Lloyd, Les Sponsler and a dozen girls appear, and a specialty number, "The Frog," by Henry Neiser, a contortionist, are featured. Issy Reingold, formerly of "Hot Chocolates," is a new member of the company. Another act, "Swinging in a Hammock," is offered by Billy Joy and Dorothy Dabney, Pittsburghers.

Other principals are Mildred Cozierre, Sally Van, Bee Craig, Frances Parks, Sid Rogers and Frank Mallahan.

Business Men's Group To Play Symphony

The Pittsburgh Business Men's Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Arthur Goetz, will present its initial concert Thursday in the Downtown Y. M. C. A. Bend down, Sister . . . . .
it's good for the complexion

HEADS DOWN . . . AND COMPLEXIONS LOOK UP . . . . .
No, this isn't just an acrobatic stunt. The lady has learned a new exercise that helps to cure skin eruptions. Here it is. Bend down, as shown in the picture, throwing the head forward, relaxing the neck. Let your hair fall forward. Blood rushes to your very hair roots. And this flushing of the circulation stimulates the natural action of the pores. Then—and how important this is—you must keep the pores thoroughly cleaned of accumulations. Work Palmolive lather into the pores, going over and over every inch of the skin. Rinse carefully. If skin troubles trouble you, you'll be wise to follow this treatment twice daily.

EARS SHOULD LOOK AS WELL AS LISTEN . . . . .
Look lovely, I mean. We're exposing them so much these days that we must give our ears certain appealing touches. Julia Crandall, the Washington, D. C. beauty specialist, advises rouging the ear lobe with a pink or rosy dry rouge. That accentuates your vitality and places an alluring accent on the delicate shell-like quality of the ear. Try it. See if you don't agree—And—what's even more to the point—see if HE agrees!

TOO TIRED? NONSENSE! TRY THIS BEAUTY-BATH
When you're tempted to cancel an engagement . . . when you think you're simply too tired . . . do this, instead. Shave a cake of Palmolive and heat it in about 4 cups of water till it melts. Pour this rich liquid into half a tubful of lukewarm water, step in and simply relax. Then with the rich lather from another cake of Palmolive, massage your whole body. Don't miss a pore. See how marvelously refreshed you feel. How smooth and lovely your skin feels.

★ Julia Foster is employed by Palmolive to report last-minute beauty news. She visits hundreds of beauty salons, from month to month. She talks with experts. She attends beauty conventions, visits smart restaurants, clubs, theatres. She reports beauty hints to you in these news flashes.

And, speaking of complexions, LOOK!
this much OLIVE OIL goes into every cake of Palmolive Soap

JUST look at this test tube—you women who value complexion beauty. You who know full well the priceless cosmetic effect of olive oil. Here the camera shows you the exact amount of olive oil that goes into every cake of Palmolive. This is why women consider Palmolive as more than a soap—a priceless beauty treatment. Blended with this olive oil are oils from palm trees—just enough to give a thick, rich, workable lather. No other fats whatsoever!

Every cake marked

Do other soaps offer you this? Do other soaps stamp, right on the cake, in plain letters, the re-assuring words "made of olive and palm oils"? Palmolive does! Its very color is the natural green of olive and palm oils—nothing else. No artificial coloring!

Too often soaps have a heavy scent that quarrels with the odor of your favorite perfume. But Palmolive is pure! Sweet! Naturally fragrant! Wonderfully refreshing for the bath as well as for the face!

Advised by beauty experts

All this explains why over 20,000 beauty experts have recommended Palmolive Soap as the ideal way to keep complexions lovely. Do, please, use Palmolive if you are seriously interested in keeping your skin young, fresh, radiant!

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(Say! You don't have to read it, you know!)

The Emancipation Proclamation was issued solely as a war measure to hinder the Confederates, and 831,780 slaves in 8 States were not freed by the ukase. (Or am I getting too rough?)

The chain of theaters in England which the Shuberts peddled last year has been secretly acquired by Gilbert Miller.

So far as is known gold was found only once in N. Y. soil—when they were excavating for the Vanderbilt Hotel.

In the days of Queen Elizabeth it was the height of politeness to kiss your neighbor's wife!

There are 14,953,712 unattached men in these United States.

When Hoover was in his 20s—he wore a beard.

W. T. Benda, the artist, like President Zachary Taylor, goes to market, basket and all!

There are 87 foreign language newspapers published in N. Y., covering 22 tongues, even Ladino, a mixture of Spanish and Jewish.

The Cossacks, in 1812, entered Paris and plunged the city into darkness. They liked oil, so they drank it all—from the street lamps!

"Ghees" is guess, and "gif" is if—and perfect English, too. If you are cynical, then look up Noah's Book, you simpleton!

Coolidge it was who established the Oil Conservation Board—but there's enough oil to last the world 3,000 years. Haw!

George Washington once shot a man in defiance of a flag of truce. The man killed was Jumonville de Villiers.

The Xmas night he broke up the Hessians' drunken revel at Trenton he started a tradition still carried out by Federal Agents.

And the boat Washington used to cross the Delaware, I hear, still is being used daily as a Philadelphia ferry!

Cortez christened California "Caliente Fornalla," which is Spanish, if you please, for "Hot Furnace."

Primitive man, having no language, grumbles and growls to express his ideas. (Grrrr! Awf! Hmmmm! Bloops!)

"If" is really—a verb! I needn't tell you to look it up. So many of you who are always trying to catch me will look it up anyway!

L. M. Brophy at Lansing, Mich., slammed a golfball 500 yards. Wait till the record compilers hear this! Or Ripley!!!)

A hurdy-gurdy is not a "machine," but a beautiful instrument shaped like a violin. There is only one left, owned by Melville Clark, of Syracuse.

A ton of sugar is cheaper than a ton of sawdust.

There is a one-way street not far from Times Square where the trolley cars are allowed to go both ways!

When people call you a sap they call you an "ardent student," which is how the New Universities Dictionary defines sap.

The world would certainly be a sweeter place in which to dwell if more people tried to square things with their enemies, instead of trying to even matters with them.

Samuel Butler said it when he chirped: "What a fool a man is to remember anything that happened more than a week ago unless it was pleasant, or unless he wants to make some use of it."

Yehudi Menuhin Here On February 26

Yehudi Menuhin, American boy genius of the violin, will make one of his few appearances of the season in Carnegie Music Hall Friday evening, February 26. His program will include Tartini's Sonata "Devil's Trill," Bach Sonata for violin alone, Bruch Concerto in G minor; Guitarre, by Moszkowski-Sarasate; "The Dance of the Goblins," by Bazzini; Tambourin Chinois, by Kreisler; Serenade, by Tchaikowsky, and Caprice XXIV by Paganini.

2 DRIVERS FREE IN AUTO DEATHS

Quick decisions were reached in two involuntary manslaughter cases in Criminal Court before Visiting Judge William A. McConnell of Beaver.

The charge against Henry F. Schweiger, 21, of Seaver street, Duquesne, was dropped at the request of the father of Verda L. Moriarty, 15, of 706 Kahler street, killed September 13 when Schweiger's car, in which she was riding, collided with another near Coal Valley. Schweiger has since married Verda's sister and the father said he did not want Schweiger to feel that her family held him responsible for Verda's death.

Harry J. Lauer, 5408 Dresden way, was freed of a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Raphio Propicio, 323 Thirteenth street, Sharpsburg, April 30. It was testified Propicio stepped in front of Lauer's car. The Coroner had exonerated him and the family caused an information to be made. Judge McConnell directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

Union Suspended By Trades Council

The Sheet Metal Workers' Union has been temporarily suspended from the Building Trades Council according to J. H. Duty, president of the Council. Recently the Sheet Metal Workers signed an agreement for a wage reduction of $2.50 a day, making their new daily rate $10.50, thus opposing the policy of no reduction held by the Council. The suspension, Duty said, dealt with other matters besides the wage scale.

Opinions Differ About Two Salaries in One Family

Is the missis who works just a thug, who takes the bread out of other folks' mouths?

Should she be compelled to stay at home if the big boy can support her?

Is it wrong for one family to have two salaries?

There's a brace of questions that have stirred up plenty of brawls in the past and are still stirring 'em. Ellen Tree thought that the answer to all of them was Yes.

And here's Mrs. R. M., with fire in her eye, to agree with her.

"Why should one family have two salaries and another family none?" she snorts indignantly. "Is it fair? Is it just?

HUBBY IS JOBLESS

"I don't think so! In the small town where I live there are 10 or more families where husband and wife both work. They have no children to support, either.

"In the postoffice are married women, getting good pay, and whose husbands are holding steady jobs. And it's the same way in the schools. Nearly every married woman around here has been teaching school for years.

"And last winter my husband had no work. We had no money at all coming in, and we have two husky youngsters to feed and clothe. And these others I speak of were going around putting on all kinds of style.

"The men lie down on the job when wives work, too. I know of two men I heard say: 'Oh, well, the old woman gets a school this winter. I won't have to worry!'

"And now there are thousands of men out of work. Yet we have thousands of families getting two incomes. When men see these families with two salaries, and they have none to support their families with, is it any wonder that we have so many holdups and so much wickedness of all kinds?

"I think that wives should be compelled to stay at home when their husbands have jobs and can support them."

That's a dark picture . . . plenty dark. Do you agree with Mrs. R. M. that "there should be a law?" Do you think that all families should be limited to one salary.

Maybe you do. But Elizabeth has another idea.

"Why pick on women?" she asks. "Why not make men stop working if they 'don't need' what they earn? There are thousands of men working who have independent incomes. Why not make them stop?

"If all the men who have adequate incomes would step aside and permit the thousands of capable idle men to take their places, it would help a lot to fill all the empty pockets there are in this nation. But will they do it? They will not! Just try suggesting it!

"Then why legislate against women? Just because I am a female, am I not also an individual? Haven't I rights as well as men? Who is to judge the 'need' or lack of it of a married woman who works? Who is going to pry into her private affairs and find out what she uses her money for?

BLAMES OWN SEX

"Trying to do that would be an outrage. It would be just as fair to say every man earning over $300 a month should give his surplus money away. And we all know no man would stand for that.

"As a matter of fact, we've always had married women who worked away from home. What they did was sewing or scrubbing or washing other folks' dirty clothes. No one saw fit to row about that. But now when women are beginning to get where they are doing real work, why the idea is to cram them back out of the sun. And I think it is a cause for shame that it is women themselves who are doing it. I wonder if they realize what they're trying to do to their sex? I doubt it. But they'd better wake up or they'll find all women shoved out of their hard-won jobs!"

There are two sides of a red-hot argument.

Which are you on?

Never Push an Opponent Into Game

Some bids lack nothing of being stupid. When you cannot go game, unless certain that you can fulfill your own contract and that you can safely double and defeat further adverse bidding, you should allow contracting to die as soon as opponents cease bidding a part game contract.

Often our opponents force us to a higher declaration than we had intended, and then double our bid. Great is our satisfaction if we surprise them, and perhaps ourselves, by fulfilling our doubled contract. Such a case developed in the hand shown.

When Z saw his 2½ quick tricks, three guarded suits, and a choice between a somewhat weak heart bid and rather an anemic no-trump, he chose the latter declaration. It looked to A that his adversaries had no suit except diamonds to which they could shift safely. Sitting behind the no-trump hand augmented the values A held, making it almost certain that Y-Z would bid themselves into trouble in case they bid game at a minor suit. A decided to bid 2-Spades.

As Y's partner had shown general strength by his opening bid, Y proceeded to overcall with 3-Diamonds. B reasoned that his partner must be short of diamonds and strong in the two unbid suits, to venture bidding a suit of which B held A-K-8-5, so he bid 3-Spades. Having started something that he could not stop, Z passed. So did A, and the hand would have been played at a harmless part game contract had Y read his cue correctly from Z's pass. Foolishly Y thought that a part game score would be fine, and that his adversaries' failure to bid game showed their inability to do so safely. Y bid 4-Diamonds.

When A failed to bid, B blamed himself for not having jumped the declaration to game; his partner never could suspect such strong trump support as B held. Welcoming Y's slip, B bid 4-Spades. Z doubled the contract, largely upon Y's apparent display of strength in having twice overcalled A-B. Everyone passed.

Not liking to open from an A-Q suit that his partner had declined to support, Y made an opening lead of his fourth best heart. Z put up his Q and A's Ace won the trick. It took three leads of Spades to clean out opponents, after which the declarer led a small club from dummy. Z won with his Ace, then he led his top heart, lest dummy's last card of that suit be discarded upon good clubs held by A. As the last trick won by his side, Z took his K of diamonds. A-B could not fail to fulfill their double contract into which Y had kicked them.

Here is a pretty problem hand sent into the Knickerbocker Whist Club for solution. Spades are trumps. South is to lead. How can N and S win all tricks against any defense? The answer will appear tomorrow.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

When Hiccoughs Persist Consult Your Physician

Dr. Copeland

When the newspapers printed the story of the man who had hiccoughed for 14 consecutive days, nation-wide sympathy was aroused. Over 10,000 letters and telegrams were sent to the afflicted individual. These offered suggestions for overcoming the persistent hiccough. Many of the suggestions were tried by the physicians, but without success. Finally, an operation was performed which relieved the hiccoughs.

This was an unusual case. As a rule, hiccoughs do not last a long time. They may continue for a few minutes, or even a few hours, but rarely longer. Some persons seem much more susceptible than others. I have known people to suffer periodically from this condition, while most of us never have it.

The nerves supplying the diaphragm and the muscles used in breathing become irritated or inflamed. This is followed by hiccough. Disturbances of the stomach, particularly after a heavy meal, may produce it.

It may be a symptom of an infection somewhere in the body. This may be in the liver, the gall-bladder, the stomach, or even in the tonsils or teeth.

It is often encountered by surgeons after an operation. It is found in some cases of appendicitis and as a complication in severe forms of typhoid fever. Hiccoughing may be associated with a constitutional disorder, such as hysteria or epilepsy. It may follow injuries of the brain.

It is amusing to listen to some of the suggestions for cure. "Frighten the patient." "Have him hold his breath." "Chew cracked ice." Liberal doses of snuff, salt, or sugar, as well as the old Indian remedy oil of cloves, have their advocates. Space does not permit a listing of all the "remedies." One of the simplest remedies and often successful is milk of magnesia. A few teaspoonful doses may give relief. Injections of certain chemicals have been successful in recent severe cases.

The world never wearies of love songs.

Over the radio we hear countless crooners singing of the bliss of kisses, the heartache of broken promises, the sorrow of parting, and while the words are always much the same they are ever new.

For all the world is interested in love. Everybody has been in love, is in love, or expects to be in love.

Even those who seem to scorn love usually have some love affair locked up in their hearts.

It may have been an ideal they loved but never met. Or perhaps they loved someone who did not love them.

Sometimes those who say the least have known greater loves than others who broadcast their great loves to the world.

Madge Makes Report to Dicky

Rack my brain as I might, I could find no solution for the problem which Lillian's query brought me. I must tell her that Philip Veritzen wished certain revisions in the third act of my play and at the same time I must decline the aid which I knew she would instantly proffer. She could not help but count my refusal a most ungracious gesture in the face of the night before when she had not closed her eyes because she was typing my third act from my dictation.

"Yes," I said reluctantly, "he wants a few changes made."

"Where?" Lillian demanded excitedly.

"I haven't time to tell you anything," I said, seizing on the first loophole of escape and hoping that before I saw her again I would be able to think of some way of parrying her request without wounding her. "Dicky made me promise that I would come directly to his room as soon as Mr. Veritzen left and tell him the news."

"Then you had better be traveling pronto," she said drily. "The Dicky-bird isn't a particularly patient raven, and is apt to caw raucously if he fancies himself neglected. I can wait to hear about the gory details later. Phil likes it, that's the main news. Congratulations, old dear, you certainly turned a nifty trick this time."

She gave me an affectionate little pat upon the shoulder and went back into the living room.

For the moment I had successfully skirted the danger of wounding her. But there still remained the problem of how to manage her offer of aid without letting her see again the speeches of Vickers. She had typed them without sensing their connection with Dicky. But I knew she would recognize the caricature of Dicky which I subconsciously had depicted in Vickers as soon as she should read those speeches over again.

Useless to worry about it now, however, I told myself, as I climbed the stairs to the second floor. I knew my own brain well enough to know that I could not aid its processes by anxiety. If I put the whole matter out of my mind, some solution of the problem might "wing its way out of the ether" to me.

As I neared Dicky's door I wondered at the slowness of my feet, then realized with a shamefaced scoring of my pettiness that the joy of my good news of success was marred by the fact that I had to acknowledge to Dicky the correctness of his forecast—Philip Veritzen had practically—if not literally—"tossed Vickers into the incinerator."

I stood outside of his door for several seconds flagellating myself for my meanness of spirit. Finally, feeling that I had exorcised that particular little demon, I knocked at his door.

That Dicky had been eagerly awaiting my arrival I knew, when his door opened almost at my knock, and he caught my hand and drew me into the room.

"Well?" he said, even before I had closed the door. "Did he like it?"

I mentally saluted him for his unselfishness. He had said no word of the character, Vickers, my sub-conscious caricature of himself, to which he had objected. It would have been natural for him to have been most concerned with that part of my news. But, instead, all his attention seemed focused on the question of the success or failure of my third act, in Philip Veritzen's opinion.

"Yes, he liked it and Dicky, you were absolutely right, the only thing he did not like in that third act was the character, Vickers.

"Remember, I said he'd toss that character out," he said.

My own lofty resolve failed to function for a minute.

"But he didn't," I said shortly.

"I thought you said Phil didn't like it," he said.

"He didn't," I returned, and then, with the urge for confession upon me added hurriedly. "He said I must have created him while in the throes of a nightmare."

Dicky's face cleared and he grinned widely at me.

"Well, that's what you claimed, wasn't it? That you wrote all those speeches subconsciously?"

"It wasn't a claim, it was a fact," I said emphatically, "but I didn't realize what awful stuff I had written until I had to read the speeches aloud to Mr. Veritzen."

Dicky's face clouded again.

"Veritzen mustn't think they were so awful if he is going to use any of them," he said.

"That's just what's bothering me," I said. "He wants the character of Vickers left in, because he thinks it will entail too much interference with the present construction of the act to take him out, but he wants the speeches changed entirely or dropped."

"That ought not to be hard," Dicky said speculatively, and something in his eyes told me how I could solve the problem of revising my third act without Lillian's aid.

Obligations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Who buys the flowers for the altar at a church wedding which will take place in the morning? Is it the groom or the parents of the bride?

2. Who gives the first dinner after the engagement has been announced? The parents of the groom-to-be or the parents of the bride-to-be? H.

1. All the expenses of the church are paid by the parents of the bride, who are hosts of the occasion. The church fee, they pay, and the fees to the sexton, and the fee for the music and for the flowers.

2. There is no rule about this. The only gesture that must be made is for the parents, or at least the mother, of the groom, to make the visit-of-welcome to the bride. This visit is made, or should be, within 24 hours after the prospective groom has told his parents of his engagement. If they do not live in the same city, they write their welcoming to the bride. After this they may give a party or parties for the couple or they may not; it isn't necessary, and depends on their mode of living, on whether or not they wish to give a party. In other words, it is proper for either family to give a party, or it is not necessary for either to give a party.

The little Girl who wouldn't

EAT

When a youngster has no appetite, it's probably due to stasis. A little fig syrup will soon correct this condition — then watch the child eat.

Nature knows best! Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. Not to correct this is [illegible]. It is so easy to do, if you will only use the "California treatment." Read what it is doing for listless children in every part of the country!

When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children any constipating cathartic that drains the system and weakens twenty feet of tender bowels. California fig syrup is the only "medicine" they need!

Sluggishness ended in 2 Weeks!

That girl or boy with a [illegible] tongue and a bad breath should not be dosed with [illegible]. California fig syrup will gently stimulate the colon muscles —and the child you used to coax to eat will fairly devour his food, digest it, gain weight.

Try the California treatment! Begin tonight, with enough of the pure fig syrup to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week until the child's appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone.

Be sure to get the real California fig syrup. Any druggist has it, all bottled, with directions. It's a natural, vegetable laxative. Just as good for babies of two years as boys of ten. They all love its taste!

NOTICE TO MOTHERS

There are imitations of California fig syrup, and those who would sell you some substitute even when a child's health is concerned. Don't ever take any bottle that is not plainly labeled CALIFORNIA.

SCHOOLS BEGIN WASHINGTON ESSAYS

Contest Gets Under Way As Bi-centennial Fete Preparations are Made

The Sun-Telegraph essay contest on George Washington's farewell address, which started Sunday and will continue to April 4, began to function in the schools, as educators made ready their plans for celebrating the bi-centennial of the first President's birth.

In many of the schools the essay writing is to be part of the regular routine. City and county schools of the counties in Western Pennsylvania are taking part. Anyone under 21 can participate.

More than 500 prizes are to be given. Schools throughout Western Pennsylvania are conducting the essay as a part of school work.

Contestants not in schools should send their essays direct to the contest editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The William Randolph Hearst gold cup and $100 for the best essay not to exceed 1,000 words in length, in any class by any person up to the age of 21 years.

For the best essay, not to exceed 1,000 words in length by any person between the age of 16 and 21, in or out of school, the Hearst gold medal; for second, silver medal, and third, bronze medal.

For the best essay not to exceed 500 words in length by any child in any high school, gold medal for first, silver for second and bronze for third.

For the best essay not to exceed 400 words in length by any child in any junior high school, a gold medal, for second, a silver medal, and for third, a bronze medal.

For the best essay, not to exceed 100 words in length, by any child in the grammar grades, a gold medal, with silver medal for second, and bronze medal for third.

In each of the classes 2, 3, 4 and 5, there will be awarded 100 diplomas for honorable mention for the 100 best essays produced in each class after the first, second and third prizes have been awarded.

Hill Leader Again Faces Dope Charges

James Lancia, of Bedford avenue, a politician in the Hill district; Joseph Locastro of Bustrick way and Salvatore Corsella, of Suismon street, convicted two weeks ago in Federal Court for conspiring to violate the government narcotic law, are again on trial in the same court.

They are being tried before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker on an indictment charging sale of morphine, many of the allegations made by the prosecution being repetition of testimony in the prior trial. The defendants have an appeal pending for a new trial in the conviction for conspiracy.

Receiver Appointed For Coal Company

Judge A. B. Reid appointed John T. Mallabone receiver for the Bunola Coal Company in Common Pleas Court, on petition of creditors with claims aggregating $4,000, and fixed a hearing for March 1. The company, operating around Elizabeth and Canonsburg, has a capital of $180,000. Assets greatly exceed indebtedness, but it has insufficient cash to meet obligations, the petition alleged. Stephen Klein is president and James R. Turner secretary-treasurer of the company.

PLAN TRIBUTE TO WASHINGTON

The Knoxville Presbyterian Church, Knox avenue and Jucunda street, will present a unique program Sunday in its celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington. The Sunday school will offer addresses, readings and music on "George Washington." The Rev. M. M. McDivitt will speak on "George Washington, the Noblest American of Them All." In the evening a motion picture presenting Washington, as a young colonel, will be exhibited.

Instrumental and vocal numbers from the music composed to celebrate certain periods in the life of Washington, will be presented by Margaret Stoerkel Wilhelm, director of music.

Independents Work On 7th Ward Slate

Independent workers of the Seventh Ward will meet at 8 p. m. today in the home of Charles P. Wassel, 817 St. James street, to propose candidates for the Second District Executive Committee. Mrs. Frank J. Boyle, one of the independent leaders of the ward, is scheduled to speak.

TAG THE AMAZING SOAP THAT GOES TWICE AS FAR

IT'S a fact that TAG Soap does go twice as far . . . lasts twice as long . . . as ordinary laundry soaps. And the reason is simple.

First, TAG has half again as much actual soap content as other laundry soaps contain. TAG Soap is ALL soap . . . solid soap. It contains only the choicest of materials that go to make soap. No naphtha to chap the hands and leave a soapy smell in the clothes. No fillers to give more bulk with less soap. No adulterants, no chemicals, no caustics to take the place of real soap ingredients.

These are the reasons why TAG is so soothing to the tenderest skin . . . so safe for the most delicate fabrics . . . so ideal for the bath and shampoo . . . so perfect for every cleaning purpose.

And because TAG is all soap and nothing else, naturally it can't be good looking, and it isn't. But if you want the biggest soap bargain in the world today, here it is . . . a full half pound bar of real honest, safe soap for only 5 cents. Try it. Use it wherever soap is used. Test its remarkable cleansing qualities. Ask your grocer for the genuine TAG Soap . . . the homely brown bar with the round metal tag. See him today.

GRIST FOR GENIUS

Seldom in history have communities attained the commercial eminence enjoyed by the Italian cities of the Renaissance. The names of their merchant princes were names to conjure with, and more than one was accorded the title of "Magnificent." But who can name them now? Only a few are remembered—those few who befriended a Michelangelo, a Cellini or a Titian—who provided the marble, the bronze or even the sustenance without which these artists' works would have been impossible.

Modern business, also, achieves its crowning glory in its patronage of the arts and sciences. And today a shining example presents itself. Fleetwood . . . for years a name that has stood for the utmost in custom coachcraft . . . now shows the world a breadth of conception, a skill and a finesse never realized before it acquired its new facilities. Under the patronage of the Fisher Body Corporation, new fields of observation and research are opened up. New means for experiment are provided, new methods of operation are made possible, a new co-operation from chassis engineers is enjoyed.

Witness the result. Bodies that surpass all former Fleetwood creations are surrounding that hall-mark with a new prestige. And to the engineering advances in the new Cadillac V-Eights, V-Twelves, and V-Sixteens they are adding a reputation for unprecedented beauty, comfort and elegance.

100 YEARS of PROVEN SAFETY

A CENTURY of business experience has proven the stability and safety of the Farmers Deposit National Bank. From 1832, when it was founded, until today, when it observes its one hundredth anniversary, the fluctuations of American business activities time after time have tested the soundness of this Pittsburgh institution. It has met each test with success.

Because of its industrial and financial importance, Pittsburgh has reflected national economic variations during the past century. Through periods of expansion and deflation, Pittsburgh has progressed steadily.

The Farmers Deposit National Bank has kept pace with the progress of Pittsburgh. It was established in the dawn of the industrial activity that has given Pittsburgh a place among the leading manufacturing centers of the world. Its banking service to this community through the years has contributed to the establishment and maintenance of businesses that are factors in Pittsburgh's greatness.

From its humble beginning with $5,000 capital in 1832, the Farmers Deposit National Bank has grown to a leading position among the banks of Pittsburgh and the Nation. Today, it is among the one hundred largest banks in the United States.

The confidence of the people of Pittsburgh in the safety and dependability of the Farmers Deposit National Bank has played an important part in the continued growth of this institution.

Now this bank enters its second century of service to the people and industries of Pittsburgh. The pioneer spirit is still strong in the hearts of Pittsburgh business men. New and more diversified businesses that will make future history are being established here today. The opportunities for the Farmers Deposit National Bank to serve this community are increased. Behind its desire to serve is the bank's experience of one hundred years of proven safety.

No greater evidence of the soundness of the Farmers Deposit National Bank could be offered than the statement of its condition shown below:

Jolt Due Philadelphia Slate Makers

By MARK SHIELDS

Mr. Shields

When Philadelphia Republican leaders and State Chairman Edward Martin meet in the East the last day of this month to come to a final decision on a slate for national and state offices at the primary election, they will learn directly and through inferences even more emphatic that Allegheny County is totally dissatisfied with any offering of candidates which ignore this county entirely.

It has just developed that when Chairman Martin was here last week with Senator Frank Baldwin, of Potter County, now slated for auditor general—a post Allegheny County wants—concrete backing was given the statement of County Chairman William D. Mansfield that the Republican head here would be "uninterested" at the primary in the "ticket" as it now stands.

Discussion arose over the delegate-at-large slate, on which there is one vacancy. There may be two if Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon decides not to run. Martin is understood to have stated that it would be satisfactory to him and to the East to have E. R. Crawford, McKeesport industrialist, placed among the upper crust of delegates, elected by the state at large.

This proffer was made after Mansfield, who is the practical representative of Crawford in political affairs, had told Martin of dissatisfaction with any slate which ignored the claims to election of Superior Court Judge Joseph D. Stadtfeld, or denied this county the post of auditor general.

Crawford is understood to have used much the same language employed by Mansfield in conditionally dismissing the Martin suggestion. He is reported to have said he would not care to be a delegate-at-large so long as the stipulations laid down by the county chairman as necessities to enlist "interest" were not met by Martin and the Vare contingent.

* * *

Crawford Balks Unless County is Recognized

In other words, Crawford will not be associated in any way with the organization slate, he repudiates it completely, unless Stadtfeld is recognized or this county or one adjacent gets the auditor general.

That should be something to make the easterners thoughtful when they meet again. It is admitted that in the present political chaos in Allegheny County it would be difficult to compose various factions behind any ticket of opposition, even though all are displeased with the arrogant attitude of the East. But, at the same time, it is evident that organization forces are at work trying to rebuild from the wreckage left by the last two elections and the action of the grand jury. There is the future for the East to view, no matter how decisive it may be at the present.

So far Crawford looms as the greatest potential force behind such a rebuilt organization. He may not be able to accomplish the job, but through some astute lieutenants he is trying. He lacks personal political experience, but he is interested in politics and has the finances with which to indulge his pleasure. Furthermore, he is a bit more liberal with the sinews than have been some wealthy, politically-interested men of the past.

Right now no one can take command of the organization here, or of the Independents, for that matter, both sides of the political fence being still engaged in catching their breath as a result of recent cataclysms. The organization lads are trying to dig in a toehold and stop the slide, individually rather than collectively. Until they succeed in that, they will have little time for constructive rebuilding.

That very fact offers an opportunity to some one like Crawford, and his influence might be extended should he refuse to stand for some practices which were orthodox in the past. He still has that higher principle to demonstrate.

* * *

Independent Cohesion Presents Difficulties

Independent cohesion is difficult because the patriots are so strange in the new surroundings of the promised—and promising—land that there is an intense eagerness to capitalize quickly. Discipline is completely lacking, and probably never will be enforced. The policy of sinking personal advantage for the common good is almost impossible, for each individual thinks himself best fitted to serve the common good.

If any proof of this is needed, an examination of the petitions being taken out at the Bureau of Elections is sufficient. There are legislative candidates galore, mostly independents. In the Fifth District, which elects only one member, petitions have been taken out for 10 aspirants.

There is a suspicion about the Courthouse that some hopefuls figure an effort may be made at a concerted independent movement in April, backed principally by Commissioner C. M. Barr, and that rewards may be dangled before those who get out of the race in some districts and clear the road. We'll see.

Mark Shields will talk over WCAE at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening on politics of the week.

Indian Girl Sees Advance In Native Land

THEODORA P. CHITAMBAR

Follower of Gandhi Hopes for Early Compromise

India is in process of experiencing an economic, social, political and religious renaissance, according to Miss Theodora P. Chitambar, 23-year-old native Indian nationalist and follower of Mahatma Gandhi, who was to address University of Pittsburgh Y. W. C. A. members in Heinz House today. She declares:

"Suppression of India by martial law can only be a temporary measure. Although the future is very difficult to predict, a compromise has to come very soon. The vast majority of the thinking people in India are in sympathy with Mahatma Gandhi with his unique method of non-violence and pacific resistance."

Miss Chitambar is a native of Jubbulpore, India, and a graduate of the Isabelle Thoburn School and Columbia University. Her father, Jashwant R. Chitambar, was the first Indian Christian to be chosen bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

She spoke last night in the Emory M. E. Church, McKeesport. Yesterday afternoon, with Dr. Thomas S. Donohugh, recently returned from Africa, she addressed the Allegheny district, Pittsburgh Annual Conference, in the Smithfield M. E. Church.

During her stay in Pittsburgh she has been the guest of Bishop and Mrs. Herbert Welch, 336 South Graham street.

Resume Builders' Wage Negotiations

Negotiations were to be resumed today between the Pittsburgh Building Trades' Council and the Building Trades' Employers' Council to settle the dispute that grew out of the 25 per cent wage cut ordered by the employers' group. Thirty trade unions are affiliated with the employe organization.

Safety Record Set By Pennsy in 1931

Showing a decrease in the number of accidents for the fifth consecutive year, the Pennsylvania Railroad set a new safety record during 1931, W. W. Atterbury, its president, revealed today. The number of accidents last year was 27 per cent under those of 1930, Atterbury said.

HUGE SHORTAGE IN WELFARE FUND SEEN

Relief Necessities to Top Resources by $3,500,000; Demands Growing Fast

The Welfare Fund continued operations today following the annual meeting of its Council last night at which its executive secretary, Wilbur F. Maxwell, predicted a shortage for the year of $3,500,000 "on the basis of present expenditures."

Maxwell has emphasized repeatedly the need for further funds to carry relief efforts through 1932. He said last night:

"Since the budget was completed early in October, demands have multiplied so rapidly that it is plainly evident that no estimates so carefully set up then are in keeping even with present needs. The scale of increase in demands upon the fund is so alarming that prediction of future demands seems almost impossible.

"In meeting the needs as they have presented themselves, resources have seemed to melt like snow."

CALCULATES HUGE TOTAL

Taking payments in January and requests for February by various members of the fund, Maxwell estimated a total of $9,575,287, leaving a $3,500,000 shortage. This does not include outside agencies, operating in all parts of the county.

Maxwell in his report, said that, although the Allegheny County Emergency Association originally planned to spend its funds in the six months following November 1, "it is certainly evident that we should estimate a continuation of at least the present load during all of 1932." He added:

"Certainly, as far as the Welfare Fund is concerned, no reasonable person can believe that the present load can be continued without a large measure of additional relief from public funds, preferably, of course, in the form of wages for work, but, if that is not possible, then in the form of relief."

AGENCY SALARIES SCANNED

He suggested "fair price committees" on food and other necessities and said salaries in social agencies are being studied.

Frank R. Phillips, chairman of the Emergency Association, presenting the annual report of that group, said:

"Work will gradually taper from its peak about the first of March and terminate about the middle of June. Members of the operating committee hope and some believe that this will spell the end of the emergency for which the association was formed.

"People won't starve to death."

Phillips said that 9,618 men and women were at work for the association February 5.

The council elected the following to its board of directors for terms of three years: Frank B. Bell, Maurice Falk, Leo G. Griffith, Frank R. Phillips and Mrs. William B. Schiller.

Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence presided.

PLAN DRY POLL AT M'KEESPORT

Plans for an unofficial referendum in McKeesport on the prohibition question will be laid at a meeting to be held in the Burt Foster Post American Legion rooms, in Walnut street, Sunday afternoon.

Committees from the following McKeesport organizations will attend: American Legion, Eagles, Elks, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Polish National Alliance and Turn Gesang Verein.

He said today that the organizations hope the referendum to be started Sunday will spread into a nation-wide movement.

STONE TO QUIT STAGE WHEN HE'S 102

Blonde Paula Reveals Her Comedian-Father Has Bad Case of 'Mike' Fright

Fred Stone announced today his retirement date from show business. He plans to quit when he's 102, no older.

The man who has jumped through more windows and walls than any other, who was at least 50 per cent of the famous old team of Montgomery and Stone, who has given theatergoers more clean shows than any other actor, who has brought up three daughters to follow in his footsteps, scoffed at the idea of retiring. He said:

"Sure! I'm gonna retire. I'm 58 now and I'm not gonna work a day past 102. I don't believe in this here idea of a man working himself all his life. You take my friend Bill Rogers—on that last trip of his he told me he visited 14 countries in 13 days. Well, I don't believe in taking things easy like that."

Listening to all this was Paula Stone, no older than 16, and in show business exactly 44 weeks. An unsophisticated blonde, Miss Paula declares:

"I like to be on the road. I like the train rides from one city to another. I don't mean I just like the train rides, but everybody in the company starts playing a phonograph or something, and it's lots of fun."

Paula tried, with an inveigling, healthy kiss, to coax Stone to appear with her on tonight's Sun-Telegraph Nite Club program from WCAE. Fred said he'd like to, but—

Well, as Paula "told on" the man who has taken all kinds of risks on the stage and even cracked up an airplane

END OF TROLLEY PACT URGED

Termination of the city's 1924 agreement with the Pittsburgh Railways Company, creating the Traction Conference Board, is asked of Council by the Brookline Board of Trade in a communication received yesterday.

The communication, in the form of a resolution, is an aftermath of airing of charges that the railways company failed to turn over to the city nearly $100,000 in surpluses dating from 1925 to 1929.

Council's Committee on Finance was to discuss the communication today.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Down here in Washington to see Mr. Ziegfeld's latest and greatest show, "Hot-Cha." Now about this war that we are all excited about. Had a long chat with Secretary Stimson, and he gave me his side of the thing. He feels that it is going to quiet down over there and they will come to some terms. The Japs are not so cocky as they were. They figured on taking Shanghai for lunch, and it's been 17 days and they haven't got it yet. Had a fine visit with Mr. Dawes and his money-loaning gang. J. P. Morgan and 18 international bankers were in line ahead of me to get in. But the whole place here has a spirit of better feeling. Anyhow, the corpse is showing life.

Yours, WILL.

HOSPITALS AIDED IN MESTA WILL

The will of Mrs. Cora L. Mesta, widow of Fred E. Mesta, one-time president of the Mesta Machine Company, was filed today, disposing of an estate valued at $205,000.

Her mother, Mrs. Ada Lentz Irwin, and a brother, Clark Lentz, each were given $2,000; $1,000 was left to each of the following: Children's Hospital, Homestead Hospital, Home for Crippled Children, Third United Presbyterian Church of Homestead, Mercy Hospital and Alumni Association of the Mercy School for Nursing; $100,000 was left in trust, three-fifths of the income to go to her mother and two-fifths to the brother, Clark; of the remainder of the estate one-half was given to the mother, Clark and another brother, Benn John Irwin, and the other half distributed among several relatives.

2 Ohio Men Brought Here in Bombing

Thomas Graziani and Quinto Loretti, of Warren, O., were brought back to Pittsburgh today to face charges of arson in the explosion which wrecked Graziani's house at 862 Sixth avenue, Coraopolis, Sunday. They will be given a hearing tonight before Justice of the Peace George Kasper, of Coraopolis.

Fire School Holds 5th Session Tonight

Legal Fees in Moore Will Case Assailed in Court

Exceptions to the $14,500 in fees allowed by the court to counsel contesting the will of the late Alexander P. Moore, publisher and ambassador to Spain, on behalf of Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvit, have been filed in Orphans Court by the Potter Title and Trust Company, guardian for Jean Moore Davies, an heir under the Moore will.

Mrs. Calvit's attorneys were Herman Pollack and Henry Kornbluth, of New York, and Ira C. Houck, of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Calvit's claim for one-half of the Moore estate by reason of a pre-nuptial agreement between Moore and her mother, the famed Lillian Russell, was unsuccessful, but $40,000 was ordered transferred from Moore's estate to that of his wife to assure $50 weekly for Mrs. Calvit.

The exceptions charged the fee was excessive.

MOVE PROPOSED TO SAVE COST OF LAW SUIT

East Boroughs Rally Tonight As Demands for Utility Cost Reductions Increase

City Council today faced a second move within a week to join the attack on excessive public utility rates that is growing throughout the state, as the Finance Committee was to take up a resolution authorizing a series of conferences with the utility companies' heads here to secure reductions without the necessity of engaging in expensive litigation before the Public Service Commission.

As this resolution introduced yesterday by Councilman W. Y. English awaited today's meeting, citizens of the East Boroughs planned to rally at 8 o'clock tonight in Scott High School, North Braddock. Officers of the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association, leaders in the movement to force reductions and legislative reforms, were to speak.

"FAIR DEAL" ASKED

Councilman English's resolution pointed out that because of prevailing business conditions, rates should be lowered in conformity with lower living costs. He advocated "constant and continual mutually fair dealings at all times" to avoid the expense of "costly litigation."

State Representative Joseph G. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, told a West End-Elliott district mass meeting last night that the association did not propose that its work would cease with reductions. He said:

"We want laws of the Public Safety Commission changed so that when rates come down, either voluntarily or under compulsion, that the tariffs cannot be raised sky high without the consumer having a voice and before the proposed rates become effective."

The meeting, under auspices of the association's Forty-fifth Senatorial District Committee, also was addressed by President A. B. Davidson, of Tarentum, and Executive Committeeman Harry Wohlwend, of Greentree. Ward Chairman Howard J. Neeley, under District Chairman O. W. Heselbarth, presided.

DUQUESNE COUNCIL JOINS

Formal affiliation with the Fair Rate Association was voted at a meeting of the Duquesne City Council last night. A resolution asking the Council to join the association was presented by a committee of the Duquesne Business Men's Association, headed by H. E. Levine. Acting President of Council Edward E. Fey announced he would entertain the motion. It was offered by Councilman Joseph Hughes, and seconded by J. Murray Lenhart.

Similar action was taken at meetings of the Washington Heights Board of Trade and the Dormont Chamber of Commerce. R. F. Macrory, president of the Washington Heights body, was named delegate to the association, and A. C. Purby, borough solicitor, of Dormont, to represent the chamber of that borough. C. V. Shoop, of the Allied Boards of Trade, spoke at both meetings.

REDUCTIONS FAVORED

Members of City Council are on record as favoring immediate reductions in rates—especially for gas and electricity consumed here. English's alternate plan, he said recently, is proportionate assessment of expenses necessary for a rate fight among the various boroughs and townships who might collaborate with the city for ultimate reductions.

Additional research work prevented City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt from bringing into Council yesterday his estimate of the approximate cost of such litigation. This information was demanded by Councilman Charles Anderson. Waldschmidt said, however, that the cost might run between $60,000 and $100,000.

The Brookline Board of Trade today asked Council to join the fight for fair rates. The request was contained in a resolution adopted at a recent meeting of the board. The board stressed abolition of so-called service and ready-to-serve charges by the various companies.

Bardolph Released On Bond of $10,000

Charles A. Bardolph, president of the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company, was free under $10,000 bond today, following hearing on charges of embezzling and misapplying about $300,000 of his bank's funds, before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan yesterday.

The charges are the outcome of an investigation by George F. Taylor, Jr., Special Deputy Secretary of Banking, into the closed institution's affairs. Other prosecutions are expected.

JUNIOR LEAGUE DISPLAYS OLD SILVERWARE

Relics Dating Back as Far As 1716 Have Artistic And Historic Interest

By PENELOPE REDD

The town does itself proud in an exhibition of antique silver on view at the Junior League Galleries through February 20. For this exhibition, Hardy and Hayes have produced the vintage of their vaults.

Miss Redd

The oldest item is a tazza, a petit little salver on one leg designed in 1716 by Timbrell and Bertley of London. Evidently the gentleman who had his [illegible] salver served [illegible] political plans [illegible] was [illegible] a table as [illegible] as his [illegible] inscribed.

Then there are "pap boats" made in various capacities for small but noble appetites. One superior pap boat dates from 1758 by E Wood.

INTERESTING JUG

Should you have a taste for names, there is a miniature classic urn called an "Argyle." The name disguises a very clever sauce jug with a false bottom for hot water.

Case ware is elegantly represented by a silver gilt dessert set marked with a crest boasting chanticleer. This set well demonstrates the respect in which such treasures were held by English gentry. The set was added to by three different generations of one family between 1797 and 1847. R Crossley of London was the designer-smith.

Historic interest hovers about an entree dish designed by Paul Storr, last of the great silversmiths, in 1814. The officers of the 3rd Division commissioned Storr to make the dish for their commander, Sir Thomas Picton, when the division was disbanded at the end of the Peninsular Wars. Picton was killed soon after in the Battle of Waterloo.

COVERED DISHES SHOWN

A pair of covered dishes made in 1818 by one B Smith most engaged the attention. Smith has had precisely the same advantages and limitations as the other silversmiths represented, yet through some more sensitive instinct for his material he produces a superior design. His dishes partake of the virtues of architecture in his regard for proportion, movement and detail to prevent monotony.

The exhibition is open to the public until 5 daily.

Japs Won't Call It War Until They've Won It

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Have you noticed she has slapped the flying wedge on China without signing registration papers?

There has been no declaration of war, publishing of the banns or skipping of dividends.

That's smart. Japan isn't going to declare war until she is sure she is going to win it.

If Japan loses and the league says "You've got to pay for that war," the Mikado can say, "What war?"

There isn't a chance of stopping this Far Eastern neighborly shindig because it hasn't been brought to official notice of the league.

And when it is brought to the league's attention there will be less chance.

We hope they fight a long time. We like to read Floyd Gibbons.

BLIND BEGGARS OPPOSED HERE

There is no necessity for soliciting of alms by blind persons on Pittsburgh's streets, Council was told today by the Pittsburgh branch of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind.

Unless the mendicants and alms seekers are barred, appropriations to care for the sightless here will be exhausted within six months, the warning to Council said.

Nearly all those soliciting on the thoroughfares are from other cities and towns. The association said police should be less lenient with them and return them to their own municipalities.

CITY MAY SUE TAX DODGERS

Civil action can be taken and suits for conspiracy entered against persons who were relieved of the payment of delinquent tax penalties during the administration of deposed City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, Controller James P. Kerr has been advised.

Just what will be done, however, has not been decided. Controller Kerr said today, for he has not received the complete report of the audit. However, it was learned that the city's legal department has advised Controller Kerr that those who benefited can be prosecuted.

The amount involved in the rebates given to several scores of persons totals about $9,000. It is stated that some who were relieved of the payment of penalties have expressed their willingness to return the money to the city. Controller Kerr expects to get the complete report of the audit from Price, Waterhouse & Co within a few days.

Beware of SEPTIC SKIN

Nurse tells how to get clearer, smoother skin almost OVERNIGHT

THE first sign of any of these disfiguring skin faults is a warning of infection—septic skin. End them quickly . . . But you can't do it with ordinary creams. They merely wipe away surface dirt. You need the correct medical treatment to effectively rout out all deep-lodged impurities that cause these unsightly blemishes.

That's the advice of hospital nurses who have treated thousands of serious skin conditions. In countless cases doctors prescribe Noxzema, the famous snow-white, greaseless, medicated cream that purges and heals.

Noxzema contains a remarkable blend of scientific antiseptics and healing medicines. First it penetrates the pores and cleanses away every particle of clogged, germ-breeding matter that erupts in ugly pimples, blackheads, blemishes. The pores breathe freely—become scientifically pure and clean. Then Noxzema's mild astringents gently firm the enlarged, coarsened pores and leave the skin far finer and more even-textured—thrillingly smooth and velvety.

No wonder over 6,000,000 women depend on Noxzema for complexion health and loveliness! One woman tells another of this wonderful beauty find. Your very first application of Noxzema will tell you why. In 8 hours—overnight—it begins to work its beauty magic. The improvement is often astonishing. Soreness gone, coarse pores reduced, roughness smoothed away.

To gain and to keep a radiantly healthy, appealing young complexion—use Noxzema regularly.

Extra protection against winter COLDS

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times more powerful than other leading mouth washes. Hence, it goes 3 times as far. That's economy for you! Why waste money on antiseptics that must be used full strength to be effective?

FEWER colds—quicker relief once you have them—and the cost of fighting colds reduced two-thirds! Those are the reasons the public is changing to Pepsodent Antiseptic. Because Pepsodent Antiseptic is three times as powerful as other leading mouth washes . . hence it goes three times as far—gives you three times as much for your money and gives you extra protection against sore throat colds. For protection against germs associated with common ills, remember there are really only two leading kinds of mouth washes. On the one hand you have the mouth wash that must be used full strength to be effective. On the other hand you have Pepsodent Antiseptic, utterly safe even if used full strength, yet powerful enough to be diluted with two parts of water and still kill germs within 10 seconds. It is bad enough to pay a premium by using antiseptics that must be used full strength . . . it's worse to dilute them and fail to kill the germs . . . so choose the antiseptic that kills the germs even when diluted. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be sure! Be safe—and save money! Now is a good time to start.

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds, proves its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent Antiseptic is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, it kills germs even when diluted with water!

ROONEY TO SEEK BLUE LAW REPEAL

Assemblyman Announces Candidacy for Re-Election; Thomas for Legislature

Announcing his candidacy for re-election to the Legislature from the Seventh District, James P. Rooney, North Side, today declared unequivocally for repeal of all blue laws and for liberalization of prohibition legislation. Rooney said:

"I think it is the duty of all candidates to state openly their stand on important questions. I am strongly opposed to all the blue laws, and will continue to vote for their repeal. I am opposed to unfair rates for public utilities. I am for modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of 4 per cent beer and light wines, and I will vote for all bills which will give employment to the idle."

VOTED WITH PINCHOT

In the last legislative session Rooney consistently voted with the Pinchot forces on utility legislation, and sought legislative approval of a memorial to Congress to modify the Volstead act. The only occasion on which Rooney ran foul of public sentiment was when he introduced a bill to make the school board elective. This measure was not pushed.

Rumors that Ross Thomas, of Homestead, might oppose Senator Frank J. Harris for the State Senate from the Forty-fifth District, apparently were nullified today when petitions were taken out to place Thomas on the Republican primary ballots for the Legislature from the Eleventh District.

TUCKER IN FIELD

Electing officers at an annual meeting, the Polish-American Political Association of the Seventeenth Ward voted to take an active part in the coming primary, though candidates have not yet been indorsed. Officers elected were: Stephen R. Wajert, president; S. Dabrowski, vice president; A. J. Baranowski, secretary, and M. Wroblewski, treasurer.

Investigate Railway Sidewalk Project

Possibility of converting the abandoned Pittsburgh-Mars Interurban Short Line tracks along Mt. Royal boulevard between Etna and Allison Park into a pedestrian sidewalk will be investigated following an order by the highway safety committee of the Pittsburgh Motor Club yesterday. The project is designed to protect pedestrians obliged to walk on the boulevard to schools, churches, stores and bus stops, Robert L. Wickline, chairman, said.

Avalanche Victim's Body Recovered

KELLOGG, Ida., Feb. 16—(AP)—The body of Carl Lund, 38, crushed to death with his companion, Carl Areander, 67, under a snow avalanche that demolished their cabin, was recovered by fellow miners last night after a stubborn two-day battle. Areander's body was found Sunday night, buried under 25 feet of snow, rocks and uprooted trees carried down Big Creek gulch, east of here.

DEPOSITORS AID CLOSED BANK

A committee representing the depositors of the Bloomfield Trust Company was making plans today to co-operate with Special Deputy Secretary of Banking Hill Burgwin in liquidation of the institution.

The committee was named at a meeting attended by about 350 of the more than 3,000 depositors, held in St. Luke's M. E. School, Edmond street, last night. Headed by William Tiedeman, the group will attempt to enroll the support of all depositors. An operating fund will be raised by subscription of the claimants.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

The most interesting event scheduled for today right here in town is the program of three one-act plays to be given this evening in the Twentieth Century Club by the Stage and Play Society. Last night the dress rehearsals were held at the clubhouse.

After the plays tonight there'll be a Dutch treat supper at the Twentieth Century Club, with members of the three casts attending. There'll be three plays, "Pistol for One," by Carroll Fitzhugh, president of the society; "Lovely Miracle," by Philip Johnson, and "It Happens Only in Books," by Thornton Wilder.

A federal commission for direction and supervision of all stocks and bonds was urged by Prof. William Z. Ripley, celebrated economist, educator and lecturer, in his talk on "Insecurities for Investment" before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday. Prof. Ripley thinks the only way "the little people" (holders of small amounts of stocks and bonds) will be protected is through the establishment of such a commission.

He explained that the extensive buying of stocks and bonds immediately after the World War came because those who had "securities" to sell were on hand when the government began to pay off its war bonds. Before the war not more than 4,000,000 persons were holders of stocks and bonds and shortly after its close this number mounted to 20,000,000. It is even greater now, he said, as a result of the industrial and business orgy the country went through three years ago. During the last three years no less than $26,500,000,000 of securities were put forth for popular purchase in the United States—a national phenomenon, the speaker termed it.

Josephine A. Starcevic To Wed S. A. Hopkins

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Starcevic, of Swissvale avenue, Wilkinsburg, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Josephine Anne Starcevic, to Samuel Adams Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. COLLEGE CLUB HOLDS THEATER PARTY

Benefit Performance for Building Fund Success With SRO Sign Hung Up at Box Office

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Not one vacant seat was to be seen at the Alvin Theater last night when the College Club had its successful benefit for the new clubhouse. It was a gay, smartly dressed audience, too, composed for the great part of friends of the club, eager to assist in the present enterprise. Mrs. J. Brooks Huff, the president, was there, of course. She wore a black chiffon gown. Her mother, Mrs. R. D. Beardsley, was in black lace. Mrs. John E. Nelson, membership chairman, was in a blue velvet gown. She and Mr. Nelson entertained a party including their lovely daughter, Peggy, who looked charming in white lace and tulle; Miss Barbara Petty in henna georgette, and Dr. Paul Dodds.

Dr. Cora Helen Coolidge, one of the club's honorary members, was hostess in another box, her party including Mrs. William L. Coyle, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Roy Walters, Mr. and Mrs. John Thorne and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boyes, of Butler.

In an adjoining box were Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Bielau, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Werner, Mr. and Mrs. George Ketchum, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Riley and Mrs. Arlene Mitchell. As guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Simpson (the latter wearing black lace) were Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Snowden, Mr. and Mrs. J. C Rauch and E. A. Schofield.

Another box was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. Clyde Whetzel, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Tamplin and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Zimmerman.

Chairman Praised

Mrs. George Swan, who, as general chairman for the benefit, was receiving congratulations for its unqualified success, wore a fetching gown of blue chiffon with shoulder bouquet of orchids; Mrs. Sidney Chalfant's gown was of blue lace which she wore under a blue velvet wrap with ermine collar. Mrs. W. Kirkland Todd was also in blue velvet as was Mrs. S. K. Cunningham, another prominent member of the club. Mrs. William Reed Thompson, the club's honorary president, came in a black and gold lame wrap over a black gown.

Others noted in the audience were Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Samson, the latter in black velvet and satin; Mrs. Richard G. Hawkins, Jr., and her daughter, Mrs. Marcus W. Acheson; Miss Sara Ellis, in blue velvet; Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Withers, the latter in blue velvet and lace; Miss Eleanor Laird and Miss Emilie Fuller, who were together; Miss Ida M. Allerton, in black net; Mrs. March Darrin, black taffeta; Miss Eleanor Grier and her mother, Mrs. Samuel Grier; Miss Helen Bennett, Miss Marianne Genet, Mrs. Earl F. Reed, Mrs. Dudley D. Pendleton, Mrs. Frank D. Newbury and Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Rohrer and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Greene, of South Bend, Ind.

MORE PENALTIES TO SLOW UP GAME

DR. J. B. SUTHERLAND of Pitt, Bob Waddell, of Carnegie Tech, and Howard Harpster, of Geneva, approve the drastic changes in the football rules. They believe the alterations will have the desired effect of making the game safer for the players and reducing the number of injuries. Elmer Layden, of Duquesne, indorses the safety measures, but fears the permitting of a punt or dropkick on the kickoff will lead to short kicks that can be recovered, thus opening the way for injuries, and analyzes the rule in use of the hands on defensive as merely a protection for the larger linemen and a step against the smaller ones.

Elmer Layden

Some of the local officials and other football men while commending the rules committee in its endeavors to minimize injuries, are wondering what will be the result of the regulation prohibiting the flying block or tackle. They view this as the most important of the changes.

THE RULE MAKERS have been running around in circles on the flying tackle. A regulation requiring the tackler to have one foot on the ground was adopted 16 years ago only to be thrown out because nobody paid any attention to it. Now the flying tackle is again illegal, and with it the flying block also goes out. Things are even in the respect that the rule restrains the defensive on the one side and the offensive on the other.

But the spectators lose a thrilling feature in each instance, and besides officials fear that the change is going to slow up the game. The throwing out of the flying block, which hits the Notre Dame system in particular, means an entirely new system of blocking must be developed. It may prove difficult to make any other method of blocking wholly effective, and violations of the rule on both blocking and tackling threaten to be so numerous as to bring penalties galore and cause a slowing up of the game in consequence.

IT IS BELIEVED that the new rule liberalizing substitutions has been misinterpreted. One interpretation says a player may return to the game four times. When the committee clears up this point it may be shown that the regulation does not mean anything of the sort.

The rule says simply that a player withdrawn may return to the game ONCE in ANY subsequent period. It does not say EVERY subsequent period. The committee may mean that a player can return only one time, as formerly, but can make that one return in any later period instead of being barred from returning in the same half in which he was withdrawn, as in the past.

THE RETENTION OF the kickoff is pleasing, as saving a spectacular feature, with restrictions on the receiving side aimed to prevent the flying wedge. Allowing the kickoff to be made by punt or dropkick as well as by place kick may lead to the punt being used most frequently, as it is possible to place the ball more easily by that method. It is to be regretted that in seeking to eliminate roughness and injuries the committee did not see fit to give the thrower of a forward pass the same measure of protection already given to the kicker.

Dundee Rodgers

TWO BASEBALL PLAYERS of this district who are to perform for the Baltimore International League club have signed their Oriole contracts. Frank (Dundee) Rodgers, Sto-Rox outfielder, mailed his part to headquarters and will report March 6. Bill Regan, local second baseman and former Pirate, motored to Baltimore and delivered his signed agreement in person.

The Baltimore club, which will train in Gulfport, Miss., will have a strong Pittsburgh or Pirate coloring again this year. In addition to Regan there are three other former Buccaneers on the roster in Catcher Claude Linton, Pitcher Walter Tauscher and Third Baseman Jim Stroner.

RODGERS WAS TRADED to Cincinnati by the Orioles last spring for Catcher Johnny Gooch and trained with the Howleys, but lost his chance to stay up when Gooch refused to report to Baltimore and Commissioner Landis canceled the deal. Dundee was sent to Peoria in the Three-I League, where he batted .320, and was recalled in the fall.

For Baltimore he played in seven games and made 12 hits in 27 times at bat for an average of .444. It was his home run with one on winning a late game for the Orioles 3 to 2 that eliminated Al Mamaux's Newark Bears from the hot fight with Rochester for the pennant. The Washington Senators are said to be keeping an eye on him.

IF THE PLANS of Promoter Johnny Freund do not miscarry, the Rosenblum Celtics will be brought back for another professional basketball game in Motor Square Garden and also for contests in several towns in the tri-state area that have applied for dates. The Rosies play in Canton, O., tonight; in Huntington, W. Va., tomorrow night; in Ashland, Ky., Thursday, and will then work South for 10 engagements. They are to return to Cleveland for a meeting with the Renaissance Negro five on March 5, and if arrangements can be made the two teams will come to Pittsburgh for another game shortly afterward.

IT IS EXPECTED that a large number of local college and high school students will take advantage of the offer made by the Aspinwall driving range to give free golf instruction on Friday afternoons and Saturday mornings starting April 1. The driving range idea originated in California four years ago, and is going into its third year locally.

Such ranges are purely and essentially practice fields. Many of the first-line amateurs get control on the ranges before the season opens. Driving contests are held at Aspinwall each year, for both the simon pures and the pros. Last summer 1,000 devotees saw Lefty O'Doul, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, grab off first prize.

IT IS THE plan of Jimmy Johnston, boxing chief at Madison Square Garden in New York, to devote a goodly part of the remainder of the indoor season to rehabilitating four classes in which interest has sagged.

These are the bantam, feather, middle and light-heavyweight divisions. The feather and middleweight thrones are without occupants in the eyes of the New York commission, and the operation of the leaders of the two other classes named have not been satisfactory.

Kid Chocolate

JOHNSTON HAD FIGURED on pairing Kid Chocolate with Tony Canzoneri for the lightweight title, but Luis Gutierrez has cabled from Havana that when the Keed returns in mid-March it will be with the intention of going after the vacant featherweight championship instead. So now it is probable that Chocolate will be matched with the winner of Friday's Lew Feldman-Kid Francis battle, with the survivor meeting Earl Mastro for the 126-pound crown. Unless Vince Dundee stirs himself, the commission is expected to recognize a contest between Friday's Chick Devlin-Young Terry winner and Gorilla Jones as being for the middleweight scepter. Maxie Rosenblum against Adolf Heuser for the light-heavy honors, and Al Brown against Young Tommy for the bantam laurels are other feature shows that Johnston has in mind.

CRIPPLED TECH TEAM FACES PRESIDENTS

GAMES TONIGHT

Carnegie Tech at Wash-Jeff.
Carnegie Plebes at Wash-Jeff Freshmen.
Allegheny at Thiel.
Fairmont at Morris Harvey.

Carnegie Tech, after a two-week rest, resumes action on the courts tonight, encountering Washington and Jefferson College at Washington, Pa., in a contest that is expected to wax torrid before the evening is over. This in spite of the fact the Skibos tramped down the Presidents in their battle here earlier in the season.

It will be a more-or-less crippled Tech team which faces the Presidents tonight. Coach Buzz Hogan will leave Jim Fergus at home; he has not recovered from his attack of the "flu" and may not play again this season.

SMITH STILL WEAK

Although Bob Smith is still weak from illness, Hogan will be forced to use him; whether he will be of real value to the team remains to be seen.

Another disadvantage is the fact that the Tartans have been completely idle through the examination period; not a practice session was held prior to a short workout yesterday.

Tomorrow night the Carnegie squad moves on to Morgantown, W. Va., where it will encounter West Virginia University. Allegheny is met on the local court Saturday night. The probable lineup for tonight's game:

Carnegie	Pos.	W. & J.
Eiserman	F.	[illegible]
Smith	F.	Lurher
[illegible]	C.	Headrick
Leonard	G.	[illegible]
Berger	G.	Pearl

Referee—Walter Walls. Umpire—Burn. [illegible]

Creighton University, boasting the tallest and most powerful team to appear in Pittsburgh all winter, will send this fine combination to Pittsburgh Saturday to meet the Pitt Panthers in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion.

There have been more famous teams in Pittsburgh this winter, but there has hardly been any better, Notre Dame included, for at the present time the Bluejays are making a walkaway out of the Missouri Valley Conference race, having yet to meet defeat in that circuit. Against outside teams their record has been almost as good, Missouri, Syracuse, Southern California, and Brigham Young having been defeated, and three having been lost to Syracuse, Missouri and Marquette.

LION BOXERS HOSTS

After losing three games in a row to Notre Dame, Georgetown and the Navy, the Panthers would like to get back into the win column, but they will find this difficult against the big rangy Creighton passers, among whom any one under 6 feet looks like a midget.

While the basketeers are busy in the Stadium, Joe Orsini will take his boxing team to State College, where the Panthers are expected to lose their third meet in succession to the veteran Lion boxers.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

GAMES TONIGHT

Toronto at Boston.
Detroit at New York Rangers.
N. Y. Americans at Montreal Maroons.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 16.—The London Tecumsehs, who have not been beaten in their last four starts, and the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, who have waded through their last five games without a defeat, are prepared to "shoot the works" in their International Hockey League battle here tonight.

A victory for the locals will enable them to tie the Buffalo Bisons for the league lead. A triumph for the visitors will enable the Steel City puckmen to pass Cleveland in the standings, move into fifth place and advance to within a half-game of a playoff berth.

JACKETS HOLD EDGE

Although the Tecumsehs have been virtually unbeatable on their home ice, they have enjoyed very little success against the Jackets, either here or in Pittsburgh. The only setback which the locals have sustained in their last 13 starts here was handed them by Pittsburgh, and Pittsburgh is the only team in the circuit over which the Londoners have not been able to gain a decision. The Jackets have won three and tied two in five meetings with the Tecumsehs.

Their showing in recent games would indicate that the Yellow Shirts are playing in their best form of the season, and local fans are not at all confident of a London victory. In winning in Syracuse Sunday, Pittsburgh snapped the Stars' streak of eight games at home without defeat.

BATTLE ANTICIPATED

The only certainties regarding tonight's game are that it will be a real battle and that a capacity crowd will attend. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh	Pos.	London
Baxter	G.	Stuart
Fraser	D.	[illegible]
Reise	D.	[illegible]
Fields	C.	Heard
Proudfoot	W.	Pettinger
Gregg	W.	[illegible]

DETROIT HERE NEXT

At the finish of their game with the Tecumsehs in London tonight the Yellow Jackets will rush home to make ready for two tough games at Duquesne Garden. The Detroit Olympics are to appear here Thursday, and the Windsor Bulldogs will invade the Craig street arena Saturday.

CLEVELAND GETS DOLSON

CLEVELAND, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—In an effort to strengthen the crippled defense of the fifth-place Cleveland International League hockey team, Manager Harry Holmes announced today he had signed Clarence E. Dolson, goalie, last year with the Detroit Nationals.

Holmes said he also had obtained for a tryout Jean Paulhus, defenseman, from the Philadelphia club of the Canadian-American League.

Dolson has had five years' professional experience. He served all last season with the Detroit Falcons, but this fall was given his release. His home is Stratford, Ont.

PROTEST THROWN OUT

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—President Charles King, of the International Hockey League, last night said the protest of the Detroit Olympics against the officiating of Substitute Referees Ernie and Nelson Paul, at Syracuse, on February 7, had been thrown out.

RIBAS CUE LEADER

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Pedro Ribas, Spanish trickshot billiard player, has forged into the lead in his match with Charles Peterson, of St. Louis, for the world fancy shot title. Ribas last night accomplished the 34 shots on the program in 114 strokes to 129 for Peterson.

PIRATES LEAVE TOMORROW

Manager George Gibson today was shaping final preparations for the departure of the Pirate advance guard tomorrow night on the long trip to the spring training grounds at Paso Robles.

That part of the squad that is to start from Pittsburgh has been unexpectedly augmented by the arrival here of Pitcher Glenn Spencer. It had been understood that the young flinger would go direct to Chicago from his home in Binghamton, N. Y., and join the Gibson party in the Windy City Thursday morning, but he decided to drive to Pittsburgh instead, and store his automobile here.

It is understood that a desire to confer with club officials regarding the terms of his 1932 contract also prompted Spencer to change his customary route to camp. It is rumored that he is not entirely pleased with the document.

Joe Devine, manager of the Missions and former Pirate scout, is said to have been asked by the local club to visit Remy Kremer and Larry French in the far West and endeavor to patch up the differences which stand between those two pitchers and the signing of Pittsburgh contracts.

DETROIT EN ROUTE

DREYFUSSIANS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Scarce, indeed, were the baseball rulers or athletes who could thwart Barney Dreyfuss when the Pittsburgh magnate was aroused—and Barney was easy to rile if the subject dealt with baseball. But Fred Clarke, his great field leader, could turn the trick.

Clarke was a leader in the day when the players often had to fight to get inside the park, and if they won on a hostile field they frequently were compelled to fight their way back to the 'buses. In the early days of Fred's reign, the athletes dressed for battle at their hotel. Some of the stirring history of the game of that era revolves around the fights the players were forced to make with the fans.

So Clarke was not the one to be bluffed by any magnate, although there were times when he had to use humor and diplomacy to circumvent Dreyfuss.

George McQuillan, Lefty Leifield, Jimmy Viox and others of the Buccos of 20 years ago like to tell of an incident which must have caused a scream in the Pirate clubhouse at the conclusion of a game in which the Buccos resembled anything but champions.

The club of that particular season started off with a bang and the fans and scribes were talking about the pennant when the combination started to sag. Even the stars of the team fell below expectations and in a few short weeks their losing way had dropped them into the second division.

The looser the play of his team the more incensed its owner became. Still the Freebooters found new ways to lose ball games. Things reached such a pass that Dreyfuss' injured feelings carried him to extremes. He would go to the clubhouse immediately after the bad contests to berate his players. He did this until Clarke finally lost his patience, and it is said the fiery Kansan led his boss to the exit in such a manner that Barney decided he would not return.

Worse and worse became the Pirates as they skidded toward the bottom. Barney probably wanted to vent his ire on his athletes, but they were smart enough to keep away from him, and he did not wish to resume his clubhouse lectures.

But one day the Buccos were pitiable as they dissipated a big lead and then dropped another game in an entirely new way. Dreyfuss was beside himself. The players naturally felt bad over the latest setback, but they were forced to smile and break into laughter when the clubhouse door was pulled open a few inches and a disgusted face peered into the little opening and Barney's familiar voice shouted:

"Quitters!"

Whereupon the owner beat a hasty retreat.

DUKES DOWN WASHINGTON

It was sweet revenge for the Durable Dukes last night when they rose to the heights to end the brilliant 11-game winning streak of George Washington University, 38 to 32, on the Bluff. The Capitol City outfit had humiliated the Daviesmen on their recent trip through the East, and were handed a taste of their own medicine.

Dudey Moore and Irwin, at forward and guard respectively, braced the Duke lineup, managing to gain possession at the tipoff, even though the Washington five had a distinct advantage in height.

The Dukes held a lead of 18 to 12 at the interval, and held the advantage through the second half. Art Feldman was the top scorer, registering 14 points.

In a preliminary contest, the Duquesne Freshmen took the measure of St. Patrick's of Canonsburg, 38 to 11. The lineup:

Lane Named Coach At Boston University

BOSTON, Feb. 16.—(INS.)—Myles Lane, well-known hockey star and former football player at Dartmouth University, has been named as head football coach at Boston University. He succeeds Helary Mehaney. He was a backfield star at Dartmouth.

At present, Lane is with the Boston Bruins Cubs hockey team. The Bruins purchased him from the New York Rangers.

SCHENLEY FIVE MENACED BY TRADERS

By JULIUS LEVIN

Johnny Dickson's Connelley Trade School passers will have an opportunity to advance within a half game of first place in Section I this afternoon when they invade Taylor Allderdice to meet Irwin's quintet in the feature attraction on the local basketball schedule.

If Connelley can take the measure of Allderdice this afternoon and follow this triumph with another over Schenley on Friday, the Dickson passers will step into first place in Section I. Schenley, the present leader, is not scheduled for action this afternoon.

AFTER TENTH WIN

In Section II, Allegheny goes after its tenth successive league victory by opposing Allegheny Vocational at Phipps gym. Carrick plays at Perry and South Hills goes to Langley.

The light W. P. I. A. L. schedule is featured by the battle between Mt. Lebanon and McKees Rocks on the Mt. Lebanon floor. Mt. Lebanon is setting the pace in Section IX, and if it can take the measure of the Rocks passers today it will have clinched the title. On the other hand, a victory for McKees Rocks will send the two teams into a deadlock for the top position.

SWISSVALE UNDEFEATED

Monessen, trailing Charleroi by a half game in Section V, has a chance to move into another tie for the lead by scoring a victory over South Brownsville. Charleroi is not scheduled for league competition tonight.

Ed Paulie's Swissvale aggregation, undefeated in 10 straight games in Section XI, goes after its eleventh straight triumph by engaging Coach Pickett's Edgewood quintet.

COACHES FAVOR NEW RULES

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Generally speaking, the official reaction to the changes made in the playing code by the national football rules committee has been favorable, but there have been dissenters enough to make the debate interesting.

The new and liberalized substitutes rule and the move toward making equipment safer not only for the wearer, but his opponents as well, met with almost unanimous approval.

But protests of varying degrees of emphasis greeted the other four changes—the alterations in the kickoff and "dead ball" rules and the committee's decision to forbid the use of the flying block and flying tackle, and the aggressive use of the hands on the defense.

Those who favored the changes took the position that the rules committee had made the game safer for the players without taking anything vital from it. Those opposed believed some spectacular features had been removed and that the new rules would handicap the smaller player severely.

Elmer Layden, of Duquesne, declared the rule which forbids a player on the defense to strike a rival on the head or face with his hands "will eliminate the use of small players," and called it "simply a protection for the big boys."

He was joined in that stand by three other former Notre Dame-trained coaches, Tommy Mills, of Georgetown; Rip Miller, of Navy, and Edward (Slip) Madigan, of St. Mary's, of Oakland, and by Bill Ingram, of California. Harvey Harman, of Penn, thought the penalty for violation of this rule (disqualification of the player and loss of half the distance to the offending team's goal line) was so severe that officials would be chary of calling it.

MRS. L. RILEY QUALIFIES

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 16.—Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Pittsburgh, a member of the Edgewood Country Club, is playing her first-round match in the annual championship of Florida golf tournament at the Palm Beach Country Club today. She is opposing Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, of Hutchinson, Kan., in the title 16.

Mrs. Riley qualified yesterday with a card of 47-46—93, entering the championship division by two strokes.

Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., won the medal with 38-39—77, leading a large field by a single stroke. Second place was gained by America's woman champion, Helen Hicks, of Hewlett, N. Y., whose score was 42-36—78.

Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J., several times metropolitan titleholder and Florida champion in 1930, was the only other entrant to break 80, her tally being 38-41—79.

SLED RACE WON BY HOMBURGER

MT. VAN HOEVENBERG, LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Henry (Hank) Homburger, young civil engineer who holds the world speed record for four-man bob sleds on a mile and a half slide, roared down the Olympic chute today close to record time to defend successfully his North American and Amateur Athletic Union championship.

Homburger's times were 1:55 and 1:53.34, fastest made in competition on the speedy course this year, the latter little more than a second back of his world record of 1:52.

A careening, breath-taking burst down the steep mountainside in the final heat by Lieut. Alexander Papana, pilot of the Rumanian entry, in 1 minute 53.01 seconds, fastest of the day, gave him second place with a total of 3 minutes 51.31 seconds, a fraction better than the total time of Hubert Stevens, giant Olympic two-man bob champion who finished third.

Hubert tore down the fastest track offered for competition in the past week in 1:57.39 and 1:54.30 for a total of 3:51.69.

The championships today, following hard on the final Olympic competition yesterday that crowned Billy Fiske's four-man bob champion, were limited to two heats. Tomorrow the two-man bobs race for similar titles.

DUKES-TITAN TILT SOUGHT

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 16.—Discussions throughout the district of a post-season basketball game between Duquesne University and Westminster College were called premature by Coach John Lawther, of Westminster, today.

"If Duquesne plays a post-season charity game to determine the championship of Western Pennsylvania," Lawther says, "the Dukes will want to play the winner of the Tri-State Conference championship and small college championship.

"The game with Geneva at Beaver Falls, the return contest with Allegheny at Meadville, the game with Grove City at home, as well as the Bethany and Thiel contests, will keep us very busy until March 5. None of these will be easy.

"If Westminster is fortunate enough to defeat these strong teams, it will be time enough to consider a post-season game. We should, if deserving of it, be glad to play for the benefit of the unemployed."

NEWS TO DUKES

Any proposition to meet Westminster College in a post-season game to decide the district basketball title is news to Duquesne, according to John Holahan, graduate manager of the Bluff school.

"We have neither made nor received any such invitation," was his comment. "Furthermore, any proposal would have to be acted upon by the Duquesne Athletic Council. Such a game is not impossible, but it is very improbable and discussion at this early date is certainly premature."

Greensburg Legion Stages Mitt Show

Johnny Zayak, Lyceum A. C., defeated Eddie Scaff, Willow A. C., in three rounds. Both were welterweights. Johnny Berick, 140, Lyceum, knocked out Lee Moon, 142, Willow Club, in 2:05 of the second round. Leon Battinelli, 120, Lyceum A. C., lost to Eddie Rattosh, Willow Club. Tony Demose, 118, Willow Club, defeated John Fallgone, 121, unattached. Reg Miller, 161, defeated Church Mullen, 169, in three rounds. Davy Davis, 162, Irwin, lost to Frank Kiatek, 166, Willow Club, on a knockout in the first round. Time—1:26. Harry Serg, Lyceum, welterweight, lost to Robert McCall, Willow A. C., in three rounds. Johnny Durso, 135, Willow Club, lost to Al Sunseri, Lyceum A. C., in three rounds.

YOUNGSTOWN Y HERE

The Bidwell Club basketball team will be host to the Youngstown Y. M. C. A. team on the Phipps gymnasium floor tonight at 9:15 o'clock. The Youngstown Y. girls' team will oppose the Paramount Girls in a preliminary at 8 o'clock. Packy Vaugh will referee the main contest.

PIRRONE BEATS WEST IN HOT RETURN GO

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Tiger Joe West, local middleweight, last night redeemed himself for his recent two-round knockout defeat by Paul Pirrone by traveling the route in game fashion against the belting Clevelander in the 10-round windup at Motor Square Garden, but he didn't win the fight. One of the judges, Jock Simco, voted for him, while the other one, Frank Brown, and Referee Red Robinson rightly scored the bout for Pirrone.

Pirrone won by a goodly margin in a vicious battle in which he three times had the Tiger on the brink of a knockout, only to see his man weather each storm.

West did not receive a penny for his efforts. When he went to the box office for the payoff, he discovered that his purse had been attached by court order to pay a debt.

PIRRONE SCORES HEAVILY

It was their third meeting. The first, in the Meyers Bowl last summer, was ruled a draw. Then came the knockout at the Moose Temple several weeks ago, and finally the clash of last night, which merited a bigger gate than it drew.

As was the case at the Moose, West stepped out and won the opening round last night, but he was in trouble again in the second, in which Pirrone started off by scoring with two solid left hooks to the head and outpunched Joe inside.

Pirrone also won the third round, with his heavy two-fisted belting, and finished up the fourth by hammering the body and then shifting to the jaw and rocking Joe and making him hold on. One of the blows split West's left eye.

MISS KAYO IN SIXTH

Pirrone continued the aggressor in the fifth, scoring heavily, and then went out after a knockout in the next round. He readied up West with a body attack and then stiffened him standing up with a left hook. He followed up with both fists, driving West before him, but the latter managed to grab a clinch and hold on. He worked his way through the grogginess with Paul missing swings by a foot or more as he strove to put over a haymaker. The bell found the Tiger bleeding badly from the nose and glad to get a respite.

The pace slackened in the seventh, with West moving about and boxing his way to an even break. Then the local man proceeded to gain the edge in each of the next two rounds, with Pirrone seemingly tired and missing badly, and packing no punch when he did land. Just when it looked as if West might finish up in great style after his early distress, Pirrone rallied to go berserk in the final round and belt him around in vicious fashion. A series of rights to the head shook the Tiger and had him holding at the final bell.

MARINO STOPS FARR

Tony Marino, of Duquesne, 114, won by a technical knockout when the seconds of Mickey Farr, of Cleveland, 112¼, chucked the fight for him at the end of the third round because Mickey had a cut eye and also was cut on the inside of the mouth. Marino had all the better of the going after the opening round, in which the stocky Farr crowded him about the ring and dropped him for a count of one with a left to the head.

Matty Oldach, of Erie, 141, outfought Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, 141½, in the second bout, a rip-snorting six-rounder, despite the fact that both of his eyes were cut. Judge Simco voted for a draw and the other officials for Oldach.

Jack Henderson alternated with Robinson as the referee. Harry Klaas did the announcing and A. C. Couch and Norman Borland were the timers, with Dr. M. R. Goldman the commission physician.

Olympic Games Gate is $96,000

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Bad weather and all, gate receipts for the third winter Olympics, ended here yesterday with the running of the postponed four-men bobsled races, amounted to $96,000 or only $4,000 less than the Olympic committee expected, the committee said today.

Emerging from a maze of figures on costs and receipts, this Adirondack resort found that it will pay $52,468.15, the winter games deficit, for the privilege of writing its name boldly into the history of International winter sports competition.

Fight Results

At Motor Square Garden—Paul Pirrone won referee's decision over Tiger Joe West, 10 rounds; Tony Marino won by technical knockout over Mickey Farr (bout stopped at end of third round); Matty Oldach won referee's decision over Eddie Hebner, 6 rounds; Patsy Hennigan defeated Bobby Stewart, 6 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Tony Canzoneri defeated Lew Massey, 10 rounds; Young Ketchel defeated Jimmy Smith, 10 rounds; Al Tendler won by technical knockout over Ray Gadaby, 5 rounds; Nick Yenore won by technical knockout over Bert Tubbs, 3 rounds; Joey Costa knocked out Johnny Lucas, 3 rounds.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

George Courtney, former Oklahoma cowboy, protege of Jack Kearns, will take the place of Dick Evans, of Youngstown, against Guy Salerno, of Los Angeles, in the 10-round main bout at the Moose Temple tomorrow night.

The change was made when Evans turned an ankle doing road work over the bridle path in Schenley Park. Courtney was in training for another bout, which was postponed, and was glad to jump at the chance to fill the breach. He will come here tonight from Chicago, where he makes his headquarters.

Courtney has appeared here once before, beating Patsy Perroni, of Canton, O., at the Meyers Bowl, in North Braddock, last summer.

Meanwhile Denver Mickey Cohen, en route to campaign in the New York rings, has been signed to oppose Tony Herrera in the windup at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, this bout taking the place of the postponed Jackie Fields-Jimmy Belmont non-title match in the East End arena. Herrera won a decision over Cohen in 12 rounds in Kansas City last Thursday night.

Between Rounds

Eddie Kapphan says the impression is abroad that his Arena in Addison street of Center avenue is located on the second floor of the building, which is erroneous. The auditorium is on the ground floor. Tiger Joe Randall and Billy Holt box for the local Negro welterweight title in the windup of Kapphan's third show, Friday night. Mike Kelly, of the South Side, and Silver Monton, of Aliquippa, are paired for the opener.

Eddie Shea, who has been laid up with a broken nose, boxes Freddie Miller in St. Louis March 6.

Ross Fields, Weirton (W. Va.) southpaw bantamweight, fighting under the management of Jimmy Dunn, of Cleveland, has scored four knockouts within two weeks against K. O. Scott, Joey Dragon, Joey Ross and Pete Mazzeo. That's belting them out for a little fellow.

Five amateur boxing bouts and vaudeville entertainment will be offered as a benefit performance for the needy of the Twenty-first Ward in St. Andrew's Lyceum hall, Chateau street, North Side, tonight.

Jackie Purvis and Jack December meet again in the six-round main bout of a show in Cleveland Friday night. Eddie Simms and John Parker are in another feature bout on the card.

Al Ettore boxes Able Bain and Gene Buffalo meets Sailor Pulaski in Philadelphia Thursday night. Pat Haley boxes Johnny Peppe, Dan Hassett opposes Johnny Dixon and Billy Ketchel goes against Grover Hayes in eight-rounders in the same city Friday night.

The N. B. A. has awarded its featherweight elimination tournament to Scotty Monteith's Olympia arena in Detroit.

Jack Redman, the Negro heavyweight, of South Bend, now here with Gaitfield Johnson, the light-heavyweight, under the management of Clarence Pierce, boasts a fine record. Among the men he has beaten are Jack Beasley, Tony Fuente, Big Boy Peterson, Dynamite Jackson, Ray Pelky, Bad News Johnson, K. O. Christner, Benny Touchstone, Al Friedman, Harold Mays, Ted Sandwina, Frankie Wine, Whitey Gotline, Joe Burke, Chuck Pete, Matt Adgie, Walter Pickerd, Joe Lohman, Len Darcy, Fred Caldori and Battling Gahre. He weighs 187 pounds and is 6 feet 2 inches tall, a fast boxer and a good puncher. The Motor Square Club is seeking an opponent for him for an early date.

JAMISON MEDALIST

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Thomas S. Jamison, of Greensburg, Pa., who took medal honors in the twelfth annual Pinehurst seniors' golf tournament with an 84, was paired with G. S. Proctor, of Pittsburgh, in the first round of match play.

BUFF DONNELLI QUITS LOCAL SOCCER

By TOM BIRKS

With the Western Pennsylvania Soccer Football Association meeting this evening at its headquarters, a number of interesting problems may be settled.

The appeals committee will discuss Clan Douglas' appeal from the decision of the Central League. The championship depends upon the outcome of this appeal. If the committee agrees with the league and decides against Douglas, then Union Switch and Signal will be undisputed champion.

The West Penn cup committee will have the Morgan-Morry mess to wade into. Smart work by the officials prevented a riot at the game.

THROUGH WITH 'RAZZING'

Buff Donnelli has played his last local soccer game. Probably there is much internal dissension on the Morgan team, but the radical element in the crowd is not giving Buff a square shake.

Calling players names from within the protection of a crowd is poor sportsmanship, and fans would not dare face the players off the field and say the same things.

Buff, without a doubt the greatest player ever developed in Western Pennsylvania, the only local-born boy to be offered a British contract, has done much for local soccer, and he has come to the conclusion that the game is not worth the 'razzing.' So Buff will pass out of the picture, and the game will suffer.

JUNIORS PLAY SUNDAY

The game is beginning to go over in a big way, but a few more like last Sunday's will find the crowds dwindling. During the interval, the park police men-games like last Sunday's will find the crowds dwindling. During the interval, the park police mentioned they had silenced fans hurling abuse at the Donnelli brothers. But the barrage was resumed later, and Buff hurtled over the fence after his tormentors. The game was stopped for a time, and the head of the governing body rightly ordered the game to proceed. This was to protect the large crowd.

The cup committee has announced the junior semi-final game, featuring Shannon Juniors and Primrose, will be played next Sunday at South Park. The following Sunday probably will see the playing of the western final of the national amateur cup. Commissioner Sam Park is endeavoring to bring the Cleveland Shamrock-Morry game to South Park.

GENEVA TRIPS BISONS, 39-23

BETHANY, W. Va., Feb. 16.—Geneva College invaded the domain of Bethany and romped off with a 39-to-23 victory last night in a Tri-state Conference game. At the half-way mark the visitors were leading, 22 to 12.

Montgomery, Geneva center, was the leading scorer with five baskets. The lineup:

Dempsey Records Two Knockouts

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey knocked out a man a minute in a short-lived exhibition here last night, dropping George Kohler, Chicago, and Pat McLaughlin, Waupaca, Wis., in a little more than two minutes. The bouts were scheduled for two rounds each.

JO-JO DINNER TONIGHT

The Jo-Jo Club will give a dinner at the Bellevue Y. M. C. A. at 6:45 tonight to be followed by two basketball games, the preliminary to be played at 8:30 by the Trinity Hawks and Trinity Cardinals, midget teams of Trinity Cathedral, which played the preliminary to the Celtics-Brooklyn American game at Motor Square Garden last Friday night. At 9:30 the Jo-Jo Club will play the Joseph Horne Store Alumni.

HAFEY HOLDS OUT

BERKELEY, Cal., Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Chick Hafey, bespectacled outfielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, has joined the list of players who want more money this season. The leading hitter of the National League last year said he had not signed his contract because it offered him the same salary as in 1931 and he feels he is entitled to more money on his record.

CANZONERI WINS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16.—Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, defeated Lew Massey in a 10-round bout here last night, boxing brilliantly to win the unanimous decision in the same ring in which he recently was stripped of his world junior welterweight crown by Johnny Jadick, another local boxer. Massey was down for a count of seven in the opening round.

Salesmen

The Todd Company of Rochester, N. Y., manufacturers of check writing equipment, checks, and bank stationery supplies, is effecting a country-wide sales expansion. Products of unusual sales appeal are being offered. Men with ability to sell business firms and banks are earning a larger income than that of the average salesman today. Thorough training preparatory to assignment of territory on commission basis. There is real opportunity for good salesmen to work out of the local Todd office and to earn promotion to managership of new offices as they are opened.

Please phone or write, The Todd Sales Company, American Bank Building, Room 604, Pgh., Pa., for appointment.

Bank Act Modification Should Afford Wider Use of Credit.

No surprise was occasioned by the action of copper companies in the Kennecott group in voting to omit dividend payments. Kennecott, which had paid 12½ cents three months ago voted to discontinue further payments and similar action was taken by Utah and Nevada Consolidated, both of which it controls, the former having paid $1 three months ago while Nevada had paid 10 cents. No further explanation than that afforded by conditions in the copper metal market are necessary to account for the omissions. Though foreign buying is showing some slight improvement at the moment, both export demand and domestic requirements have been discouragingly slight and in spite of curtailed output the industry's surplus stocks remain at approximately record levels with the price the lowest quoted in more than 30 years and equivalent to less than production costs for most producers. International Nickel also omitted action on the dividend.

The annual meeting of Transamerica Corporation proved a calm affair and was entirely lacking in the spectacular elements which Wall Street always anticipates when a proxy fight, involving control of an enterprise, is in order. West Coast interests came into the meeting with a substantial edge in the way of proxy holdings, so much in fact that New York interests, who had been in control for a period of some two years, did not so much as request a recount. The stock was inclined to moderate strength following the news of the return of control to the Giannini interests, but the New York financial community, realizing that the corporation had undertaken enormous writeoffs, involving approximately $1,100,000,000 in the last two years, was not looking for any early developments of importance from the new management.

Short covering has been an important factor in Westinghouse Electric in the past few sessions. The stock for a long time was a popular target with a certain group of professionals who sold heavily whenever technical rallies occurred. It was some time after the original pressure that stop-loss orders were reached, but when this liquidation came it presented excellent and favorable opportunities for covering without causing abrupt advances. There is still quite a short interest in the stock against which a demonstration could be staged with success.

American Brake Shoe and Foundry has cut administrative and selling costs approximately 33 per cent below 1929, and is in particularly good position to benefit by any moderate increase in railroad repair work. Brake Shoe does a large replacement business and does not depend on new equipment purchases. In addition to the prospect of improvement in railroad buying later on, the company currently is enjoying better business from its automotive brake subsidiary than at this time a year ago.

Congoleum-Nairn is another company which made an interesting showing for 1931 with earnings of 90 cents a share, against 8 cents in 1930. At the end of December current assets were 31½ times current liabilities while holdings of cash, United States government short term state and municipal securities aggregated more than $10,000,000. Since the end of 1929 the common stock outstanding has been reduced by purchases for the company to 1,268,951 shares from 1,641,026 shares. Current market appraisal of the bonds and preferred and common stocks is approximately $14,500,000 while the net working capital was $16,636,469.

Predictions that Best & Co. would cover its dividend for 1931 by a good margin were confirmed, the report for the 12 months ended January 31, showing $3.62 a share. The annual dividend rate is $2. Interests close to the management contend the showing was relatively good. There was a decrease in the volume of dollar sales of 8.4 per cent, and the margin of profit was down to 6.7 per cent, against 8.4 in the previous year. However, current assets were six times current liabilities, compared with only 3.3 times in the year before.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

U. S. ELECTRIC PAYMENTS

Total 1931 distributions on Series "B" trust certificates of the United States Electric Light and Power Shares, Inc., amounted to approximately $1,300,000, or $840 per unit. These units consist of 394 shares in 44 public utility companies. Receipts during 1931 amounted to $935.91 per unit, and there was an undistributed balance of $84.54 per unit.

U. S. GYPSUM PROFIT

The consolidated annual statement of the United States Gypsum Company and subsidiary companies for 1931 shows a net profit of $3,563,142. In 1930 it was $5,408,685. The statement accompanying the report sets forth that the 1931 profits amounted to the required 7 per cent dividend on the preferred stock, plus $2.48 per share on common stock outstanding. The total dividend paid was $2,454,884.

Omission of Dividends By Copper Companies Reflects Cut In Price

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE OMISSION OF dividends by Kennecott Copper and its affiliated organizations yesterday caused little surprise in financial circles, in view of the unprecedented dilemma facing the industry. Copper has fared worse than other types of business since 1929.

After holding the price stabilized at 18 cents a pound for over a year, the market was allowed to skyrocket to a peak of 24 cents during the days of prosperity. This resulted in overstimulation of production and the development of too many mining properties.

Prices then started an uninterrupted fall, but it was not so easy to turn off the flow of production as it was to start it. As a result, the red metal dropped to six cents a pound last week, the lowest price on record. It is now three cents below any price that ever prevailed before 1931. Prior to last year the lowest price at which copper ever sold was nine cents. This was in January, 1895.

Consumers are Well Supplied With Copper

CONSUMERS ARE SUPPLIED with enough metal to last them into July. They are not likely to do much more buying as long as the price situation is in doubt since the credit of fabricators has been materially curtailed as a result of the reduced value of stocks already in their hands.

Additional offerings on the domestic market may be expected to result in a further lowering of prices since new orders coming from fabricators are small.

In many respects the troubles of the copper industry are similar to those of oil. It costs too much money to shut down a mine to make this a logical procedure for the small producer. As a result the industry probably will continue to struggle under the burden of excessive production for some time to come in the hope of a future business revival.

All Producers Losing Money at Present Price

IT IS UNLIKELY that any copper producer anywhere in the world is making money today. It is doubtful if 1,000,000,000 pounds of copper a year, which is about the present demand, could be produced profitably even if the operation were confined to a few mines working at capacity at the present price of six cents a pound delivered. Such production is about 20 per cent of the maximum capacity of the copper mines of the world. The present operating rate is about 26 per cent of capacity.

In order to keep running, the copper industry is giving away its ore reserves without a profit and is selling its metal for several cents a pound less than the cost of producing it.

The explanation of this is found in the fact that many mines do not dare shut down. In some cases it would cost about $2,000,000 to reopen them after a long period of idleness. Under certain mining systems a year's closing would make it necessary to either abandon the ore blocks or go to an expense equal to reopening entirely new areas with the amount of recoverable metal much less than originally existed.

TRADE BALANCE FAVORS U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb 16—(AP.)—The United States had a favorable foreign trade balance of approximately $14,000,000 during January.

The Department of Commerce announced today that exports during January approximated $150,000,000 and imports $136,000,000. Exports during January, 1931, were $249,598,000 and imports $183,148,000.

Exports for the seven months ending January 31 were approximately $1,257,756,000, against $2,017,061,000 for the corresponding period in 1931, and imports $1,118,598,000, against $1,508,071,000.

The gold movement during January showed an increase. Exports of gold were $107,863,000 and imports $32,905,0000. During January, 1931, gold exports were $54,000,000 and imports $34,426,000.

During the seven months ending January 31, gold exports were $573,869,000, compared with $106,559,000 during the corresponding period in 1931, and imports were $405,483,0000, against $198,281,000.

Silver exports during January were $1,611,000 and imports $2,097,000. During January, 1931, exports of silver were $3,571,000 and imports $2,898,000.

During the seven months ending January 31, silver exports were $13,320,000, against $27,725,000 in the same period of 1931. Imports were $16,727,000, against $22,384,000.

STOCK MARKET GAINS AFTER EARLY DIP

Net Advances Appear as Resistance Stiffens and Trend Reverses; Steel Up

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—An early selling movement which sent stock prices down a point or more ran into stubborn resistance today and the market more than recovered its losses under fairly animated buying.

A feature was the active accumulation of low priced stocks. Large blocks of Radio Corporation common were purchased, the quotation advancing around 1 point net. The preferred issues were up 1 to 3. Transamerica Corporation was also well bought. An opening transaction involving a block of 5,000 shares was followed by other sizeable purchases, which carried the price fractionally higher. United Aircraft, Kroger, Alaska Juneau and Montgomery Ward also firmed.

Announcement of an increase of ¼ cent a pound in the copper export price failed to attract particular buying to the coppers, which, however, were steady. McKeesport Tin Plate was a strong feature. U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, American Telephone and Western Union turned their early losses into moderate gains. International Business Machine was up around 4 points.

Unwelcome as the prospect of higher taxes might be, the announcement from Washington that additional increases were now planned drew favorable response of the strength of Wall Street's conviction that the national budget must be balanced. Principal interest appeared to center in proposed advances in imposts on corporation revenues, the proposed 1 cent federal gasoline tax, a 7 per cent charge on gas and electricity sales and a 42 per cent surtax rate on incomes of $500,000 and over.

While the January foreign trade figures showed a decline of nearly 50 per cent in exports compared with one year ago, the balance of trade was still favorable to the United States. Exports approximated $150,000,000 against imports of $136,000,000.

The weekly Federal Reserve Board report again showed an unmistakeable deflationary trend, but its influence was offset by reports that full speed ahead was being given by Congress to the Glass-Steagall bill. Loans of member banks declined another $114,000,000 during the week and investments were down $80,000,000.

Prairie Pipe Gets Magnolia Order

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—It is reported that a contract has been negotiated between the Prairie Pipe Line Company and the Magnolia Petroleum Company calling for delivery to Magnolia through the Prairie's system of 15,000 to 20,000 barrels of oil daily. This is the most important addition to Prairie's business for more than two years, it is asserted in oil circles. The Magnolia company is a subsidiary of the Socony-Vacuum Corporation.

A NIGHT Alarm

"WAKE UP—the baby's sick!" With a start, Bill Hawley broke loose from sleep. The fear in his wife's voice and the child's wail spurred his hasty dressing.

Together they hung over the cot. "I'll run next door and telephone Dr. Pelham," Bill declared. Without hat or coat he darted away.

In desperation, Bill started for the doctor's home. "Never again," he muttered as he hurried down the deserted street. "Never again! From now on there'll be a telephone in the house, or I'll know the reason why!"

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

COTTON STEADY AT DECLINE

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 2 to 4 points on southern and local selling. May sold at 6.91c.

Business was fairly active and orders seemed to be pretty evenly divided after the call, with offerings absorbed by covering or trade buying, which held the market fairly steady within 2 or 3 points either way of the opening quotations.

The New York Cotton Exchange service places its preliminary estimate of world's consumption of all growths for the first half of this season at 11,475,000 bales, compared with 10,939,000 for the same period last season. The figures include 5,975,000 of American for this season against 5,377,000 last year.

While trading continued moderately active, prices showed very little change later in the morning. Some further realizing or liquidation and southern selling appeared to be absorbed by continued trade buying. The market at midday was quiet and steady at net declines of 1 to 5 points with May holding around 6.88.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 16.—Cotton—Spot good business done; prices unchanged; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6.28; good middling, 5.88; strict middling, 5.78; middling, 5.73; strict low middling, 5.63; low middling, 5.53; strict good ordinary, 5.33; good ordinary, 5.03. Receipts, 15,000 bales, American, 200. Futures closed quiet and steady: March, 5.29; May, 5.38; July, 5.38; October, 5.43; December, 5.48; January, 5.50.

EXPORT COPPER PRICE RAISED

WHEAT RALLIES AFTER DROP

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Downturns of grain values took place early today, duplicating action of securities at New York and of wheat at Liverpool. A pause in European import buying of wheat was noted. Opening ¼-¾c off, wheat afterward rallied. Corn started at ¼c decline to a shade advance and subsequently kept near the initial range.

Wheat price rallies lifted the market soon in some cases to above yesterday's finish. There was no material selling pressure in the pit, and buying support developed at around 59½ cents for May contracts. Reports of more or less injury done to domestic winter wheat southwest as a result of soil blowing were a bullish factor. The damage was stated to be most severe in the late planted fields with shallow rooting.

Car Output Above Seasonal Trend

DETROIT, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—Automobile production in the week ended February 13 increased by more than the normal seasonal gain, according to Cram's automotive reports. Actual output totaled 32,726 cars and trucks, which compares with 30,032 units in the previous week and 50,553 units in the corresponding week of last year. Increased Ford production, as well as Chevrolet and Chrysler, accounted for the rise.

Two More Carriers Seek Federal Aid

The Denver and Rio Grande Western has applied for a $500,000 accommodation and the Western Pacific wants a loan of slightly more than $1,000,000. These are in addition to aid which both roads plan to ask from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

GIANNINI NEW BANK CHIEF

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The A. P. Giannini forces were in control of the management of the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association today as a result of resignations and elections yesterday at the annual meeting here.

Resignations included those of Arnold J. Mount, president of Bank of America; Lynn P. Talley, chairman of the board, and George A. Webster, executive vice president.

A. P. Giannini was elected president and also chairman of the board. The stockholders re-elected 60 of the former 102 directors and chose an executive committee of 12, headed by Dr. A. H. Giannini, brother of A. P. Giannini.

Australia to Pay Overdue Interest

CANBERRA, Australia, Feb. 16.—(AP.)—The commonwealth government of Australia will send tomorrow to New York and London the overdue interest on loans to the government of New South Wales on which the state government defaulted.

Fuel Issues Range Near Previous Closing Level; Trading Volume Recedes

Trading quieted down on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but prices held steady, with the leading issues showing only small fractional changes from the levels prevailing on the close last night.

Business in the fuel group was confined to a few odd-lot trades. Volume in Lone Star showed a noticeable shrinkage from the average of the past three sessions. The price continued to range in an area fractionally above $8 a share.

JAPAN OFFERS BOND ISSUE

TOKIO, Feb. 16.—Announcement is made of the first Japanese government bond issue to be made since the embargo was placed on gold exports in December. The issue will amount to 42,000,000 yen, bearing a 5 per cent coupon. The issue price will be 95.25 and maturity has been fixed at 1939.

Proceeds of the Japanese bond issue will be used for conversion of $39,000,000 yen issue maturing March 15.

In financial circles here it is thought that the new issue will not succeed, as another government issue maturing in 1939 is selling at 93.80 and consequently, it is believed that the Bank of Japan will probably take the bulk of the issue.

The Japanese press understands that the government intends to redeem the £12,000,000 South Manchurian Railway issue which matures in July through a domestic issue.

'Bear Market Over!' Shouts Wall Street

—By B. C. FORBES—

Money talks. The sudden sensational rise in the market value of securities and the substantial improvement in the price of commodities talk convincingly.

Mr. Forbes

Upwards of $10,000,000,000—ten thousand millions—were added to the market worth of securities in seven hours. Commodities and raw materials bounded up in value several more billions.

While it would be rash to jump to the conclusion that there will be no more spasms of weakness, it is hardly likely that bears will again become as bold as they were before they had their fingers so badly burned.

Ups and downs—then up and up—will be the logical course hereafter.

HOW ABSURD for Europeans to pretend that they are afraid of the soundness of the American dollar.

The truth, which is not particularly palatable to envious Europeans, is that American currency is the best-secured and safest in the whole world. After the impending changes have been made in the banking law, U. S. currency will continue to be backed by no less than 40 per cent in gold. In addition, for every dollar issued there will be at least 60 per cent of the choicest securities in the world.

Seeing that nearly a billion and a half of currency has been withdrawn from circulation by hoarders throughout the country, it will take very great expansion in new currency to offset these buried sums.

There is not the slightest immediate danger that American currency will be "watered" one drop. Nor need there be serious apprehension that America's currency will become impaired in solidity one iota.

As hoarded currency comes out of hiding, as it probably will from now on, the Federal Reserve Board unquestionably will take the proper action to prevent anything resembling actual inflation.

LISTENING IN

—With the Radio Editor—

Pittsburgh radio listeners are to be treated to another "Hollywood First Night" when KQV broadcasts from the lobby of the Warner Theater the ceremonies incidental to the Pennsylvania premier of "The Man Who Played God," featuring George Arliss, from 8 to 8:30 Thursday night. Society leaders and others prominent in the life of the city will be brought before the microphone as they arrive. Gov. Gifford Pinchot has been invited to speak, while others to be heard will include city and county officials and executives of Warner Brothers and other theatrical and motion picture figures. Entertainment will be provided by Sue Carol and Nick Stuart, the movie stars; Dick Powell, Bernie Armstrong, Joe and Jane McKenna, Don Stitt and the Stanley Theater Orchestra.

Tonight's Highlights

WCAE—Russell Kirk's Syria Chanters, at 6:15; Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit singing "Hitchy Koo" and other numbers, at 8; Walter Winchell and the Coon-Sanders Orchestra from New York, and Jack Miles and his orchestra from Albany, at 10; and the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club at 11, featuring Paula Stone and other stars of "Smiling Faces," at the Alvin this week.

KDKA—Frank Harper's talk on "Washington and Pittsburgh," at 6; the Revelers giving a medley of Irving Berlin hits, at 7:15; Sacred Songs by the Sewickley Presbyterian Church Quartet, at 8, and Frazier Hunt's account of Robert Maynard Hutchins at 9:30.

WJAS—Margaret Santry's Bath Club interview with Ursula Parrott, popular authoress, at 8; Ruth Etting, guest artist, with Dick Winfree's Orchestra, at 8:45; the Crime Club thriller, at 9:30, and Nat Shilkret's Orchestra, at 10:30.

Miss Parrott

KQV—The "Backstage Interview," featuring stagehands, electricians and technicians, at 7:45; the Richard Knott recital, at 8:30, and Dick Ware, with Don Shoup's Orchestra, at 9:30.

WWSW—"Behind the Kitchen Door," at 7:30; the Shafer-Englert Orchestra, at 8:30, and the Pittsburgh Musical Institute program, at 9.

Program Pointers

BEN BERNIE figures in a new triangle at 9 tonight. "The Old Maestro," from Miami, where he is vacationing, will personally direct his orchestra in Chicago, and from there, the voice of Bernie and the tunes of his orchestra will be carried to New York, whence the program will be routed over the CBS network, including WJAS in Pittsburgh. Bernie will station himself in the studios of WQAM, in Miami, with a pair of earphones and a direct wire to Chicago will carry his announcements, his singing and his instructions to the musicians. In Chicago, his voice will be "mixed" with the music to which he will be listening through the headset. This is a variation of the recent successful hookup when Bebe Daniels sang in Los Angeles to the accompaniment of Paul Whiteman's Band in Chicago.

James J. Corbett describes his famous battle with James J. Jeffries at Coney Island, on KDKA at 6:30.

The Coon-Sanders Orchestra, in New York, substitutes for Jack Denny, in Montreal, on Walter Winchell's program tonight. Jack Miles' musicians from Albany also are on the program. Winchell's "magic carpet" sails to Havana Saturday night for Manola Castro's rumba exponents.

Thirty voices are in the Syria Temple Chanters' program on WCAE at 6:15. The Shrine Songbirds also will be heard on February 19 and 25, while on Saturday night, Karl Rex Hammers, potentate, will speak from WCAE at 7:15 on the proposed pilgrimage of Syria Temple to San Francisco in July.

Fan Fare

Edna Kellogg, former Metropolitan Opera soprano, heard each Friday night on the Armour program, sang from the time she could talk . . . Jules Herbuveaux, guest conductor of the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club Orchestra, and Joe Falvo, WJAS director, are talking over old times when they were together in Chicago . . . That eerie, blood-curdling howl of the ghost dog in Sherlock Holmes' "Hound of the Baskervilles" is the voice of Ray Kelly, sound effect expert, magnified a hundredfold . . . Phil Spitalny, who used to be a Pittsburgh maestro, will pinch-hit for Yasha Bunchuk, when Maj. Bowes' director follows him to Palm Beach for a vacation.

Miss Kellogg

Miss Hilda W. Smith, director of the Bryn Mawr Summer School for Women in Industry, will be guest speaker in the KDKA home forum program on KDKA at 3 p. m. tomorrow. The educator has spoken before many Pittsburgh clubs this week.

William (Jolly Bill) Steinke, of the Jolly Bill and Jane program, is a graduate of an Allentown (Pa.) pretzel factory . . . It's easy for Art Bagley to get up early to conduct his Tower Health exercises for his first job was delivering milk . . . Arthur Pryor chimes in with his claim for a record in having played no less than 10,000 trombone solos . . . James Hays, who was a lieutenant aboard a submarine chaser during the war, is the new voice at WCAE.

Studio Static

Kay Donna (Cronick to Pittsburgh), who was heard with Gene and Glenn yesterday, is so small that she was "lost" in a crowded elevator while leaving WTAM recently. When a friend who had been with her called out in an effort to find her, Kay replied:

"Oh, here I am; right in the center of things."

GOOD NEWS FOR THOSE WHO LIKE COFFEE

"I like a good cup of coffee with every meal but I used to suffer when I drank it," says Edward J. Owens, well-known salesman of 86 Falmouth Street, Boston, Mass.

"I would have sick headaches; would belch, leaving a sour taste in my mouth, gas on my stomach, and terrible indigestion.

"I tried many things before my druggist persuaded me to take some Pape's Diapepsin.

"I have a better appetite. Now, I can drink coffee even late at night, eat lobsters, pork or anything I want and sleep like a baby."

Get a package of these candy-like tablets from your druggist. They stop heartburn, gas on stomach, belching, nausea, headaches or any other symptom of indigestion soon as the trouble starts.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

For coughs due to colds, the best remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

RUPTURE

OF CHICAGO
IS COMING HERE AGAIN

He will personally demonstrate his method without charge at the Wm. Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 19th and 20th, from 10:00 A. M. to 7:00 P. M. daily. Only men are invited.

Caution—Do not wear trusses, pads, plasters, or devices that often weaken the muscles, and do not submit to avoidable operations which often fail repeatedly.

Rupture often causes Stomach Trouble, Backache, Constipation, Nervousness, general weakness and other ailments. Hundreds of deaths from rupture can be avoided.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

PILES

The soothing, healing properties of Pazo Ointment are so positive in action that relief is immediate.

IMPORTANT MATTERS TO CONSIDER WITH RESPECT TO YOUR ESTATE

Five Vital Questions

It is essential that your Will should contain among other provisions, specific answers to the following important questions:

Who will inherit my estate?
Will it be distributed outright?
What amounts will be distributed?
What safeguards, such as trust arrangements, will be provided to protect my estate?
Who will administer my estate?

The particular circumstances of each individual must be carefully considered in reaching a wise decision on these questions.

The officers of this Trust Company, through long experience in the planning and settling of estates, are particularly well qualified to render valuable assistance in such matters and will be glad at any time to discuss with you and your attorney the provisions which should be properly written into your Will.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

EMBERS OF LOVE -:- Story of a Pretty Girl in Whom Burned The Flame of a Great Emotion -:- By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XI.

"So this is Miss Lansing! So glad to have you, my dear!" The large, fair-haired woman who was Ken's mother, smiled graciously when Ken presented Lily Lou, and turned back to the man beside her, resuming her interrupted, sprightly conversation.

Lily Lou felt her color rising. A sick feeling in the pit of her stomach. She wished she had not come,

Synopsis

Young and beautiful Lily Lou Lansing aspires to an operatic career, but her moderate circumstances necessitates that she go to business and study music evenings. Wealthy Ken Sargent, whom Lily Lou loves, becomes angry when she insists upon practicing instead of seeing him and discontinues calling. Lily Lou grows listless and overworks trying to forget him. She goes to her parents home in Woodlake for a rest. Ken arrives and once again she is happy. She assumes an air of indifference towards Ken, however, and one night, feeling she is no longer interested, he kisses her goodbye and leaves for town. Lily Lou rushes down the path to stop him and stumbles. Ken runs back to assist her and she confesses her love for him. Back in the city, they are together frequently, but Lily Lou realizes they are from different worlds and wonders at the outcome. Her sister doubts Ken's seriousness and advises Lily Lou to think more of her career. Ken takes Lily Lou to a party at his home.

Now Go On

Ken shot a quick glance at his mother. Hailed a passing girl. "Vivi! Vivi, this is my friend Lily Lou Lansing— Vivian Arwell. Lily Lou, Vivi, show Lily Lou where to leave her wraps, will you?"

Vivian Arwell was nice anyway. She was a large, not particularly pretty girl with hair the awkward growing in length, and one of the loveliest dresses Lily Lou had ever seen. It was of a peculiar dusty raspberry color, of silk that was heavy and soft. And suddenly Lily Lou felt cheap and shabby, though the pink dress had seemed lovely before.

"My, but you have lovely hair," the Arwell girl said generously. That made Lily Lou feel better. She determined to have a good time anyway.

The clubhouse itself was lovely. There was a long room with two great fireplaces in which logs smouldered redly. Spanish chairs, dark red hangings, walls that were mellow ivory hung with rich, dark tapestries that glowed ruby-red and golden in the bright soft light of the great wrought iron candelabra that hung from the ceiling.

PROUD OF KEN

The long French windows were open. You could see out onto the wide verandas, where there were basket chairs and little tables. From the garden came the heavy sweetness of stock, and fresh-cut lawns, and out beyond you could see the roll of the golf links and dark trees. . . . It would be fun to belong to a club like this, to be able to entertain here, to ride, and play golf . . .

She was proud of Ken. He knew just what to do. He looked so tall and straight and slim in his dinner clothes. He hurried over to her, claimed her so proudly, when she and Vivi Arwell came down from the little stairway that led to the women's dressing rooms.

There was quite a gay party when they were all assembled to go into the dining room. Mr. Sargent, it seemed, was away, but it was almost a family party. Mrs. Sargent, and a small, very dark man who wore eyeglasses and was called Uncle Stan by Ken, and Peggy Sage and her father and mother, and Vivi Arwell, and two young men who wore horn rimmed glasses and looked exactly alike except that one was light and the other dark.

Peggy Sage was a small, vivacious person, even prettier than she had seemed in the car. Her eyes were almost black, her hair palest gold, and her small vivacious features were oddly like the aquiline, rugged countenance of her big, distinguished father, Capt. Vincent Sage.

She addressed a dozen quick, laughing words to Lily Lou, let her gaze rest for a second on the tulle filled in skirt, and forgot her.

Capt. Sage, on the contrary, was most attentive until Mrs. Sargent pulled him away into an argument over "Green Pastures."

"I tell you, I don't like that kind of thing—"

"But captain, you WOULD. Everybody—"

"I tell you all I want is something cheerful. A good girl show—"

On the other side of the table Mrs. Sage, slender and gray and quiet, smiled tolerantly, and listened to Ken's Uncle Stan who was complaining that golf was no longer a gentleman's game . . . "Every Tom, Dick and Harry —Every counter jumper— Every—"

"But bridge is worse! My dear you CAN'T get a game in the East anymore. Nothing but backgammon. To think that the grand old game—"

Lily Lou cared nothing for the future of either golf or bridge but at least she could understand what they were talking about. Peggy Sage and the two collegiate youths might as well be talking Greek, for all it meant to her. Bits of slang—catch phrases—"Oh la!" uttered in a certain, high, nasal tone seemed to mean something— Everybody laughed. . . . Trick phrases, catch expressions . . . Ken understood them. . . . He had become a stranger, too. . . .

It was fun in a way. Lily Lou was young and unspoilt enough to enjoy the dinner, to be thrilled to think that she was part of this bright, beautifully gowned and tailored party. . . . It was the sort of thing she'd expected to make her own some time . . . when she was a singer, only Ken had given it to her sooner, instead.

She looked at his mother, not young any more, but still beautiful . . . She though of her own mother . . . how far away she was from this sort of thing . . .

After dinner they danced, and she was happier. Ken danced divinely. The other boys in the party seemed to enjoy dancing with her, too. The stars came out in Lily Lou's eyes, her lips were parted in a joyous, happy smile . . .

"Having a good time?" Ken whispered.

"Oh—wonderful!"

But when it was time to leave, when the women ascended the stairs to the mauve and maize dressing rooms, and Mrs. Sargent drew Peggy's arm through hers, and Vivi Arwell joined another laughing group around one of the mirrored dressing tables, Lily Lou felt a shock of awakening . . .

She hadn't really been a part of it. She was just a stranger, whom Ken brought.

"Good night, my dear," Ken's mother said when Ken was ready to drive her home in the green roadster.

"Good night, Miss Lansing. Glad to have met you!" Peggy Sage murmured politely, and then she shouted in her natural, careless little voice—"Ken! What time for tennis?"

"Any time you say," he answered, just as naturally.

"Make it 10—no, 11. I have to get some sleep."

"Eleven it is!"

A SLEEPLESS NIGHT

After a while Ken said, "Peg and I usually play tennis on Sunday mornings."

They always had. They two, who were sort of meant for each other, raised in the same sort of environment, the same sort of families. . . .

Ken halted the car in the shade of the Kittridge's drooping acasia tree, a mass of featherly golden bloom, and kissed her.

She was very quiet.

May, who had heard the car drive up, listened from her bed. She visualized the scene, her brows drawn in a hard, tight line. Presently she heard Lily Lou's key in the door. She thought of getting up to ask her what the party was like, but it was late, and she was tired. She dozed off . . . woke again, much later, saw the crack of light in the hall . . . Lily Lou had forgotten to switch off the lights.

Sighing a little she got up to turn it off, but the light came from the open door of Lily Lou's room.

"Then, for heaven's sake, go to bed!"

May tiptoed back to Raymond. Lily Lou undressed, slowly and methodically, hanging her clothes carefully in the closet. Then she crept into bed, and lay awake the rest of the night, staring up at the ceiling.

In the morning she was tired-eyed, but cheerful. She had made up her mind.

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

AS WE SAT around in Moore's restaurant the other night and talked of this and that, somebody revived one of my favorite stories—the story of Mat Green. It goes back 15 years or so, but the thought behind it is just as much in use these days as it was then. Draw up a chair, and grab yourself a listen.

Mat Green was a very sick man in those days and has long since been dead of cancer. I mention that at the moment—although it has nothing whatsoever to do with the story. Come to think of it, that is probably why I did mention it.

Mat knew many people, but a man he respected and admired greatly was William Anthony McGuire, whose name has appeared in this column from time to time and who was the author of such smashes as "The Three Musketeers," "Rosalie," and "Whoopee."

Green caught McGuire passing the theater one afternoon and nailed him.

"Mr. McGuire," he said pleadingly, "I'm a very sick man. Ain't got very much longer to live—and I'm just tryin' to get enough coin together to go West and die in peace. I come from out there, you know.

"Now here's the idea, Mr. McGuire. I don't want no charity. No, sir, nothin' like that. I got a title for a play that I think is purty good. I also got the outline for the play—and I think that's purty good, too.

"Here's the whole works. Take it with you and look over it. If you think it's worth anythin', jus' let me know. If you don't—well, there's no harm done. Will you do it, Mr. McGuire?"

McGuire accepted the script and patted Green on the back. He knew that this fellow couldn't possibly have written anything worthwhile, but he didn't want to tell him so right then.

That very afternoon Bill was waiting in an office for a celebrated producer. He searched through his pockets for something to read. And he came across Mat Green's manuscript. As he read, an amazed light crept into his eyes. The title was superb and, behind the rough wordage was a mervelous idea.

When he finally appeared before the producer, Bill tossed the manuscript on the latter's desk.

"Read that over when you get the chance," he said. "It was written by Mat Green, doorman of the Cort Theater. It's a swell notion. Think it over."

The producer nodded. He placed the manuscript in his desk. And forgot it . . .

Some two months later, Bill McGuire was in Atlantic City. Opening the paper one morning he was astonished to find the name of Mat Green's play among the theatrical notes with the observation that the producer was putting the play into rehearsal immediately. But, instead of Mat Green, some one else's name was down as the author.

"Look here," he cried angrily, "I don't care anything about myself in this matter. I'm only thinking of Mat Green. Why, the poor sucker is dying of cancer. He'll kick off at any time, and you're selling him out like this. What's the big idea?"

"Listen, sweetheart," he murmured softly, "don't get so excited. I'm a pretty generous bird and I'm gonna take care of Mat Green. Get him over here on Friday afternoon and I'll give him $5,000. How's that?"

Bill MiGuire was satisfied. Five thousand dollars would be more than enough for Green. He went home and went to bed.

The following afternoon, McGuire strolled happily to the Cort Theater. He was on an errand of good cheer. When he arrived there, Green had a broad smile on his face.

"O, Mr. McGuire," he sang out happily, "God bless you! Mr. —— had me to his office this morning and paid me for my play. O, I'm a happy man!"

McGuire was astonished. The producer had told him to bring Mat Green on Friday. And this was only Wednesday. He began to smell a rat.

"Mat," murmumed McGuire, "how much did he give you for that play?"

Green shrugged his shoulders.

"He only gimme $300," he responded. "Of course it ain't much. But look here, Mr. McGuire, look here. He gave me a whole box for myself for the opening night—for nothing!". . .

JOHN GRANT insists that it happened on the sunny shores of Far Rockaway one Sunday last summer. He's probably telling you a true story, at that. Actors have been known to do that—upon occasion.

At any rate, the lifeguard at Far Rockaway on that particular day was having quite a time of it. For some unknown reason, people were stepping into deep holes one after the other. According to John Grant's count, the lifeguard yanked out eight people in the space of three hours. Just a good, old-fashioned Yankee.

"Eight, so far," was his response.

His questioner smiled happily.

"That's great!" he shouted enthusiastically. "But the poor guy on the next beach is having a tough time of it. He hasn't had any yet!". . .

"DEAR MARK:" writes Henry A. Drescher. "The undersigned is one of the attorneys assigned by the court in the defense of Joe Brown and Charles Marks, who are at present on trial before Judge Koenig, in Part 5, in the Court of General Sessions. The two men are charged with the murder of Sergt. O'Shaughnessy which occurred on June 9, 1931, in a Harlem speakeasy.

"Yesterday morning, former Assistant District Attorney Alexander Rorke summed up to the jury in behalf of our client, Joe Brown. He did an excellent job. And at the close of his summation Brown—only 20 years of age and charged with murder—called Rorke over to him.

"He looked up at the attorney with shining eyes.

"'Gee, Mr. Rorke,' he said, 'that sure was great. I wouldn't have missed it for the world!'"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS Junior Komic Club

An important announcement is made today. It concerns the boys and girls who have been attending the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club meetings at the Davis Theater. Beginning Saturday, this chapter will meet at the Harris Theater on Diamond street, where the chapter was organized. Members are requested to report promptly at 10 o'clock. Manager William Pearce is making great preparations to welcome his little friends at the Washington's Birthday celebration at the Harris Theater Saturday morning.

Boys and girls elected to office at the Cameraphone Chapter Saturday are Betty Neidhammer, grand jester; Estelle Schutzer, Joseph Migliozzi, John Whatmaugh, Phyllis Ackerman, Edgar Beasal and Steve Dugan, board of governors.

The entertainment Saturday included dances by Helen Schmelz and Mary Margaret Lavery from Fairgrieves School of Dancing; Henry LaPertsche and his orchestra, the Three Tumbling Clowns, and Vero, the Magician. Every child whose birthday comes within the week received big birthday cakes.

MANOR ELECTION

Officers elected to serve for the next four weeks at the Manor Chapter are: Grand Jester, L. Becker; board of governors, G. Siewald, B. Maizer, R. Sternlicht, H. Johnson, H. Campbell, J. Bailey and E. Simons.

Birthday cakes were then distributed and the meeting was closed with a flag ceremonial presented by the Boy Scouts of the district.

Elaborate preparations are under way at the 17 chapters of the Sun Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club for the big patriotic celebration at Saturday's meetings.

Group singing will form an important part of the programs and special lyrics have been written to be sung to the airs of popular songs. These lyrics will be published in this column later in the week. Watch for them, cut them out and take them with you to the meeting Saturday.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Certain persons make you feel uneasy—you do not know why.

Whether it is the way they look at you, the questions they ask or what else there is about them, you don't know, but they unnerve you.

They do not know anything derogative against you which would be harmful to your reputation, then why should you feel uncomfortable in their presence?

If you have been fair and square with the world in general and others in particular you are foolish to let anyone get you fussed.

Better go out more and put yourself in the way of superficial persons socially till you get accustomed to posing ways that may or may not be assumed to make others uncomfortable.

Keep to a plan for closer associations with a group of persons who seem to embarrass you till you find out whether they are so superior.

Meantime fill your mind with useful knowledge and forget yourself.

More or less it is a form of vanity to think that others are observing you and perhaps criticizing you.

If you are honest and honorable, don't let anyone unnerve you. Keep your poise.

Speak Out, Gentlemen!

The Voters Are Entitled to Know How Candidates for The Legislature Feel About the Blue Law.

In the statement accompanying the announcement of Thomas W. Neely, Sr., yesterday that he is a candidate for another term in the Legislature, and also in the statements of several other candidates, we have seen no reference to the Blue Law.

It is to be hoped that this omission will be corrected promptly.

The proposal that the Blue Law, with its unjustifiable ban on innocent Sunday amusements, shall be repealed is one of the important issues of the campaign.

There was perhaps nothing at the last regular session of the Legislature in which the people were more interested than in the fight to liberate them from this intolerant law of 1794. When public hearings were held on the subject the citizens flocked to them in large numbers from Pittsburgh and other places.

One bill which would have provided partial relief from the oppressive restrictions was passed by the House, and it is certain the fight will be renewed at the next session.

Candidates for both House and Senate should realize that this is an important issue and that the voters have a right to know how they stand on it. In announcing their candidacy they should give a direct straightforward statement of their position on this matter.

Regardless of what their attitude may be the citizens, we believe, will have more respect for candidates who speak out fearlessly than for those who attempt to weasel out of an expression.

A Fair Return

Mr. Phillips Draws a Red Herring Across the Trail By Questioning the Adequacy of 7 Per Cent.

Supporting the Sun-Telegraph's contention that the Duquesne Light Company is charging too much for its service to domestic consumers, Gov. Pinchot yesterday made public a report to the effect that in recent years the company has earned annually from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 in excess of a 7 per cent return.

In reply Frank R. Phillips, president of the Duquesne Light Company, says among other things that "there is no law on the statute books either of Pennsylvania or the federal government which fixes any rate return as fair or reasonable."

In thus questioning the adequacy of 7 per cent Mr. Phillips is simply drawing a red herring across the trail. Seven per cent has been for years the figure agreed upon by the Public Service Commission as a fair return for public utilities.

It might not be a fair return for a highly speculative or competitive enterprise, but for a monopoly like the Duquesne Light Company, selling a necessity of life in a thickly settled community like the Pittsburgh district and enjoying certain tax exemptions, it is ample.

Talbot Bill Upheld

It Is to Be Hoped That a Prompt Decision Will Be Forthcoming from the Supreme Court.

Gov. Pinchot's belief that the Talbot bill appropriating $10,000,000 for poor relief is unconstitutional is not shared by the Dauphin County Court, which handed down a decision yesterday upholding the validity of the act.

The special session of the Legislature may not therefore have been so abortive as was argued.

An appeal, however, is likely to be taken to the Supreme Court, and again it will be urged that the bill violates that section of the State Constitution which says that "no appropriations, except for pensions or gratuities for military services, shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes, to any person or community, nor to any denominational or sectarian institution, corporation or association."

It is to be hoped that the Supreme Court will render a prompt decision.

The likelihood that the appropriation will stand is improved by the lower court's ruling. If the money is to be of greatest use it should be made available at the earliest day possible.

Allegheny County's share of the money will be approximately $800,000, an amount that should go far towards relieving distress.

A Showdown Due

Council Should Either Reconsider Its Action on the Subway or Explain Why It Is Junking the Plan.

Council has granted the City Transit Commission a hearing on the subway project. At 3:30 tomorrow afternoon it will listen to the presentation of reasons why it should reconsider its junking of the project.

Members of the Transit Commission will point out that withholding of the requested minimum appropriation of $8,300 may mean the loss of $300,000 already invested in the plan.

They will point out further that the $8,300 would not come out of taxes this year, but from a bond sale.

The people authorized the subway 12 years ago by voting $6,000,000 of bonds for it. The subway is needed more now than it was then.

Too Many Constables?

Blame for the roving constables, who make such a nuisance of themselves by searching for petty technical offenses through prosecution of which they may earn a few dollars, is placed by the Constables' Beneficial and Protective Association on District Attorney Andrew T. Park. The District Attorney's office, the association says, is to blame because it commissions deputy constables on a wholesale scale, and there is not enough work for the excess constables to do in their own bailiwicks, so they have to go roving.

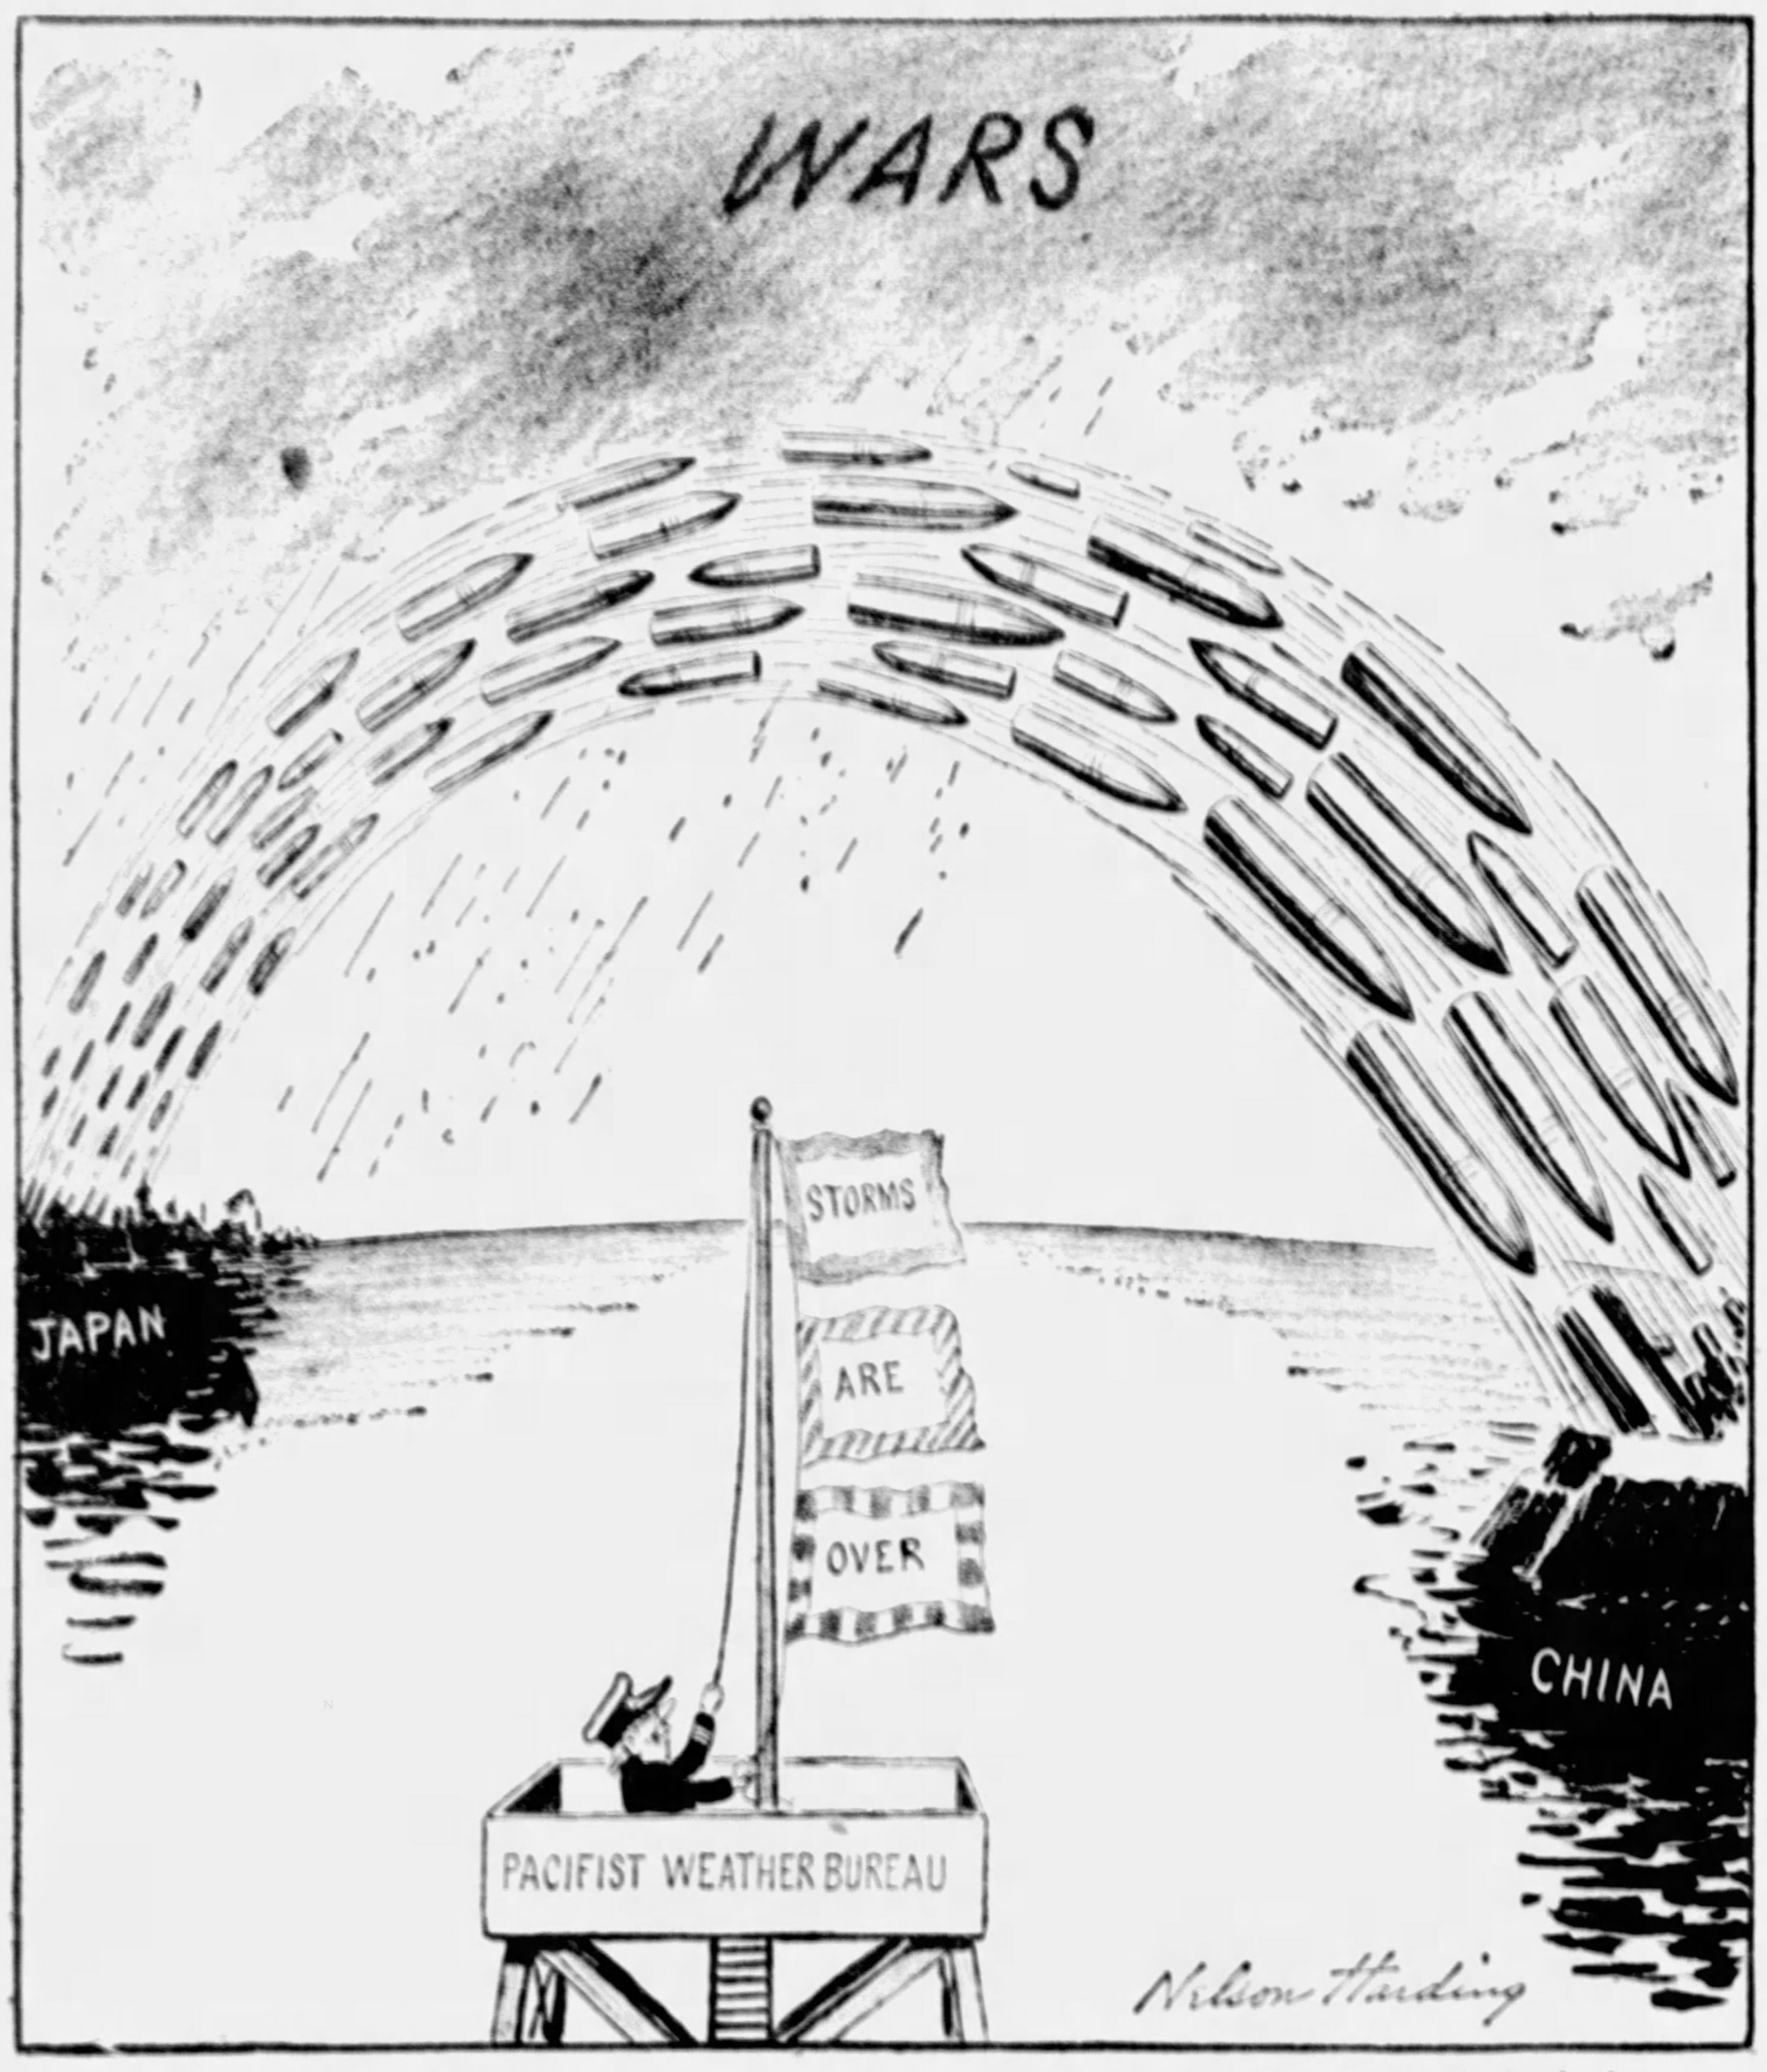
District Attorney Park retorts that all he has to do with the matter is to investigate the character of applicants for appointment as deputy constables after aldermen have petitioned the courts for the appointments. This puts it up to the aldermen.

There should not be more constables than are needed; but on the other hand there are certain districts where these peace officers could find much to do without leaving their bailiwicks.

The "blind men's parade," or periodical questioning of constables as to conditions in their districts, is a joke; for it is notorious that places reeking with commercial vice are again and again reported free from crime.

See the Rainbow in the East?

By Nelson Harding



Those signals from the tower say
The storms have surely passed away,
And that a bow of promise bright
Now spans the skies, a pretty sight.

We fear that Weather Man's deceived
And doesn't see what he believed;
It's evident he cannot tell
A rainbow from an arching shell.

Marry-Go-Round

Love, in Mixed Flavors

* * *

Modern fairy tale: Once upon a time, there was a man who swore off smoking forever—and didn't come around and beg his wife for a cigaret the next morning.

* * *

Funny, but we spend the first three years teaching a girl-baby to talk—and the rest of her life, vainly, trying to teach her to keep QUIET.

* * *

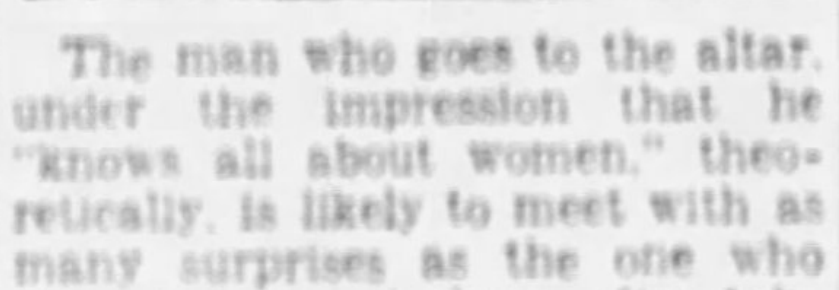
Freedom is a man's reward for making a woman so miserable that she can't live with him.

* * *

To lots of modern girls, the marriage-tie looks like a slipknot, and a wedding-ring is no more binding than the straps on a Florida bathing suit.

* * *

When you are going to marry a man, it is only fair to take him into your confidence and break the news to him gently—even in Leap Year.



The man who goes to the altar, under the impression that he "knows all about women," theoretically, is likely to meet with as many surprises as the one who steps into an airplane, after taking a correspondence school course in flying.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—John Golden added spice to the season's theatrical dish by turning his cozy playhouse over to that group of valiant show boat troupers from the mud flats. For those from the tall grass, brought up on show boat fare, it was a memorable first night, a gallant sortie.

The only thing lacking was a calliope. For over 40 years, Billy Bryant and his father, Sam, now 76, paddled up and down the Ohio. In that time they wore out three show boats. Billy married during his wanderings and his wife, Josephine, and daughter, Betty, 7, are in the company.

Not one ever appeared in New York before. Indeed, save for a recent stay in Cincinnati and Chicago, their world had been a pleasant drifting from one jay hamlet to the next, season after season. They wouldn't even hesitate at cities for mail.

Had they realized they were to face such a distinguished first night audience, Billy Bryant, in a charmingly naive curtain speech, confessed they would have fled. He warned after the first act the performance would get worse and worse. And added: "You better go now."

Yet his speech had a quality of disarming frankness that completely captivated the stiff shirts and ermine coats. For instance: "If you think this is rotten, you should see our Hamlet." He confessed they were all "hams," scared stiff and praying not to exit out of town astraddle a rail.

But Broadway is so used to boasting Thespians the engaging about face filled the theater with cheers. Scenery and costumes were tawdry, the lines mawkish, but there was about them a refreshing sincerity—a clean breath of the forgotten marshlands whence they came.

Among those contributing to the salvo of applause were the Charles Dana Gibsons, the Roy Howards, Rube Goldbergs, Dudley Field Malones, Buff and Steve Brody, Fannie Hurst, Gene Tunney, the Bruce Bartons, Irvin Cobb, James Montgomery Flagg and the Gene Bucks. Certainly a galaxy to inspire even a Barrymore.

The Bryants are rooted in the pioneer soil of the medicine show. While Billy's father mixed corn salve and ballyhooed electric belts, the son twanged the banjo on the portable platform and so in a prairie schooner they made "pitches" through Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas. Sam, the elder Bryant, built his first show boat 40 years ago at Pt. Pleasant, W. Va., four miles from my boyhood home, Gallipolis, O., on the opposide of the Ohio. For 30 years he moored at Gallipolis levee each summer and under a flaring banjo torch herded timid yaps into the show with a deft and dulcet tally-ho.

* * *

They are humble folk—these river troubadors. For 25 years the present company has bivouacked along the bayous without change of personnel. Temperamental tantrums peculiar to the footlights are unknown. A leading man may play the tuba in the overture and hawk postcards as the audience departs.

* * *

A touch of their innocent bravado was expressed at the premiere. After the first act, the celebrity audience was asked to the stage to meet the performers and partake of free near beer and pretzels at the bar of the Sickle and Sheaf Inn—the play was "Ten Nights in a Barroom." Not a notable hesitated. The most experienced masters of ceremony could not turn such a trick. They touched glasses with Simon Slade, the landlord; Mehitable Cartright, who never had a beau; Willie Hammond, the judge's son; Joe Morgan, the drunkard, and Mary Morgan, the drunkard's daughter—all in costume. Shyly, the forks-of-the-creek performers found the gathering of aristocratic New Yorkers fitting that bosomy adjective of the forlorn hollows—"folksy." The river folk brought to sophisticates with compelling clearness that certain, ineffable beauty of simplicity.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

How much food per month, is required to keep five people from starvation?

Horrible question! Three years ago, if someone had told you that someone would be asking that question, you'd have laughed in his face.

Starving Chinese, Russians, Indians or Armenians—you were familiar with pictures of these. But starving Americans—little American children, with hollow eyes and wasted ribs crying with hunger—IMPOSSIBLE!

Yet today America is asking that question and is paying experts to solve it. PAYING EXPERTS TO DISCOVER HOW LITTLE FOOD AN AMERICAN BABY NEEDS TO KEEP IT FROM ACTUAL STARVATION.

The Department of Labor has just released a report. It gives emergency diets for a typical family of five—parents, three minor children. It makes no bones about this diet. It doesn't pretend that it will keep a family in good health. It says, flatly, that it won't; but it will keep them alive—for a while.

And even that information, ghastly as it seems, will be welcome news to EIGHT MILLION CITIZENS WHO ARE WHOLLY UNEMPLOYED, AND TO THEIR SEVEN MILLION DEPENDENTS.

A family of five—father, mother and three children—can get along temporarily on 14 quarts of milk per week. They should have 21 quarts for an adequate diet. The emergency diet allows for three No. 2 cans of tomatoes. The family should have five such cans. Five pounds of leafy vegetables (cabbage or greens) is an adequate amount for a family of that size, and even in an emergency, the folder emphasizes, this amount should not be cut down. Eighteen pounds of other vegetables or fruits is given as the "irreducible minimum," while a family of five should have 26 pounds.

Other foods are listed in a similar way, with the estimate that AT LEAST $7.50 TO $10.00 A WEEK should be allowed a family of five, to provide an adequate diet at a minimum cost; with a special allowance, of from 15 to 25 cents per week, to provide cod liver oil for each child under two.

That is what a family of five hungry people MUST have to barely exist. Even with that diet, they will suffer from diseases due to partial starvation, pneumonia, abdominal distress, malnutrition—which warps the body and dulls the sense for a life time. Twenty years of ample feeding cannot undo the effects of two years of malnutrition.

These facts are known. They are known to everybody from the most inexperienced social worker up to President Hoover, Honorary Head of the American Red Cross. Then what is actually being given to these 15,000,000 hungry Americans? Listen!

Around Altoona, in the Pennsylvania coal mining district, 1,200 families are dependent today on charity—approximately 7,000 persons. There is no work; no chance of work. They are as helpless as flood victims. What are these families being given to meet their need?

FIVE DOLLARS A MONTH.

No, that isn't a printer's mistake. You read it right. FIVE DOLLARS A MONTH TO COVER THE ENTIRE FOOD BILL FOR FIVE PEOPLE—AND NO OTHER RELIEF.

And that isn't "an isolated case." There are millions of cases like that in America today. Report upon report from people whose intelligence, efficiency and honor beyond question are flooding the halls of Congress and the executive offices. But what is being done? Nothing.

The Red Cross has over FORTY MILLIONS IN THE BANKS AT GOOD INTEREST; but it says it can't use that money for this need. It isn't a "disaster."

Congress has just passed the President's $2,000,000 emergency bill to give relief to banks and railroads. But it refuses to pass any bill giving direct and immediate aid to 15,000,000 sick and hungry American citizens. That would be "a dole."

A DOLE—TO GIVE A STARVING BABY A CUP OF MILK!

Speaking of the Vice-Presidency

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

The discussions of the Vice Presidential nominations this year are interesting without being convincing, as yet, since the real decision is not apt to come until the Presidential nomination is determined. The disposition among politicians to consider the Vice Presidency lightly is a modern development.

In the early days of the Republic only men were chosen who were conceded to be of Presidential caliber. But since John Adams and Thomas Jefferson succeeded to the Presidency, but one Vice President has been elected to the higher office for his first term. Martin Van Buren is the sole exception. Tyler, Fillmore, Johnson, Arthur, Roosevelt and Coolidge reached the White House from the Vice Presidency through the death of the President.

Popular esteem for the second position appears to have diminished in recent years, and politicians are now prone to turn up their noses at the nomination. Yet the place has been held by some of the strongest and greatest men in the history of the republic. Calhoun did not think the position beneath his dignity; nor Van Buren. A wise forethought of the possibility of the death of the President would dictate always the nomination of an able man for the second place on the ticket.

* * *

Presidential Nominee Designates Running Mate

For years it has been the policy to permit the Presidential nominee to designate his running mate, although there have been exceptions to the rule. McKinley did not want Roosevelt, and Harding did not want Coolidge.

For years the politicians have acted on the theory that the nominee for the second place on the ticket should represent a different policy or segment of the party from that represented by the Presidential nominee. This, on the theory that it brings all elements of the party together.

The result has been that very seldom has a Vice President succeeding to the Presidency maintained the policies of his predecessor.

The manner in which politicians, seeking to draw divergent groups together, are sometimes defeated in their primary purpose is illustrated in the case of Tyler and Johnson.

* * *

When Tyler Became President

John Tyler was a Jeffersonian Democrat.

He opposed high tariffs throughout his career in House and Senate.

He was opposed to the National Bank from boyhood.

But being an extremely strict constructionist, he bitterly opposed Andrew Jackson's methods in fighting the bank, and aligned himself as an insurgent Democrat with the old line Whigs under the leadership of Henry Clay. There were other Democrats who shared his views.

In 1844 Clay hoped to win; and finding the nomination beyond his grasp, he supported William Henry Harrison, a man with meager political experience, of no great ability, and old to feebleness. With Harrison in the White House, Clay expected to be the power behind the throne.

To cover the inconsistency, the Whigs that year did not mention bank or tariff; for had they made an issue of either, Tyler would have withdrawn from the ticket. For Tyler was above selling his convictions for any nomination.

The Whigs won; Harrison went in, and lived a month, and died; and Tyler became President.

Then Clay proposed to restore the bank and increase the tariff—and Tyler met all such measures with a veto.

Too late Clay realized he had put a Democrat in the White House.

* * *

A Democrat All His Life

In 1864 it was proposed to lift the war for the Union above partisanship by nominating a war Democrat for the Vice-Presidency; and the politicians turned to Andrew Johnson.

He had been a Democrat all his life; and he belonged to the Jeffersonian and Jacksonian school. Never once had he affiliated with the Republicans. Though opposed to secession, he stood for what he conceived to be the sovereign rights of states. He believed in the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

One month after Lincoln's second inauguration he was assassinated, and Andrew Johnson became President; and very soon the Radicals, or Republicans, knew they had put a Democrat in the White House. History records the result.

Had the Democrats been wise in 1868 they would have passed Seymour by and have nominated Johnson for the Presidency. He wanted the nomination and would have made a better fight than was waged that year. Later he returned to the Senate—as a Democrat.

* * *

It Is the 'Old Army Game'

The better, safer plan is for a convention to nominate its own candidate for the Vice Presidency with the same care and consideration it gives to the nomination of the Presidential candidate. It is not quite up to the dignity of the position to use it, as frequently it is used by the managers of Presidential candidates, for trading purposes—to draw this or that state delegation into line. An amusing volume could be written on this practice; for there have been times when a Presidential candidate, or his managers, have secretly offered the Vice Presidential nomination to three or four men—at the same time. It is the "old army game."

There have been personal tragedies in the refusal of the Vice Presidential nomination by men who considered it beneath their merits.

In 1900 Jonathan Dolliver, of Iowa, could have had the nomination. He was one of the premier orators of his party and a man of ability amounting to nothing less than genius. He refused the nomination, which went to Roosevelt; and within a year of the convention he would have been President through McKinley's death had he taken the nomination. Had Dolliver said the word, there would have been no Roosevelt regime, and the history of the country would have been different.

* * *

The Social End of The Administration

The Vice Presidency has no duties that any man of fair ability cannot satisfactorily discharge; but there is always the possibility of his succession to the White House. Conventions should not gamble with that possibility.

But a Vice Presidential candidate should have good digestive machinery, for he literally eats his way through his term. Being the social end of the administration, he is expected to dine out almost every night—on rich foods.

Vice President Thomas A. Marshall found this the one trying duty of the job. A month of dining sent him to a doctor; and thereafter he took special treatment constantly as a prevention against illness, and walked miles to rid himself of the poison of good food. He had wit and the social instinct which made him popular, and that suggests another qualification for a popular Vice President—he should have some wit, a lot of humor, a bit of cynicism, and a capacity for conversation.
